THE STATE CONVENTION AND TICKETS OF BOTH PARTIES.

Other Conventions, Political Gossip, and Local Candidates.

Republican State Ticket.

For Governor, Hon. Oliver Ames of North Easton.

For Lieutenant Governor, Hon. John Quincy Adams Brackett of Boston.

For Secretary of State, Hon. Henry H. Pease of Abington.

For Treasurer and Receiver-General, Hon. Alanson W. Board of Boston.

For Auditor, Hon. Charles K. Ladd of Springfield.

For Attorney-General, Edgar J. Sherman of Lawrence.

The platform adopted at the Republican State Convention, demands a strict enforcement of liquor laws and the submission to the people of the constitutional amendment; favors an extension of civil service laws; the correction of evils growing out of inequality of condition as regards labor, and favors forbidding the importation of foreign contract labor; to keep all pledges made the soldiers and sailors; a call for prompt, persistent and determined action on the fishery question; revision of the tariff, and demands free trade and honest count; also a sound currency. It condemns the Democratic House of Representatives for various matters, praises Governor Robinson, and asks for his "candidates and principles that fair and just consideration" which Massachusetts is accustomed to accord men and measures.

Democratic State ticket, nominated Thursday.

For Governor, Hon. John F. Andrew of Boston.

For Lieutenant Governor, Frank K. Foster of Haverhill.

For Secretary of State, John R. Thayer of Worcester.

Treasurer, Lewis Warner of Northampton.

Auditor, William F. Cook of Springfield.

Attorney General, John W. Corcoran of Clinton.

The nomination as Treasurer had been offered to Col. William Aspinwall of Brookline and declined by him.

The platform adopted at the Democratic Convention at Worcester, Thursday, praises President Cleveland, demands a judicious reform of the tariff, honest money and protection for American fishermen. It congratulates the workmen on their progress, believing it to be through the Democratic party. It desires contract labor in prison abolished, reports against the importation of foreign labor, and pledges support to laws helping the laborer. It denounces the taking of the control of the police force from the city of Boston and the unfair division of the Senatorial and other districts of the state. It pays tribute also to deceased leaders.

This may be an unhealthy season, but there will not be a death in town since Sept. 17—two weeks.

Commencing Monday, the Public Library will be open every afternoon and evening, and Saturday mornings.

The gutter on Washington street between the library and the Canal is being paved. It has long needed it.

The rebuilding of Hancock street is nearly completed, although much has yet to be done on the sidewalks.

The Temperance Convention as it relates to women will be the subject of the Suffrage League Monday evening.

The floor at the Coliseum was waxed for the first time Friday evening, Sept. 24, for the dance of the McGregors.

In the decade just closed, the Fifth Norfolk Representative District, comprising the towns of Quincy and Weymouth, which is entitled to three Representatives each year, was represented by fifteen Quincy gentlemen and fifteen from Weymouth.

Quincy had one in 1877, 1878, 1880, 1882, 1885 and 1887; two in 1879, 1881 and 1884; and three in 1883. Of the Quincy gentlemen eleven were Republicans and four Democrats. Of the Weymouth, thirteen Republicans and two Democrats.

We hear the name of Representative Herbert M. Federhen of this town mentioned in connection with the Speakership of the next House, and it behooves the Republicans of Quincy to remember him, and the voters of this district to elect him for a third term. He has by regular attendance and an active interest in the town and public affairs, won distinction as an able legislator, and at the same time has made himself popular with those who congregate under the gilded dome. It will be an honor to Quincy to furnish the Speaker, and we believe Mr. Federhen is fitted and deserving of the position.

The Globe says: The Democrats have not yet canvassed the situation in the second district, but they realize the extra importance of nominating a man by whom they can stand, not only in the fight with Mr. Long, but also in the special election that would follow the Hinghamite to the Senate. Dr. William Everett of Quincy made an energetic canvass two years ago, but the party men are taking the most of out-and-out partisans. Among those under discussion are Hon. Edward Avery of Braintree, Hon. Bushrod Morse of Sharon, Mr. J. F. Simmons of Abington, Mr. Peter Butler of Quincy, the names of Hosea Kington, city solicitor of Brockton, and William H. Osborne of East Bridgewater are the only ones seriously considered by the Republicans as candidates for the nomination for Speaker.

A new building to be occupied by Tirrell Brothers as a general merchandise store is soon to be erected on Hancock street between Tirrell & Butler, Charles H. Porter, George H. Field, John H. Deane, M. Federhen, James H. Slade, Josiah Quincy, Charles R. Sherman, John A. Duggan, William B. Rice and Joseph H. Vogel.

VOTING LIST. The work of the Board of Registrars upon the voting list shows a net loss of 200 on the one just issued. Of the names dropped 76 were because of death, 70 because of unpaid taxes, and because they were not returned by the Assessors or had left town. Newly registered 10. Of course many of these will be restored before election, and the loss will probably be changed into a gain.

The Weymouth High School Reunion takes place on Wednesday, Oct. 13.

D. L. Pratt, of Southbridge, raised 255 bushels of beans from one pint, and 260 bushels from one bean.

QUINCY POINT.

PERSONAL.

Rev. Mr. Bristol of Atlantic will preach on Sunday morning, at the Congregational Church, in exchange with Rev. Geo. Benedict.

Mr. James Murdoch, at the Neck, has this week laid the foundation for a polishing shop, on land owned by him, bordering on Bent's Creek. The building is to be 100 by 60 feet, and work is being pushed forward quite rapidly. The Neck may once more see a revival of business, and as lively again as it has been in the past. A few such men as Mr. Murdoch are needed, both at the Neck and the Point, then we might see this part of the town grow as rapidly as the South and West districts.

Mr. Jas. F. Harlow, Mr. H. M. Federhen, Jr., and Mr. James H. Slade, Jr., returned to Cambridge on Thursday, at the opening of Harvard College. Messrs. Harlow and Federhen entered the work of the Junior year, and Mr. Slade as Freshman, he having had to lose a year's time on account of illness.

ATLANTIC.

This has been a good week for smelts.

How bees will make a young man hop when they get inside his trousers.

We had our annual interview with Mr. Chase Parker this week, and he wished us to publish it in full, but more pressing news has crowded it out. However, he wanted the Assessors to know that the valuation was too high, the tax rate, also. Then Atlantic streets and sidewalks were not properly cared for by Messrs. Board Commissioners. The Quincy school he thought was all right now, since the change of teachers.

The Dot, a small boat capized in the river Wednesday morning, immersing four lads who had a narrow escape.

Mrs. J. A. Kendall visited in Framingham and Fitchburg this week.

Poetry.
October.
October comes across the hill
Like some light ghost, she is so still.
Though her sweet sleep is so deep,
And through the floating thistle-down
Her trailing, lily-tinted gown
Gleams like a crimson pop.

The crickets in the stable chime;
Lustrous flash out at milking time;
The day's last red ruffles
The wafts the honeyed pippins try;
A film is over the blue sky,
A spell the river muffles.

The golden-rods fade, the thistles
The spider's gauzy veil is spun
The day's last red ruffles
The wafts the honeyed pippins try;
A film is over the blue sky,
A spell the river muffles.

But filled with fair content is she,
The spider's gauzy veil is spun
The day's last red ruffles
The wafts the honeyed pippins try;
A film is over the blue sky,
A spell the river muffles.

As if no foot could ever be,
To dim her brown eyes' lustre;
And much she knows of fairy folk
That dance beneath the spreading oak
With twinkling mirth and laughter.

She listens when the dusky elves
Step softly on the fallen leaves,
And must be that she can hear,
Beyond November's grim and drear,
The feet of Christmas near.

Susan Hartley in St. Nicholas.

Miscellany.
Mount Wollaston Papers.

BY E. W. UNDERWOOD.

Soon after the settlement of Plymouth, says Morton, "Some of the company, in wandering about upon discovery, came upon an Indian grave, which was that of the mother of Chikataubut.
Over the body a stake was set in the ground, and two deer skins sewed together, spread over it; these the English took away. When this came to the knowledge of Chikataubut, he complained to his people and demanded immediate vengeance. When they were assembled, he thus har-angued them: 'When last the glorious light of all the sky was underneath this globe, and birds grew silent,
I began to settle, as my custom is, to take repose. Before mine eyes were fast closed, methought I saw a vision,
at which my spirit was much troubled,
and trembling at that doleful sight,
I sprang aloud: Behold! my son,
whom I have cherished; see the pale that gave thee suck, the hands that clapped thee warm, and fed thee; and now thou art thus to lie in the arms of death! This occurrence is the work of evil spirits, and they will soon be upon thee. Before mine eyes were fast closed, methought I saw a vision,
at which my spirit was much troubled,
and trembling at that doleful sight,
I sprang aloud: Behold! my son,
whom I have cherished; see the pale
that gave thee suck, the hands that clapped thee warm, and fed thee; and
now thou art thus to lie in the arms
of death! This occurrence is the work of evil spirits, and they will soon be upon thee.'

His death was the result of the discovery of the body referred to above, and the Indians were conspiring to exterminate them. At all events on the 23d of March 1623, the Government of the Plymouth Colony made a declaration of war against the Massachusetts Indians, and two days after, Capt. Standish with eight men, called on the Indians, and the Governor men when they commenced preparations. After manoeuvring some time on the morning of the 27th, Standish under pretext of feasting the Indians with pork and other provisions, which he had brought for the purpose succeeded in getting four of them, Wittunnet, Peckonnet and Aberkist, three of Chikataubut's war chiefs, and a young brother of Witwunnet into a room and while they were eating, closed the door and with his men fell upon them, and after a desperate struggle put them all to death. Three more were subsequently killed, when Standish returned in triumph to Plymouth carrying as a trophy the head of Wittunnet, the first public exhibition of the news of this heroic act of Standish rehabilitated Chikataubut's village, the inhabitants in revenge for the murder of their countrymen immediately murdered three of the Weymouth men who had resided with them since the time of the hanging before referred to. Previous to the departure of Standish, the Weymouth men had concluded that Wessagusset was not a safe place for them, and they made hasty preparations to leave, a portion going to the coast of Maine, and the remainder to Plymouth with Standish. Thus ended the first experiment of establishing a trading post among the Massachusetts.

In the following September another company passed upon the Monaquot river, and settled on the spot deserted by the Weymouth colony. This was George Corpany and was composed of a number of families, among them some persons of eminence. A few months' experience in this wilderness sufficed for Mr.
Gorges, and he and the larger portion of the company returned to England.
A few of them remained and a few years later became prominent in the affairs of the colony, among them undoubtedly were Blackstone, Maverick, Waldorf, Jeffrey and Burley.

From this time, the Indians began to find the English springing up around them like mushrooms, and unlike Standish's, and Weston's men, who were continually provoking them, these new people for many years were engaged in trade with them and appear rather to have courted their friendship than otherwise; this friendly feeling existed not only with the planters and traders, but extended to Governors Vane and Winthrop who found them faithful allies in times of necessity.

Some writer has truly remarked that "had every Indian inhabitant who attended the voyagers and informed them that the squaw Sachem, meaning the widow of Namsamshet, lived across the bay whereupon they departed.
[The early writers were evidently mistaken in the location of Obatainwat, as he was Sachem of Shawmut, a Massachusetts Sachem.]

Western belief that families were an incumbent. They left London towards the last of April 1622, and arrived at Plymouth about the end of June, where they remained a few weeks and finally reached Weymouth about the first of August. During their short stay at Plymouth they acquired an unenviable notoriety, as one would infer from the following hint given to Governor Bradford by Robert Cushman, who in mentioning them says: "If they borrow anything of you let them leave a good pawnee." Thomas Morton, who undoubtedly came with them, and of whom much will be said hereafter, describes them as "men made choice of at all adventures." In less than two months their provisions, of which enough had been furnished for the winter's supply, grew scarce, and they went to Plymouth for more, what they secured lasted them until January.

When they began to want, and commenced trading for corn and game with the Indians; in a short time they had disposed of about all they had possessed, some had even stripped the clothes from their backs. They then began to feel the want of the necessities of life, and longing for their wood and water for a mere pittance of corn, and before the winter was closed they had so degraded themselves before the Indians that they despised them and would neither give, lend, or sell them the necessities of life, and forced them to live upon clams and such nuts as could be found in the woods. Their only recourse now, was to steal from the Indians, which they did at every opportunity; finally one was detected, and he was hanged. The next morning a portion of them became intimate friends of the Indians and a terror to the Puritans, are facts which will be given in a succeeding chapter.

Governor Winthrop in his History of New England relates the following of Chikataubut. On the 23d of March, 1623, the Governor and the Boston, "accompanied by many of his sailors and squaws, and presented him with a hog's head of corn, and they had all dined and had each a small cup of sack and beer, and the men tobacco, he sent away all his men and women, (though the Governor would have stayed them, in regard of the rain and thunder.) Himself and one squaw and one sailor stayed all night, and, being in English clothes, the Governor set him at his own table, where he behaved himself as soberly as an Englishman. The next day after dinner he returned home, the Governor giving him cheese and peas, a mug and some other small things."

On the 13th of April, following, he again called upon the Governor, this time to trade. He desired to buy clothes for himself, the Governor informed him that "English Sagamores did not use to trade," but he called his tailor and gave him an order to make him a suit of clothes; whereupon he gave the Governor "two large skins of coat beaver." In a few days his clothes were ready, and the Governor put them on a very good new sum Chikataubut to trade. He set them before him; but he would not eat till the Governor had given thanks, and after he desired him to do the like, and so departed.

For some offence committed by some of Chikataubut's men, he appears before the Court on the 18th of May, 1623, and "promised satisfaction for whatever wrongs any of his men may do to the English, to their cattle, or any other ways."

On the 14th of June following, he was ordered to pay a small skin of beaver, to satisfy for one of his men having killed a pig," belonging to Sir Richard Saltonstall.

On the 27th of September of the same year, one Mr. Josias Plaistowe and two of his servants having stolen four baskets of corn from Chikataubut, the court "ordered that Josias Plaistowe shall return eight baskets again, be fined £5, and hereafter to be called by the name of Josias, and not Mr., as formerly he used to be; and that William Buckland and Thomas Andrew shall be whipped for being accessory to the same offence."

In August 1622, two of Chikataubut's men were convicted of assassinating some persons in Dorchester, they were put in the bilboes and Chikataubut "himself required to beat them, which he did."

From Drake's History of Boston, we learn that on the 12th of April 1632,
"Chikataubut with many of his men about sixty) joined the Narragansetts in

SUPPLEMENT.

The Quincy Patriot.

SATURDAY, OCT. 9, 1886.

A BIT OF DRIFT.

*Brutus Cassius Danks? Are you going after that water, or do you expect the spring to come to you?

The man thus pointedly addressed slid slowly down from the fence where he was sitting whittling, closed his huge jackknife by pressing its point against the rail, and shuffled toward the house.

The woman in the doorway watched his leisurely approach with an expression curiously mingled of indifference and irritation.

A small, stooping figure, with a weak slope to the chin and shoulders; the flaccid face with a fringe of hay-colored beard, and surmounted by a sunburned hat; the loose, unshapely clothes which seemed to have adapted themselves to the wearer's habit of mind—was this the pink-cheeked, trim young fellow who courted her fifteen years ago?

"I was a-thinkin', Malviny," he said, taking the pail from her outstretched hand, "that a ketch of fish would taste kinder good. We've had mush pretty stiddy lately."

"It ain't my fault," said the woman, shortly.

"No! I s'pose it ain't," he rejoined slowly, as though the fact occurred to him for the first time.

Just then a little two-headed girl ran round the corner of the house.

"Where are you goin', daddy?" she called.

"Down to the spring. Want to go, Capito?" he answered.

She looked lovingly at him with her dim-blue eyes, slipped her grimy little hand into his, and trudged off beside him.

The woman stood on the doorstep looking after them. "They are well mated," she thought bitterly. One has about as much idea of getting a living as the other."

She had not lacked warnings years ago; Malvina Frost, with her slim, straight figure and snapping black eyes, was the blondest girl in town; and mothers of marriageable sons had not hesitated to engage in her hearing upon the "Danks selfishness," reinforcing their own opinions by sundry old proverbs, such as "What's bred in the bone will come out in the flesh," and "Like father, like son."

But Malvina only tossed her black curls, and went her own way.

So, one June they were married, and went to housekeeping in a little house on the bank of the Ohio; and Malvina, in the strength of her youth and love, felt able to move mountains, but she found the partition of inherited selfishness too much for her.

He had done well for a time. The little stage was neatly fixed up, and when, a year after, the first baby came, the young father, with his own hands, fashioned for his cradle that was the wonder and envy of the neighborhood. But hereditary was too strong for him, and though the cradle had six successive occupants, its first coat of paint was never renewed. Mrs. Danks had never heard of Sisypheus. If she had she would have found her task very much like his, with the exception that hers was infinitely harder and more hopeless.

What was it? Mental, or moral, or physical weakness, or all three? Or an ill fate, that whatever he turned his hand to immediately failed? Even his name seemed an unkind fling of fortune. His mother having attended, shortly before his birth, the performance of some strolling actors, was so much impressed that the name of Brutus Cassius was waiting for him when he arrived upon the stage where it was to play so insignificant a part. It was seldom, however, that he had the credit of his full name, for the community which he grew up delighted in abbreviations. But even their rough familiarity led to a man "Brute" to his son, so he was dubbed "Cash," a perpetual satire upon him who rarely had any cash in pocket. Against all the odds Mrs. Danks had fought a good fight; but in the struggle her straight back had been bent, and the snap had gone from her eyes and her voice.

Somehow the load pressed heavier than ever this morning. It might have been because it was early spring, and the air was full of that indefinable sense of expectancy, that vague hint of rejuvenation that would touch everything except the Danks' fortunes. And perhaps it was because the flour barrel was empty; but, whatever the cause, Mrs. Danks turned from the doorway thoroughly wretched.

Half an hour later Mr. Danks sauntered in with the water, the child followed with a string of two or three fish.

Setting the pail down, he said in a deprecating way: "I hev about c'ncluded to take up Badger's offer, and go up to Cooperville."

She made no answer, and he continued: "Ef anythin' sh'd happen, I could come home."

"O, yes!" she answered "you could come home easy enough."

The man winced, and his sallow face reddened.

"I don't s'pose I'm a master hand at gettin' a livin', but I tell ye, Malviny, fate is agin me. Just as I got a job across the river that felon came on my finger, and when I had a chance on the bridge, out of twenty men I was the only one the derick hit when it fell. You didn't ought to be castin' it up agin me that I hed to come home; it's fate."

"Call it by what name you like," she answered, bitterly, "it's made an old woman of me before my time."

He made no reply, but went out on the doorstep, where the little girl joined him, and presently his wife heard him say:

"Daddy's goin' away. Is Capito sorry?"

"Real sorry?" said the child; adding, "What'll you bring me, daddy?"

"How sh'd ye like a string of beads?" he asked, after some deliberation.

"Blue beads?" cried the child, then—with the unconscious selfishness of childhood—"will you go right off?"

Apparently he was hurt, for his voice quavered as he asked: "Which would ye rather hev—daddy or the beads?"

"Oh, you?" cried the child, throwing her arms round his neck and pressing her little face to his. So the hurt was healed, and they chattered quietly together till supper time, at which meal there appeared five black eyed boys, the pattern of their mother. People said the Danks blood had taken a turn in the boys, for they were as keen, tough-limbed, energetic boys as could be found in the county.

The following Monday Mr. Danks started for Cooperville. As he took up his limp carpet-bag he said, by way of feeble joke: "An't ye sorry to see me goin', Malviny?"

She looked at him a moment, then said coldly: "You'll be back soon enough."

He straightened himself and said, with an air of decision quite unlike himself: "You'll not see me again until my work is finished;" and so departed, followed only by Capito, who went to the road with him, and called after him not to forget the beads.

Mrs. Danks from her wash tub watched him going slowly up the muddy road, and as she looked her heart kindled a trifle toward him—the weak, kind-hearted, exasperating little man. Hastily taking her hands from the suds she took a bottle from the kitchen shelf and went to the door.

"Johnny!" she called to the tangle of boys before the door, "your pa's forgot his liniment. Run after him with it, for he'll be sure to get a lame back."

With a parting thrust toward his brothers the boy snatched the bottle and sped away like a young athlete, chin up and elbows back, as he had seen pictures of runners.

When he overtook his father and delivered his message the latter seemed really touched. Though indifferent, apparently, whether his house fell to pieces or not, he was homesick outside his own gate, and now was going away sore-hearted at the evident willingness of his family to part with him. The unexpected attention quite overcame him, and he looked round for something to return in acknowledgment, but the fields were bare.

Suddenly he spied by the roadside some pussy willows with their silvery, fuzzy buds, and cutting off a branch gave it to the boy saying: "Give that to your ma and tell her she's the best woman in Meigs County."

"Law!" said Mrs. Danks when the boy burst in with his branch and message: "Your pa's getting silly in his old age. I don't want such truck in the house."

But after the boy had gone she put it carefully in water and set it on the kitchen shelf, and several times she looked up at it with a look on her face which if Mr. Danks would scarcely have recognized.

That gentleman's absence made very little difference with his family, except Capito. His wife scolded a little less, and the boys, who looked upon him very much as another boy—only one who liked to sit in the same place too long—pursued their works and sports as usual.

But the Thursday after his leave their outdoor fun was cut short by a persistent rain. How it did pour! Hour after hour, all day and night. Friday morning dawned upon sweeping mists of gray, and an angry, boiling flood that crept inch by inch up its yellow banks, and night closed in on the same picture. Saturday morning the sun shone out bright and clear, but on what a scene of destruction! What had been a river was a rushing sea, which had blotted out field after field, and stopped just at their own gate, and which carried on its heaving surface trees torn up bodily, great timbers, buildings, and cattle. Toward night a large barn came floating down, and lodging just above the house, made a break-water, round which the waters whirled, bringing into the harbor thus formed all manner of wreckage. The boys watched eagerly, speculating at the amount of firewood thus laid at their door.

"Hi! That's a good one," cried one of them, as just at dusk something like a log appeared around the corner of the barn, balanced a moment, as though undecided, and then swept round into the little harbor. But it was getting too dark to see anything more, so they went laughing and scuffling to bed.

All night long mother and children slept quietly in the little house, lulled by the rush of swift waters. All night long in the little harbor the log swayed and turned, now swept away from the shore, now drawn toward it, as though reluctant to go.

In the morning, with the whoop and shout, the boys burst from the house, but in a moment were back again with white cheeks and chattering teeth, and, clinging to their mother, could utter but one word—"Father."

Yes! Fate had again been too strong for him. Mr. Danks had come home. They took up the poor body, bruised and battered, but invested for the first time in the eyes of those who knew it with dignity, and as they bore it across the threshold there fell from the pocket a string of discolored blue beads.

A little later they knew all there was to know of the pitiful story. His fellow-workmen had gathered on the wharf Saturday afternoon after work to watch the fresher. One by one they scattered to their homes up and down the river, and a neighbor seeing Mr. Danks called to him to come; but he shook his head, saying he was not going home till his work was finished. So they left him there looking down the river toward his home. One hour later the wharf was swept away. No one knew what had become of the solitary figure—save One. And as the poor body, without volition of its own, was guided through flood and darkness to its home, who can deny that the spirit—too weak to shape its own course—was borne on infinite pity into the eternal home?—Hester Stuart, in Chicago Tribune.

She found a large plug of tobacco in a coat pocket. "O, George! George!" she exclaimed despairingly, "you and I will never meet in the good world!" In another pocket of the same garment she found a life insurance policy for $5,000, of which she had before known nothing, and she burst forth exultantly: "O, yes we will! we will! Heaven will forgive him his one little fault!"—Chicago Tribune.

A Cloud of Butterflies.

One of the most beautiful sights in the world is the annual migration of butterflies across the Isthmus of Panama. Where they come from or whither they go no one knows, and though many distinguished naturalists have attempted to solve the problem, it is still as strange a mystery as it was to the first European who observed it. Towards the end of June a few scattered specimens are discovered flitting out to sea, and as the days go by the numbers increase, until about the 14th or 15th of July the sky is occasionally almost obscured by myriads of these frail insects. Viewed from a distance, or through a telescope, the spectacle is indescribably wonderful. As the sun shines on the millions of swiftly-darting wings, the result is a glistening and pulsating haze of golden green. When the wind drives them to the earth they can be caught in handfuls. Swallows and fly-catchers single out the largest and chase them often for miles. On being examined the butterfly is found to be of the beautiful Urania leilus species. Its wings are of a velvety black and bronze and golden green. Occasionally it is seen to settle on branches of trees and flowers before leaving land altogether. But in spite of the most active exertions of naturalists, the origin and destination of the insects are absolutely unknown.

THE NEW PAPER MONEY. The new one-dollar certificates, bearing the head of Martha Washington, are said to be the handsomest notes ever made. They are being printed at the rate of 20,000 a day, and will be sent in large quantities over the country. There is also a great demand for the new two-dollar certificates bearing the head of General Hancock. The new five dollar certificates, bearing the head of Gen. Grant, will not be ready for three months.

SMART. Jotham Johnson of Durham, Me., reached his 102d birthday last week. He is well preserved and can talk of things that happened one year or ninety-five years ago. His son, grandson and great-grandson all live under the same roof, making four generations in all.

GOVERNMENT BONDS. At the present rate of redemption all the three per cent. Government bonds will have been called by the end of the present fiscal year. The bonds which will then be uncalled for are four and a half per cent. $250,000,000, redeemable September 1, 1891 four per cent. $737,769,500, redeemable July 1, 1907.

HIGH TAXES. Persons who complain of high taxes should move up into New Hampshire. We know of one town among the hills where a piece of property is taxed for $30,000, at the rate of $56 on $1000, and the owner has a standing offer to sell the same for $15,000.

The Old Colony Steamboat Company is to introduce a system of line advertising on the steamers Fall River and Brockton which is now in vogue on the steamers plying on the western lakes. "Fall River Line" will be painted on each side of the boats, in letters of the same size as the name on the paddle boxes, and extending from the forward gangway to the stern. It may also be adopted in the passenger steamers.

A remarkable freak of nature can be seen in the garden of Rev. Mr. White on Sewell street, Augusta, Me. A squash vine crawled up a tree as it grew, and upon one of the limbs bore a squash. Strange to relate, a miniature vine issued from the stem of the squash, passing completely around it, closely encircling it, and to the limb again, furnishing a substantial support for the fruit.

Twenty-two years ago Patrick Driscoll, just arrived from Ireland, found a pocket-book containing over $150 in Salem, N. J. He told his employer, who advised him to keep it until the owner appeared. The other day Charles W. Dunn happened to speak in the presence of Mr. Driscoll, now a prosperous merchant, about his brother, Samuel Dunn, now dead, losing a pocketbook years before. Mr. Driscoll at once took a book from his pocket and handed it to Mr. Dunn, who identified it as the one his brother had lost. He was asked to count the money. There was just $151.78. Mr. Dunn tried to get Mr. Driscoll to keep the money, but he refused. He said it was a load off his mind to get rid of that $151.78.

From the Braintree Observer.

Banking.

The following open letter which appeared in certain of the Boston papers beginning of the week, from the pen of our highly respected townsman, Amos W. Stetson, Esq., we copy with pleasure. It is able and very opportune, and shows that "blood will tell," as the late Caleb Stetson, the writer's father achieved a wide reputation as an authoritative writer on the science of practical banking:

To the Boston Clearing House Association:—

The custom which has prevailed with the Boston Banks for some years of loaning their surplus funds to each other after morning settlement at the clearing house is one of very doubtful utility. It began many years ago in occasional loans, but of late years has degenerated into a regular trade between cashiers and settlement clerks, by which they dispose of their surplus funds and establish the rate of interest which shall be paid therefor.

It seems to me that this constant borrowing and loaning with each other forms no part of the legitimate business of our city banks. One of the first elements of sound banking is for each and every bank to hold the full control of its own resources, and so manage those resources that it should be in condition to accommodate its patrons and meet its liabilities, without being obliged to rely upon its neighbor banks for assistance. Of course, occasions may arise when it would be the duty of a bank to loan or assist its neighbor bank, but no prudent banker can justify or approve of the management of those banks which are found in a condition which compels them to be constant borrowers.

Now, while I am willing to admit that it is very pleasant and agreeable for a bank, having a handsome surplus unemployed, to find another bank which can use it, and will borrow it; yet, such loans are, in my opinion, illegitimate, and have the tendency to render such banking extra hazardous.

In my judgment the custom of loaning and borrowing as it now prevails at the Boston clearing house is fraught with injurious effects, not only to the business interests of Boston, but to all our financial institutions.

In the first place such a custom stimulates and encourages the imprudent expansion of bank loans, because borrowing is rendered so easy that banks whose entire available resources are already employed are tempted to borrow any temporary surplus which may be thrust upon them.

Second—Such a custom weakens the condition of the banks by exhausting their surplus reserves, for, instead of holding any surplus which a bank may gain, thereby strengthening the bank's resources, the feeling now prevalent is that every dollar which a bank holds above its legal requirements must be loaned at one rate or another to some neighbor bank; and the result is, that the weaker and borrowing banks continue to expend their loans, until, owing to the depletion of reserves, they are called upon to pay; when, to their dismay, they find they are so deeply in the mire that they are forced to pay almost any rate of interest which may be demanded.

Third—Such a custom makes the rate for money contingent upon the wants of the borrowing banks. The banks whose reserves are for any cause depleted depend upon their neighbors for a supply, and the loaning banks are of course glad to meet that demand, and loan their surplus funds at the best rate obtainable, whether high or low. The rate must, therefore, in the very nature of things under the present pernicious custom be erratic and unstable. As the banks having a temporary surplus may hold it for a day or two, they are, of course, anxious to make something out of it, hence are eager to loan it at the best rate they can get. And if, perchance, some bank should gain a small amount for which it could not find a borrower, then, to effect a loan, down goes the rate to some borrowing bank which does not really want it, except as it may be used effectively to break the rate for other indebtedness. And so day by day the rate is reduced by the skill and manipulation of the borrowing banks; and so day by day the borrowers in the general market avail themselves of the clearing house manipulations to break down the rate of the outside market.

This action on the part of the settlement clerks and cashiers by which they make an artificial rate on a mere temporary or fleeting surplus is, construed by the community generally as establishing a market rate for money. Hence we find many borrowers waiting upon the street corners every morning to hear what rate of interest the necessity of our bank reserves has established.

Fourth—Such a custom is often the cause of frequent and violent fluctuations in the rate for money. This arises from the fact that the exigencies of some of the banks are such, owing to the unwise inflation of their loans, and the depletion of reserves, that when called upon to pay, they are compelled to strengthen their reserves at any cost. These banks, having been borrowing their neighbors' surplus at the clearing house, have not only used up their own reserves, but have been depending upon their neighbors, and when the call comes to pay, then the rate goes up like a rocket. Such sudden and violent fluctuations are disturbing forces in our financial and commercial circles, and calculated to bring into disrepute the management of our banking institutions.

Nothing connected with our banking institutions creates greater surprise among the bankers of New York than the mention of the fact that the Boston banks loan their money to each other at the clearing house. Such a thing would not be allowed by the banks of New York. Whenever a New York bank wishes to borrow money of a neighbor bank it is at once considered a sign of weakness. How different it is here! Why, this custom has become so much a part of our being that we are led to look upon the borrower as stronger than the lender, and upon the bank which can borrow and use the most of its neighbors' resources as the most brilliant of them all.

Where banks have been so long addicted to such a practice, it is useless to attempt to break it up at once, and I suppose it will continue until some great disaster shall discover to the banks their greater folly. But it seems to me that it might be wisely checked by establishing a fixed rate of interest for all loans made between banks at the clearing house.

If the rate cannot be fixed permanently, then let it be fixed once every month, and then we shall be relieved from a rate which changes every day in the week and which is dependent upon the condition of some bank which happens to gain or lose at clearing.

If the rate could be fixed at 6 per cent for every loan made at the clearing house it would be of great advantage to the business and financial interests of the city, for it would tend to strengthen the reserves of our banks, check inflation and make our banks much more self-reliant.

AMOS W. STETSON.
Boston, Sept. 25, 1886.

A frightful increase in mortality among the infants in New York has alarmed the health authorities. The greatest proportion of deaths is in the tenement house districts. In former years the city has employed a corps of physicians and inspectors to make daily tours through these districts for the purpose of giving free advice and prescriptions and to see that the sanitary arrangements were good. This year a freak of municipal economy cut off the $10,000 appropriation for this service.

When a countryman, down in Maine, saw Mr. Jay Gould for the first time last summer he ejaculated: "Well! you look 'n' act 's if you wa'n't wuth $1000." When the same countryman first saw Mr. Cyrus Field, he yelled: "B' gosh! you look 'n' act 's if you owned the yearth, 'n' had a mortgage on heaving, b' gosh!"

Captain Sanborn, master of transportation for the Old Colony railroad, has made an estimate of the number of passenger cars entering and leaving the Boston station daily the present season, and finds the average to be 900 for each week day. Of this aggregate about 200 are "empties," that is, cars without passengers going out to or coming in from the South Boston yards, leaving about 700 cars with passengers aboard outgoing and incoming daily at the station.—Ex.

Found Him Fair.

"You say," continued the lawyer in the cross-examination of a witness, "that Jones is your friend?"

"Yes sir."

"What reason have you to believe that he is your friend?"

"We have associated together for ten years."

"Well?"

"We never had a word of dispute."

"Well?"

"I have always found him fair and square."

"That may be, but did you ever ask him to back a note at the bank for you?"

"No, sir."

"Then you don't know him—don't begin to know anything about him, sir, and you shouldn't assert that you did."

BUYING ESTATES IN EUROPE. Wealthy Americans are following the example of Mr. Winans, the Baltimore millionaire, in the purchase of important estates in European countries. Lately two islands, Loppin and Kalven, in the north of Norway, were purchased by an American for the sum of $5,000, which was considered a very small amount for the property, as it affords good sporting and fishing opportunities.

Loppin is about eight miles, and the smaller island three miles in circumference, and the shooting consisted of snipe, ptarmigan, wild geese and wild fowl of every description, while in addition there was any amount of sea fishing. The climate was beautiful in summer, and the scenery very grand. Ancient estates are also rapidly coming on the market in England.—San Francisco Chronicle.

SATURDAY, OCT. 16, 1886.

The Public Schools.

Several changes have recently taken place in school teachers in the different schools of the town, in each case the cause is increased salary elsewhere.

The Washington school is to lose Mr. Seal, the principal, who is going to the Prescott school in Charlestown. Mr. George M. Wadsworth of Adams takes his place. Miss M. E. Dickey, of the B Primary in the same school, has resigned to accept a clerkship in the Treasury Department at Washington.

Miss Agnes J. Coulman, who has taught the B Grammar at the Adams, has gone to the Dwight school, Boston; Miss E. Leslie Baldwin late of Milford, filling the vacancy. Miss Cora L. Young, for many years a teacher in town, has gone to the Harris school, Dorchester.

Mrs. Lydia L. Follett's successor at the Codding, is Miss Clark of Auburn, N. H. Miss Mary E. Nightingale is the teacher of the B Primary instead of Miss Esther Fletcher, as published in the list a few weeks ago.

Miss Emma S. Curtis, one of the teachers at the brick schoolhouse has resigned and accepted a position in Somerville. Miss Irene M. Hall is her successor. Miss Minnie P. Underwood is transferred from the Willard to the brick schoolhouse, having been found necessary to open the fifth room in that building. The new house now accommodates 258, three rooms of sixty each, and two of fifty.

Mr. Charles M. Carter is unable to attend the instruction in drawing this week, because of ill health, and his position has not been filled.

The free evening drawing school will be opened next week in Hardwick's hall, that for beginners on Monday and Wednesday evenings, and for the advanced class on Tuesday evening.

Village Improvement Society.

The Quincy Village Improvement Society held an annual meeting Wednesday evening, October 13, at Lyceum Room. An appropriation was made to replace the trees destroyed on Washington street, and to set out seventy-five more trees at the discretion of the committee on trees, Drs. Gordon and Faxon.

The society and all others interested in having social meetings to advance the objects of general improvement, are invited to meet at the residence of Judge Bumpus, on Tuesday evening of next week.

The organization numbers 93 members. There have been $601.52 collected from various sources in the thirty months of its activity. Between 300 and 400 trees have been set out, and with the exception of those on Codding street, where the old tin cans failed to afford that nourishment that might have been expected, a very small proportion died. Some generous citizens gave $50 in donations during the present season, and a new year opens under favorable auspices, despite the fact that there is room for more money, more work waiting to be taken up, and always room for new members. The society has considered the desirability of trying to bring influence to bear upon citizens to vote for appropriations for much needed sidewalks in the city.

The next general meeting will be held in January, but hopes are entertained of a general reunion and coffee party, which a committee has taken in charge.

The following officers for 1886-7 were elected: President—J. A. Gordon, M. D.; Vice Presidents—Mrs. E. H. Dowson, Herbert M. Follen; Secretary—Mrs. Annie E. Faxon.

Executive Committee—William B. Rice, Edward H. Dowson, William L. Faxon, Joseph L. Weston, Phillips King, Rev. D. M. Wilson, Mrs. Walter T. Babcock, Mrs. Theophilus King.

The annual visitation to Union Lodge, F. A. M., of Dorchester occurs on Tuesday evening next.

The ninth annual session of the Grand Lodge, Knights and Ladies of Honor was held in Boston Wednesday, during the term just closed one lodge was instituted and one suspended, leaving the total in the State, 40. A new lodge of Odd Fellows was instituted in Abington yesterday.

GRANITE BUSINESS. We are sorry to learn from one of our extensive granite dealers, that the advance in wages by the granite cutters this season, has greatly injured the granite business in Quincy. He considers that they "have killed the goose that laid the golden egg." Since the advance, he says, the orders for Quincy granite have fallen off nearly two-thirds, and have nearly doubled in other American granites, and Scotch granite. Barre granite has increased rapidly. One firm which usually employed six gangs now has but three, and other large firms are employing less help than usual. It is not wise for the granite cutters, who have families and homes in Quincy, to look well to this high pressure, before they are obliged to sell their property and move somewhere else, or to leave one-quarter of the time?

THE WAY THE MONEY GOES. Years ago, when the public library was erected in Quincy, a large reservoir holding thousands of gallons, was built of brick near the building. When the Water Company was able to supply our town with water, there was found no further use for the reservoir, and the janitor had the privilege of emptying the coal ashes and other waste into this large receptacle, which was quite a convenience. But soon the trustees, or somebody else, thought this altogether too nice and economical; and desiring to spend some money, hired men, horses and carts to bring a large quantity of gravel to fill the reservoir, and this week the top level has been taken off and the ground leveled and resodded. Now, more money will be required from time to time, to pay for carting away the ashes. It does seem a pity, when so good a receptacle was on the ground, it could not be let alone.

The 30th quarterly convention of the Massachusetts State Reform Club was held in Chelsea on Wednesday. The new president is John M. Deville of Haverhill.

QUINCY POINT.

WASHINGTON SCHOOL.

The Washington School has two of its efficient corps of teachers this week, in the resignations of Miss M. E. Dickey, teacher of the B Primary, and the principal, Mr. Seal. Miss Dickey, who has only taught at the Point since September 8th, resigns to accept a position in the Treasury Department at Washington, D. C., and left Monday night for that city.

Mr. Seal has been elected sub-master of the Prescott School, Charlestown District, Boston, and resigned. His position here the first of the week, but will remain until Superintendent Aldrich selects some one to succeed him.

Mr. Seal has been principal of the Washington for three years, and during that time his labors have been of a high order, and such as to command the respect and love of his pupils and the esteem of the teachers with whom he has labored. His place will not easily be filled, and on every hand are heard expressions of regret that the Point is to lose so able a man.

This is but another instance, that the salaries paid the Quincy teachers are insufficient to retain many of the most able, who would bring up the schools to a still higher standard of excellence, than they have reached at the present day.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Joseph L. Wilton has been spending the week in New York.

Master Charles Seal has been confined to the house for a week, threatened with typhoid fever.

Miss Nellie Harris has been spending a week with friends at Brookline.

Mrs. Mary Mead has had her house artistically painted by Mr. Kenison of Weymouth.

Mr. G. G. Whiton has been very ill during the week and is considered to be failing fast.

WOLLASTON.

Rev. W. D. Leland of North Weymouth.

will supply the pulpit of the Memorial Congregational Church next Sabbath morning. In the evening, Rev. F. L. Bristol the pastor, will preach, subject: "Religion—The Motive Power in Human Progress."

A lively and interesting meeting of the Village Improvement Society was held at the church on Monday evening. The people are getting aroused on the subject of needed improvement on our streets, and elsewhere in the village, and hope for some speedy action. Another meeting is called for Monday evening, Oct. 26th, when it is hoped all the community will be aroused in the matter.

All the boys have the smelting craze. The sloop yacht Albert was picked up on the beach at the Squantum Causeway, on Wednesday.

Nate has got his Andrew barrel of cider, but thinks Foster a bigger bill than he can swallow.

J. H. Lord has erected a tenement near his stable, but he does not wish the improvement Society to discuss its style of beauty and architecture.

Mrs. L. W. Lovell died on Tuesday, after about one week's illness. Her age was 54 years. She was highly respected by all who knew her, and her husband has the sympathy of his many friends in his bereavement. Her funeral took place on Thursday afternoon, and the services were by Rev. Mr. Catcott.

There was a very large attendance at the M. E. Church last Sunday evening. Next Sunday morning Rev. Mr. Knight will deliver the fourth and last of his series of sermons on "The Temptations of Christ."

The meeting of the Village Improvement Society last Monday evening at the Congregational Church was fairly attended. There was singing by a chorus and remarks by the president of the society—Mr. Charles R. Sherman, Rev. F. E. Bristol, Rev. F. H. Knight, Rev. B. B. Sherman, George F. Finkelman, Esq., and A. L. Baker. Good advice was given and "his hoped good results will follow."

The "funny man" of Wollaston was Oliver Graft, when he read the Advertiser's fearful malice in its last week's issue. The language, like its "politics," was very ambiguous, but the "funny man," after reading a few lines felt equal to any emergency. By the way, the "funny" man of Wollaston is a very numerous individual, and any slurs or insinuations might penetrate to the heart of the matter.

"Don't," Mr. Editor, undertake to be a second "Wiggins," but attend strictly to "politics."

Miss Mary Stinson is in Marblehead on a visit.

The Congregational Sunday school will hold their annual harvest concert tomorrow evening, at 7 o'clock. All are cordially invited to be present.

WEST QUINCY.

The stations on the Granite Branch will not lose or gain in train by the new time-table which goes into effect Monday, and the changes of time will be slight; viz: The 6:04 A. M. inward train will leave 6:08; the 10:04 and 10:03 and the 6:29 P. M. at 6:25. The train leaving Atlantic for East Milton will leave Quincy at 6:17 and be discontinued, and one will be added at 7:32. The morning train from Boston will leave at 6:40 and 8:17 instead of 6:45 and 8:00.

Mrs. Henry B. Lovering, wife of Congressman Lovering of Lynn, and Miss Cora French of Exeter, N. H., were guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Seal this week.

A man is not always the best judge of his goods, as was proved Thursday. An Indian had unloaded a supply of ice at one of the local stores when one of the clerks let him not 950 pounds, the Indian contended there was half a ton, but had to ante the cigars when the scales showed only 943.

Carpenters have commenced on Fitzgerald's new store.

Several horse lots on Common street are soon to be put up for sale.

A citizen would like to see a bell in the belfry on the M. E. Church that the clock might strike. But have there not been strikes enough in this part of the town?

The harvest concert at the M. E. Church last Sunday evening, was the best ever given in the church, and this is saying considerable, for most of the concerts are excellent. The exercise by the ten young ladies of the M. E. Church was very much admired. The church was crowded.

Sunday evening Rev. Henry Dorr talks on "Defalcations."

The advantages of a horse railroad to the Centre are frequently discussed, but the objection is not consummated.

The original of the recent earthquake on Cemetery street, not satisfied with his recent exploit, sought for still further honors in the pugilistic ring; his first encounter with the gloves resulted in a beef steak position. For further particulars inquire at the stock factory.

Fifteen were received by the Rev. Henry Dorr into the M. E. Church last Sabbath evening.

Rev. Garrett Bekman, of Rosindale, will preach in the morning in evening with the pastor, the M. E. Church. Rev. Henry Dorr will preach in the evening.

At the yards of F. J. Fuller, last Saturday, Judge Maloney, an employe about fifty years of age, met with a severe accident. He was unloading a team when he mistook a post for a wheel and a block of granite. His right leg was broken and other bruises sustained. Dr. Gilbert dressed the wounds, and upon his recommendation Maloney was taken to the Wollaston Hospital. His family reside in New Brunswick.

Dennis Crodon while plying a stone with a bar at Fuller's quarry, Wednesday, lost his balance and fell twenty-five feet. One shoulder was badly hurt and other bruises sustained.

MILTON.

The harvest concert, given at the East Milton Church last Sunday evening, was a decided success. The church was beautifully trimmed with autumn leaves, and there was also a choice display of fruit and vegetables. The recitations, by the various scholars, were very appropriate, and exceedingly well rendered. The singing was excellent, consisting of a solo by a member of the choir; solos, duets, and choruses by members of the School. The exercises were skillfully arranged by one of the young ladies, and a large, appreciative audience.

A petition has been circulated in East Milton, for an additional outdoor evening train, there being none now between 6:25 and 11

Superior Court, Dedham.

The following cases of interest to the citizens of Quincy and Milton came before Judge Aldrich, at the civil session of the Superior Court last week. We copy the testimony as found in the Dedham Transcript:

William Strong vs. Joseph W. Robertson, Edward Cary, Thomas W. Evans and Josiah Babcock. The defendants are stated as owners of a certain set of hay scales situated on Granite avenue, East Milton. Babcock keeps a general store, takes care of the scales and acts as agent. It is claimed that the scales have been set up for twenty years; that they are within the limits of the highway, and that the platform is, and has been, in constant use as a portion of the sidewalk. Strong stated his case substantially as follows: Am 53 years old; wheelwright by trade; have carried on business in various places for twenty years; moved to East Milton in June, 1884; April 1, 1885, opened a shop in Milton; worked at my trade and my son worked at blacksmithing; Nov. 3, 1885, started from my house to go down to the store; it was about seven o'clock; stopped in to see a neighbor named Adams; my youngest son was with me; started from Adams' about 7.30; had a wheelbarrow in which I intended to bring home articles from the store; my way led over the hay scales; the night was very dark; when I came upon the scales my left foot slipped down into a hole and got caught so that I had some difficulty in getting out; was thrown down on my left side; felt numb for a few moments; finally managed to get up, and walked home, but had a very painful time of it; when I got home the foot and ankle had commenced to swell; bathed them frequently; next day I was taken over to Quincy to see Dr. Marston; he put on a bandage; saw him again two days after; advised me to bathe the ankle and foot with warm water and bay rum; did so two or three times a day and frequently at night; suffered great pain; could not sleep nights very well; Dr. Marston called to see me frequently; did not go out of doors for several months; used two crutches at first, then one, and have used a cane since; cannot walk without limping, and my foot pains me much when I try to stand long on it; have done no work at my trade since the accident; was a strong, healthy man before that; Babcock came to see me while I was laid up; said that he knew there was a hole in the platform, and that it should have been fixed before; said to me: "Now, don't worry; we'll help you. If you want groceries, or want $10 you can have it!" I didn't know of any defect in platform before I fell into it; have walked on my heel and side of my foot since giving up the crutches.

Chauncey M. Marston, M. D., of Quincy, testified: Have practised three years in Quincy; Strong came over to my office the day after he was injured; I made a careful examination of his left foot and ankle; found that the ligament on the inside of his foot had been ruptured, and the ankle was sore and much swollen in consequence; much worse than a sprain; such an accident would have caused the injury; I put on a strong bandage to hold the foot in place; saw him two days after; his foot was still swollen; examined it to see if any bone was broken; found no indication of it; directed him to bathe the foot and ankle in wormwood and bay rum; called to see him several times at his house; he recovered slowly; don't think he will ever be well; the ligament will not join as strong as before, and his ankle will be weak and likely to turn over towards the outside.

Thomas Waterman, M. D., medical expert, of Boston, stated that he examined Strong Sept. 18, 1886; found indications of a fracture of the small bone of the leg and a rupture of the ligament on the inside of the foot; am familiar with many such cases; they usually entirely recover; in this case it is doubtful if Strong can ever put his foot down square to the ground; there is an inherent defect. (At this point Mr. Strong removed his shoe and stocking, and Dr. Marston and Dr. Waterman described his condition and probable future to the jury.)

The defence then called Dr. John C. Warren of Boston, another medical expert, whose opinion differed from that of the physician, as well as that of the physician, and the jury were left to draw their own inference. Dr. Warren thought that Strong had not exercised his foot enough, but, if he would do so in the future, he would entirely recover within three months.

J. Walter Bradley, selectman of Milton, testified that after the accident his attention was called to the platform of the scales; there was a hole in the left hand corner of the platform six inches wide and ten or twelve inches long.

C. F. West, a teamster, had driven over the scales and knew about defect.

Mrs. Strong stated that her husband was a strong man before the accident, and had done nothing since.

William T. Strong, son of the plaintiff, is a blacksmith, and worked before the accident in connection with his father; he corroborated his mother's evidence.

Josiah Babcock testified that he was one of the proprietors of the scales, and acted as agent; have kept the store near the scales for seven years; there were eleven persons originally interested in the scales; don't know who the others are, or who they were Nov. 3d of last year; have a list of names, but am not sure that all or any are proprietors except myself; knew of defect before the accident; went to see Strong when he was laid up.

Charles E. C. Breck, civil engineer of Milton, produced a plan of the scene of the accident.

John Sangster and Andrew McGee worked for Babcock at and before the time of the accident, but knew nothing about the ownership of the hay scales.

The defendant produced only one witness beside the expert. M. L. Spellman, of South Boston, stated that he worked for Strong in June and July, 1885; boarded with Strong, and used to walk back and forth with him, and that they almost always crossed over the platform of the scales. The purpose of the evidence was to show that Strong must have known of the defect, if he passed over the platform every day.

Counsel for defence claimed that Babcock was the only owner of the scales who could be held liable. He also claimed that the defect was not in the travelled part of the platform, and therefore not a part of the highway; that Strong was careless and negligent, and that he must have known of its existence before that night.

His Honor charged the jury that they must find that the defect was within the travelled portion of the highway or sidewalk; that the plaintiff was using all due care, and that he had no previous notice of the defect.

Verdict for the plaintiff in the sum of $700. Wellington and Kilton for the plaintiff; Wiggin and Fernald for defendant. The jury charged Babcock and Robertson with being the defendants, and found that Cary and Evans were not interested in the scales.

Joseph W. Robertson vs. Edward H. Adams. Robertson lives in West Quincy. He trades in horses to some extent. Some time in August, 1885, he obtained a horse which, from having been used on a barge, was run down and thin in flesh. He put him in a pasture and allowed him to run. October 1st W. T. Strong, of East Milton, came to him and wanted to get the horse. Robertson told him that the horse was not in good order to sell, but that he might have him on trial for a week or two. Strong took the animal away; and the next thing Robertson knew he had sold the horse to Edward H. Adams, the defendant. He then went to Strong and demanded a settlement; which was refused by the latter. Then he went to Adams and demanded his horse. He could not get him, and a short time afterwards sent an officer with a writ of replevin and took the animal home. He brought this suit to retain possession.

W. T. Strong stated that he bought the horse of Robertson October 1st; agreed to pay the sum of $75 by instalments of $20 per month; that he sold the horse to Adams for $85, nearly all cash; that Robertson agreed to take part pay in work; that he understood the horse was sold to him (Strong). Robertson claimed that nothing was said about a sale or pay by instalments.

Adams testified that he bought the horse in good faith, and that Strong told him that he had bought the horse of Robertson for $75.

Verdict for plaintiff, with damages in the sum of $1. E. C. Bumpus, W. G. A. Pattee for plaintiff. A. Wellington for defendant.

A MISLAIN CORPSE. In pulling down an old building in New Orleans, the workmen found an old but expensively trimmed coffin, and in it the body of an unknown man. It proved to be the remains of a wealthy Cuban planter and traveller, who died in Italy in 1856. His body was shipped to Cuba by way of New Orleans and was detained on account of some financial dispute. The coffin was put away and overlooked, and has just come to light.

The new postal letter sheet is to be abandoned as impracticable, it is said. The perforated and gummed ends of the sealed sheet break off in the mail and leave the letter practically open.

W. W. Corcoran, the Washington banker, is 88 years old, and has given more than $2,000,000 for charity.

In many skulls from Roman and Etruscan tombs Dr. Marter of Rome has discovered interesting specimens of ancient dentistry and artificial teeth. These latter in most cases are carved out of teeth of some large animal, and in many instances are fastened to the natural teeth by bands of gold. No filled teeth have been discovered. The skulls examined date back as far as the sixth century, B. C., and prove that the toothache and the art of dentistry are by no means modern institutions.

Miss Carrie Damm, of Cincinnati, was married the other day. Her name is known wherever the English language is spoken.—Atlanta Constitution.

In the month, the other boys had been enjoying themselves, playing "tag" and splashing about in the water like young dolphins. They were now wading up the bed of the creek toward the deep pool, having decided to take a final dive and then go home, when their attention was suddenly arrested by a cry of despair, which echoed in their ears for many a long day afterward.
"What was that, fellows?" cried Will Dean, holding his breath.
"Something like a pang," said one of the smaller lads, with blanched face.
"Twain! any wild animal?" said Ed.
McIntee, scornfully. Then, after a moment, "Maybe it was Goodsell."
"Who cares for him, anyway?" cried another, who had been much interested in the boy's narrative of the morning.
"Let's hurry up and see, at any rate," said Joe, "maybe he really has got into the hole."
The boys hastened on, hurrying and splashing, and in a few minutes they were partly over the rough rocks, bordering the edge of the creek. Just as Joe Goodsell came to the surface for the last time, they saw, who was somewhat in advance of the rest, caught sight of the white face rising above the water. There was a momentary struggle in the boy's mind as he realized the situation, and a voice seemed to whisper,
"Here's your chance, to pay him back, let him drown!" but dashing aside the temptation, he flung himself into the pool and caught at the hair of the drowning lad, as he floated towards him. In an instant they felt his grasp in a death-like grip.
"Let go," he cried; "don't hang on to a fellow's arms that way; I can't swim if Poetry.

My Neighbor.
No envious thoughts have I of him
My conscience to disturb;
I look with pleasure on his house—
And build mine more superb.
To act as if I knew him not,
I hold the worst of crimes;
Civility is very cheap—
I speak to him, sometimes.
I'm sure his welfare I've at heart;
And this I can't deny:
I wish I didn't make no bones about Saying, half as loud as I—

"KEY."
For the Patriot.
Everybody in the village knew like Sipp.
They had reason to. The grocer, upon whom he had played many pranks, knew him. Old Mrs. Smith, down by the Mill, whose husband had been dead "nigh onto forty years," and whose meek, white Aldrey was often found quietly munching the juicy tops of the ripening corn in the patch back of the house, knew they only too well.
Squire Goodsell was also somewhat acquainted with this young rogue. Many a time had he caught the boy severely perched among the branches of one of his favorite orchards sipping himself with the luscious cherries which hung temptingly within reach. Who could wonder that they sometimes got into mischief, with neither father nor mother to teach him to resist temptation? Yet Key was not unusually bad; he had a good heart, but was easily influenced.
Here he comes up the road, now. Let us take a glance at him. Not a bad looking lad by any means. Somewhat undersized, but with a manly, independent gait, he strides along the dusty road, his round blue eyes keenly alert for any kind of fun.
A fishing rod is carelessly slung over his shoulder, and his golden hair is flying in the wind, out of the top of his crownless hat.
"Hello, Key," cries someone at a turn in the road, and looking up, Key's glance rests upon the figure of a boy apparently a year or two older than himself, but much better clad than he. The stranger's place has been taken by a young man, and his eyes and smiling mouth are anything but attractive. It is Joe Goodsell, the Squire's son.
"Where you going?" he asks, as he comes up to the younger lad.
"Fishing," replies Key, shortly, attempting to pass the other.
"Guess I'll go along," rejoins the first.
"You ain't got no pole."
"O, I'll fix that," answers Joe; "maybe you'll let me take yours, Key."
It is a generous offer, and Key, who is in a generous mood, says, "Key, surely."
"Why not?" is the sharp query.
"Cos, I won't."
"Oho, you're mad over the thrasher's gun!" gave him last week, said his young "squire" Joe.
"I ain't likely to forget it in a hurry I guess," is the reply.
"Well, you deserved it, anyhow."
"I don't care if I did," says Key; "it was a damned mean trick you played me."
"Fishing!" replies Key, shortly, attempting to pass the other.

WE ASK A FAVOR.

Correspondents and friends are especially requested to forward items of news to the Patriot Office for next week's issue, as our regular reporter will be out of town. Rumor has it that he is going to Canada. Time will tell.

Board of Health vs. Robertson.

After several continuances the nuisance case of the Board of Health against Mr. Joseph W. Robertson, the proprietor of the Robertson Block, came on for trial last Saturday morning before Judge Humphrey. A similar case about a year ago, it will be remembered, was dismissed because of a defect in procedure. H. M. Sylvester, Esq., appeared for the respondents, and W. G. A. Pattie, Esq., for the defence. The case abounded in legal points and technicalities on the part of the defence. A motion to quash having been overruled, Dr. W. L. Faxon, secretary of the Board of Health was first put upon the witness stand. Objection was raised first against the admission of the records of the Board. Then whether the Rules and Regulations had been published in the Patriot, when a copy of the paper with it was offered.

MR. FAVOR TESTIFIED: Had visited the premises several times before Sept. 11; found a collection of sewage in the cellar of the Robertson House stable, about fifty or seventy feet from Hotel; was on the premises last year with Mr. Robertson, but not this time; did not know that was the owner; the sewage from this cellar ran through the wall into the cellar of an adjoining tenant. After being qualified as an expert he said: The sewage was a good stinking mass; it was liquid.

Cross-examined: There was sewage in cellar and adjacent to it; found manure in cellar also; when he filed with it Sept. 4, the cellar was pretty well filled with manure and liquid; it was not necessary to have manure saturated with liquid to produce it; it was done more or less; manure was not floating; neither was it dry or burnt on top; was perhaps fifteen or twenty loads there; in one corner liquid was shown; manure was shown; the sewage could trace the sewage from Hotel to this cellar, it first going into a small cesspool; the grade was very little if any lower at the stable than on Granite street; some surface water might run in; the adjoining premises were quite near the stable; if carriages were washed in the adjoining stable he would not say water might not run into the Robertson stable cellar; the pervasion of sewage from the stable in question was not in large volumes.

By Sylvester. The sewage running from the Robertson cellar was dark, and dirty and villainous.

By Pattie. The sewage could be smelt at Wilson's and on Hancock street; could be no doubt of it; his attention had been called to it at the post office by several; could not recall their names; a manure smell would not have been the same.

DR. A. A. GORDON, Of the Board testified: Made an inspection of the premises with other members Sept. 11; found conditions as described; had seen fluid of a disagreeable odor, strong stench, running from the Robertson stable to Merrill's, in a stream as large as his arm; there was a stench in the whole neighborhood.

Cross-examined: Had told J. H. Gavin to see what was necessary on the premises; and he had reported; thought the circumstances were the same as a year ago; it was not the province of the Board to provide a remedy, but to state the existing facts; he did not know the defendant counsel asked for a written statement of the remedy needed; water from washing carriages running through manure would not make such a smell.

J. F. Merrill, A. G. Durgin and Frank A. Spear, also testified, and the government rested.

Freight Accommodations.

There are very pressing needs at the present time of increased freight facilities at the Quincy station. The siding is always full of loaded cars, and at the present writing there are cars at Braintree and Atlantic waiting to come to Quincy to be unloaded. Then the siding at Quincy is not what it should be; but four or five cars can be unloaded at once, while there are four or five times that number always waiting. The business is very large and steadily increasing. The Old Colony should purchase a strip on one side or the other to Academy street, and open it up to the public. Patrons should be made of their inconvenience and indignation, but let it be heard.

FIRE EXTINGUISHER. On Tuesday evening, several hundred of our citizens had the pleasure of witnessing a free exhibition of the Edison Electric Fire Extinguisher on Temple street. A large open box filled with shavings and other combustibles was ignited and very quickly put out by this extinguisher.

The test that evening was not so good as might have been, if there had not been some misunderstanding. The operator expected Quincy citizens to have the word when to test the extinguisher, but from some cause the fire had consumed most of the light combustibles before the test was given. But by very general satisfaction, and many will consider the extinguisher a great success, and to have their shops and houses. Mr. P. H. Gavin is agent for Quincy, and can furnish all of our citizens in want of this valuable article.

GRANITE BUSINESS. On our third page will be found an interesting communication from a granite cutter, who seems to be well posted in regard to the granite business, not only in Quincy, but throughout the country. He says the Quincy bill of prices is lower than in other places, instead of higher, and he challenges any one to contradict it.

ACCIDENT. The ship yacht, Belle Brandon, owned by J. Q. Denton, Jr., of Quincy, was wrecked off Cape Cod on Saturday last, and the crew Allan Pratt and Charles Q. Marion, were rescued from their perilous position by a Pilot boat. An effort was also made to save the yacht but without success.

REMEMBERED. Crane Memorial Hall was prettily decorated with flowers and autumn leaves on Monday, the 18th inst., the anniversary of the birthday of Mr. Thomas Crane, who was a native of Quincy, and who was a member of the first Hook and Ladder Company in town, and for many years an active and interested member. He leaves a widow, two sons and a daughter.

Mr. Paul R. Blackman returned home on Saturday, from a two months' trip in the Provinces. His health is much improved by this outing and his friends are heartily glad to see him.

Mr. Benj. DeLoey, a native of Nova Scotia, who has been living at the Point for several years, has returned to his home on Saturday last for the land of his birth, where he owns a farm, and intends to make his permanent home. A rumor was current this week, that his family went to sea, while he took passage on a packet, with his goods, that the vessel had been cast away and all on board lost. But the report seems to be wholly without foundation, and it is now thought that Mr. DeLoey accompanied his family in the cars, and sent his goods by rail.

The choir from Little Wanderers Home, Baldwin Place, Boston, will visit the Point on Sunday. In the afternoon, the children will attend the Baptist service at 2:45 o'clock, and will probably be at the Congregational Church in the evening. After each service a collection will be taken for the Home.

Rev. B. B. Sherman of Wollaston, will exchange on Sunday morning, with Rev. Geo. Benedict, of Weymouth.

Secret Societies.

Isiah G. Whiton, a member of Rural Lodge, was buried with Masonic honors on Wednesday afternoon.

Mt. Wollaston Lodge, I. O. O. F., performed the last rites of the order over Bro. Ebenezer S. French, on Tuesday afternoon. Services being held at the Christian Church, and the interment at the Hancock Cemetery.

Which has just been promulgated by the Supreme Lodge; the working being done very well for the first time.

Maple Lodge, K. and L. of H., held an excellent meeting on Wednesday evening. Brother Foster, the Representative, gave an interesting account of the doings of the Grand Lodge at its session last week.

Four Chicago grocers have been fined $40 and costs for selling inflated butter.

WOLLASTON.

The first musical of the Wollaston Musical Society will be held at Mr. Lord's, the president's house, on Monday evening next. There should be a full meeting as the annual election of officers and other important business will come before the members.

The alarm from box 52, Sunday morning, was caused by a fire in an old shed on Farrington street near Squantum street. The building was entirely destroyed.

The new "time-table" of the O. C. R. R. went into effect last Monday but no improvement has been made in train service.

An "in" train about 12 o'clock is much needed, and at one time some of the "express" train out at about 5:30 P. M., but we suppose as long as the people remain passive, things will not be any better.

Mr. Wentworth who was so badly injured last week is quite comfortable and his speedy recovery is hoped for.

The smoke has been very dense at times this week, on account of the fires in the woods back of the plains. On Sunday and Sunday evening there was a brilliant illumination, and at one time some of the houses were thought to be in danger.

The "freemasons" have been beautifying the depot.

A sociable, harvest supper, and entertainment will be held in the E. Church next Wednesday evening. Quite an elaborate programme has been arranged and the young women having charge of the affair will undoubtedly make it a grand success.

Are you registered?

Mr. Leland T. Powers in "David Garrick" and the Mendocino Trio, gave the first entertainment in the Village Improvement Society's course on Wednesday evening. There was a good sized audience present.

Seth Bryant of Wollaston had a letter in Thursday's paper advocating putting raw material on the free list.

The Road Commissioners have commenced operations on Grand View avenue, and are also paving the gutter on Newport avenue, in front of the hotel and stores.

The Congregational Sunday School will hold their harvest concert last Sunday evening. One of the largest audiences we ever saw in Wollaston being present; extra seats had to be brought in to accommodate the people, and I think every one was well paid.

The exercises were of a pleasing nature: Singing by the school; quartette song, "I am a child of a King; solo by Miss Florence Edgerton; read by Miss Alice Prescott, Wollaston's popular soprano, and Mrs. N. G. Nickerson, who has been listened to with marked attention; remarks by the pastor, Rev. B. B. Sherman, were very interesting.

The decorations were especially fine, a tent being erected on the platform and tastefully adorned with wreaths of oak leaves. Above the tent were the words "Harvest House," of maple leaves. Other parts of the church were also trimmed with oak or maple leaves.

We should think that the people of Wollaston, who are so ready to respond to any call he may make upon them; and the want failure is never known with them, to carry out any program, or to make any plan, at short notice.

The death of Miss Grace L. Poole on Saturday, came unexpectedly to many of her friends, although it was known she was in ill health. She was a charming young lady for several years, and was very popular in Wollaston. At her funeral on Tuesday about one hundred of her coworkers in Boston were present, and very many friends from Wollaston and Quincy. There was a profusion of flowers, noticeable at that of "gates ajar." The interment was at Mt. Auburn.

In view of the hard times Rev. Henry Dorr made a proposition to the trustees of his society to reduce his salary from $1,200 to $1,000. He was refused unanimously to do so. Rev. Mr. Dorr has built up the church remarkably, it never being in as prosperous condition as now, and the people appreciate his services.

MILTON.

The Sewing Circle connected with the East Milton Church gave a supper at Mrs. D. O. Welch's on Wednesday evening. Nearly one hundred were present, crowded the house to its utmost. Bro. Woodward of the Milton News entertained the assembly with whistling, and Miss Fanny Pennington read.

Quite a change is taking place about the East Milton depot. The track has been raised sixteen inches and the platform correspondingly. The streets neighboring have been regraded. It is a good improvement.

Milton Hill is now at its height of autumn glory, and every acre of its broad stretch is filled with handsome turnouts, whose occupants have driven out from Boston, many of them, to see the foliage always so famous in that region. Among the summer residents still lingering at Milton are Mr. and Mrs. Oliver W. Penbody, Mr. Henry C. Wainwright, Mr. Henry A. Whitney, Mr. F. A. Obituary.

Mr. Isiah G. Whiton, who died in Quincy last Sunday, was born in Hingham, May 5, 1812. At the age of about twelve years he found himself dependent upon his own resources for a living. After working five years upon a farm, he was apprenticed to learn the sailmaker's trade, which business he followed until 1878, when his health being somewhat impaired, he gave up all business, and sought to take the rest and comfort, which an active and industrious life held in store for him.

He was a person who had no desire for public office, but at one time he held the position of Collector for Quincy, Braintree and Weymouth.

He was widely known and respected as a member of the Masonic order, being formerly a member of the Old Colony Lodge of Hingham, but owing to his residence in Quincy he severed his connection with the Old Colony and became an honored and respected member of the Rural Lodge of this town.

He leaves a widow and five children. His funeral took place at his late residence on Washington street, last Wednesday, and was largely attended, the remains being escorted to the grave by about fifty members of the Rural Lodge. He was buried in the Fort Hill Cemetery at Hingham.

It can be truthfully said, that an honest, kind hearted, good man has gone.

District Court, Quincy.

The liquor nuisance case against Mrs. Susan Doane, of Quincy, on complaint of Officer Faxon, attracted considerable attention Tuesday morning. J. L. Eldridge Esq., appeared for the defence, and W. G. A. Pattie, Esq., for the government. As usual, Mr. Faxon had a large number of witnesses—Mary Mulligan, Thomas Mulligan, Flora Leavitt, Mr. Parrott, Charles Foley, Benjamin Webster and Mr. Mullany—the testimony of the first mentioned being the most damaging. Over two hours were consumed in the trial, when Judge Humphrey thought there was probable cause, and held Mrs. Doane for the Grand Jury.

There was no business Wednesday.

Dennis W. Ford of Weymouth, drunk, $3 and costs.

Herbert Jones of Holbrook, for keeping a billiard table without a license; $10 and costs.

Joanna Fogarty of Weymouth, drunk, continued to Nov. 5th.

William Fowler of Weymouth, larceny, continued to Nov. 5th.

Benjamin Mulloy of Quincy, for assault; $5 and costs.

No liquors were found on the search warrants against Harry Farrell of Holbrook.

IMMENSE. The largest railway station in the world is that belonging to the North Western Railroad Company at Birmingham, England, and all its equipments are pronounced to be a first class in every respect.

We should think that the people of Wollaston, who are so ready to respond to any call he may make upon them; and the want failure is never known with them, to carry out any program, or to make any plan, at short notice.

The estimated cost of widening Beacon street in Brookline is $200,000.

OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT.

Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19, 1896.

The autumnal frosts that the park and foliage of Washington with brighter the entire city seem to assume a and gayer appearance. The President and his official family returned from the decks in the department filled; the reappearance of stylish gowns and the familiar crowd on the es; and a general increase of interest in affairs, all these are signs that season of social entertainments and feasts; of Congressional sessions in diligence; and of renewed labor in and business circles is close at hand.

Secretary Manning is back at his desk attending to his duties in the old. Contrary to the oft repeated asse of gloomy prophets, his work seems to be with him, and he looks better when he came to Washington. He has been working very hard, and sends much of his time to his annual.

It is believed that the main aim of the report will be his appeals for revenue reduction, and for currency.

The city is full of strangers. The approaching session of Congress is already by the presence of the usual advance of lobbyists and office seekers. are also a number of politicians here, who have come to make complaints relative to the President. The department and all other places of interest swarm with sight seers from the doors are opened in the morning the hour for closing.

The Treasury probably now interest-an any other of the Executive Departments. The State, War, and Navy and its occupy one building, which most ornate structure in Washington. The Post Office has five hundred rooms, where an inventory of the wonderful inventive skill American people. The Post Office man has many bureaus worthy of it, particularly the Dead Letter Office, where there is a unique and valuable collection of the mails in transit, and everything unavailable, from an tomahawk to a snake in alcohol, found.

Agricultural Department, too, is at this visit. It may be interesting who receive packages from this ment containing the seeds so nicely to know how this is accomplished, all the work is done by women. Paper pockets are cut by machinery, they are folded and pasted by hand, mounted and labeled. About 20,000 every day; each folder is required at least 1,000. Since the first of far from these million pockets were printed at the Department, wards the pockets are filled by dexterous with astonishing rapidity, then assorted, tied in bundles, and are sent by mail to all over the land.

The Treasury Department contains objects of interest than any of the mentioned. The structure itself is the oldest in this comparatively city, and has not the fresh look of the Government edifices here. Within may be seen the Rogues' gallery, a ion of photographs of counterfeiters; as display of counterfeit money; the Cash Room, inland with colored; the great silver vaults of the States, Uncle Sam's strong box; containing the pictures of all retarates of the Treasury; the dis- letters relating to the Consueance etc. of late another interesting on may be seen there. It consists number of articles of jewelry, silver-watches, portraits, etc., that were ly by the U. S. army during the war, posted in the Treasury. There are valuable and costly objects, the gold is of the best quality, one is handsome set of exquisitely ss, surrounded by pearls. One filled with rings, broaches, buckles, and lockets, all of pure native gold; the jewelry is broken, and spec-imens of having been collected in taste. One of the most curious in the collection is an old fashioned bull's eye gold watch, with its a quarter of an inch thick. There are some seals, graven with heads; and a number of precious stones, pearls, topazes, and others. eties are waiting for some one to them and prove their ownership.

Catarrh Cured

Catarrh is a very prevalent disease, with distressing and offensive symptoms. Hood's Sarsaparilla gives ready relief and speedy cure. From the fact it acts through the blood, and thus reaches every part of the system.

"I suffered with catarrh fifteen years. Took Hood's Sarsaparilla and it not only cured me with catarrh, but my general health is much better." I. W. LILLIS, Postal Clerk Chicago & St. Louis Railroad.

"I suffered with catarrh 6 or 7 years; tried many wonderful cures, but all without benefit. I tried Hood's Sarsaparilla, and was greatly improved." M. A. ADAMS, Worcester, Mass.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is characterized by three peculiarities: 1st, the concentration of remedial agents; 2d, the proportion; 3d, the process of securing the active medicinal qualities. The result is a medicine of unusual strength, effecting cures hitherto unobtainable. Send for book containing additional evidence.

Hood's Sarsaparilla does up my system, purifies my blood, shortens my life, and makes me feel better. J. J. JONES, Lowell, Mass.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla beats all others, and is worth its weight in gold." J. J. JONES, 130 Nassau Street, New York City.

SATURDAY, OCT. 23, 1886.

A Relic.

We found, that night, when, free from pain at last, she slumbered in the darkness below. In her old Bible, pressed and folded fast. A flower gathered fifty years ago.

Wondering, we scanned it, so brown with age. So withered, and with curious eyes read o'er the writing traced beneath it on the page—

A date, a dim initial—nothing more—Then asked, with eyes that filled, we knew not why, And hands that touched it gently, reverently.

What dear memorial of days gone by This little faded flower might be: Why had she kept it hidden there away Through all those years? What hopes, what joys that were, What golden memory of some fair day, Spoke softly from those withered leaves to her?

What potent talisman was this, to start To life again that old, forgotten time; Reviewing, in her child and wintry hair, The flush and fragrance of her youth's glad prime?

Had hand of lover gathered it that day, That fair, bright summer-day, so long ago? What sweet, shy dreams lay folded there away?

What maiden hopes and fears? We might not know.

Silent we stood. We felt a sense of shame, As those who, wandering, enter unaware Some holy place. Ah, me, we were to blame! Softer we turned, and left it lying there.

But when we gathered for our last, long look Upon her in her calm and tranquil rest, We drew the flower from the worn old book And laid it gently on her peaceful breast.

Farm and Garden.

The Apple Crop.

This staple crop of New England, which appears to be most disliked when it happens to be the largest, is likewise a staple crop of the entire Northern States and Canada. It is hardly expected that the crop of the entire country will reach the enormous figures of last year's yield, from the fact that the crop of the State of New York is much smaller and of an inferior quality.

Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Missouri and Kansas, however, are all producing a very heavy crop, but an exceptionally fine quality of fruit. The crop in Maine, New Hampshire and Massachusetts is pronounced a good one throughout. The Canadians think their apples a finer fruit than ours. A large yield will be had west and north, but between Montreal and Toronto the crop is reported light. As a whole, it will be fully up to the average, an increased number of orchards coming into bearing. Of the appearance and quality of the fruit there are conflicting reports. The crop in Nova Scotia is a heavy one, and a large surplus will be left for export.

The export apple trade of Boston is on a scale that is indeed surprising. The shipments so far this year are considerably in excess of last year. The Lombards of this city report their last season's exports to be 13,581 barrels from Boston and only 10,350 from New York; but for the season New York shows an export of 44,000 against 31,000 barrels from Boston. Yet, in comparison with last year, the showing falls short, having declined from 50,000 to 31,000 barrels, while from New York they have fallen from 68,400 to 44,000. The European steamers sailing from Boston carry out from 3000 to about 5000 barrels on every trip.—Mass. Ploughman.

PUMPKIN PIE. Bake and stew the pumpkin till it is soft and dry. It must be done slowly at the last to prevent scorching. Put through a colander or sieve and to one cupful of sifted pumpkin add one egg, three tablespoonfuls of molasses, one tablespoonful of sugar, a pinch of salt, one teaspoonful of ginger or nutmeg and one pint of cream. Stir well and fill one pie in a large plate. Bake the crust as for any pie, and turn the edges under on the plate, making a rim. Bake slowly.

FRUIT PUDDING. Chop six apples fine, grate six ounces of stale bread, add six ounces of brown sugar, six ounces of currants washed carefully and floured; mix all well together with six ounces of butter, a cupful of milk and two cupfuls of flour in which two teaspoonfuls of baking powder have been thoroughly mixed. If too thick add more milk in mixing. Spice to your taste. Put in a pudding bag, tie loosely and boil for three hours. To be eaten with cold sauce made of butter and sugar stirred together, a cupful of sugar to one-half cupful of butter.

A CHICKEN STEW. Cut up a fowl, fry up three slices of salt pork, add a small onion, sliced and cook until done. Lay in the chicken and season with salt and a little pepper, cover with water. When nearly tender add five or six potatoes sliced. Cover with dumplings. When the chicken is taken up there should be just liquor enough to thicken for a gravy.

The cleanest and most polished floor has no water upon it at all. The floors are simply rubbed every morning with a fine flannel cloth, which is steeped in kerosene oil once in two or three weeks. Shake clean of dust, and with a running broom go rapidly up and down the planks morning and night. In a rainy season the floor assumes a polished appearance that is not easily defaced by dirt or footprints.

An ounce of alum will purify a whole hoghead of foul water.

It is told in Washington that after a certain Senator, noted for his absent mindedness, had gone on a short vacation, this memorandum was found in his room: "Things to take along: one pair socks, one shirt, two collars, one pair cuffs, one tie."

Robert Smith of Lexington, Ind., told his black hair as the result of typhoid fever. Now his hair is covered with hair three inches long, very kinky like a negro's, but as white as snow.

According to Henry George, it costs a New York alderman double his salary to be elected. It costs a congressman from $10,000 to $80,000 and a mayor from $75,000 to $200,000.

Thursday, Oct. 21st, was the fifty-first anniversary of the great Garrison riot on Washington street, Boston. It was one of the most noted events of that day.

A GOOD ANSWER. Grace has very curly hair, and it was a great trial for her to have it combed. One day during this process she was making a greater disturbance than usual, when her mother said: "What will the neighbors say if you hear you making such a noise?" Posing amid her weeping she said, in broken tones: "They'd say, 'Why don't that woman spank that child?'"

"SPECT CAKE." Johnny has been in the habit of calling on grocery man and being supplied with specially selected goods, the barrel, which, although not very salable, are appreciated by his boyish appetite. Last week his yellow head came up to the counter and he inquired: "Dot any spect apples?" "No, Johnny; the apples are all gone." "Dot any spect oranges?" "No, not today." His head was downcast, his spirit sad, his mouth watering. A new idea came into his mind, and his face brightened as he asked: "Dot any spect cakes?" The cake was at once produced.—Wilmington Home Weekly.

Two IN ONE. A heartless man in the habit of the father of a family, a taxpayer and a member of the church, who ought to know better, did a mean thing last Sunday night. His daughter and the particular young man came home from church, and of course "he" just dropped in for one moment, and when the young people entered the parlor the gas was all turned up, and there, on the back of the big rocking chair they read a staring placard: "Hood's Sarsaparilla, and the young man said he was always did late mathematics."

Anecdotes.

He—"You are the only college girl I ever liked."

She—"Why, how so?"

He—"Oh, the others all know so much."

Mrs. Jones—"You won't be homesick, dear, while I'm away, with no one to play the piano for you?"

James (a brute)—"Oh, no, I guess not. I understand the new boiler shop across the river is about to run day and night."

Little Dot—"What does duty mean, Dick?"

Little Dick—"Why, it's to do everything you don't want to."

Tramp—"I have lost an arm, sir, will you?"

Passer-by (in great haste): "Sorry, but I haven't seen anything of it."

The story is told by a Boston newspaper of a country parson who, with that tact which distinguishes some persons, said to the local tailor: "When I want a good coat I go to Boston. That's the place. By the way, do you ever go to church?"

"Oh, yes."

"Where?"

"Well, whenever I want to hear a good sermon I go to Boston. That's the place."

"Is any one waiting on you?" inquired the polite salesman of a Westville maiden. "Well, I can hardly tell," she blushing replied. "Sometimes I think there is, and then again I ain't certain, but Will's so sort of funny, you know." And then she blushed again and asked to look at some lace collars.

The reward of sympathy—Young genius, "Well, good, by dear Mrs. Metham. It always does me good to come and see you? I had such a headache when I came, and now I've quite lost it."

Mrs. Metham—"O, it's not lost. I've got it."

Of a washerwoman who had few teeth, my little three-year-old lassie said: "Mrs. Jones must be a Japanese, tase she 'tan't talk plain."

To a visitor she said: "Has 'oo dot any children?"

"No, dear."

"Den dey hasn't dot any muzzer," with a punny quiver of the lips.

"100 Doses One Dollar" is true only of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and you can see the unspeakable argument as to strength and economy.

SUPPLEMENT.

Marriage.

Marriage is generally regarded as a civil contract, to which in many States it is so especially declared) assent of parties is necessary.

AGE OF CONSENT.

The age of consent varies in different States, being 14 in males and 12 in females in five States; in three, 16 and 14; in four, 15 and 14; in six, 18 and 15; in seven, 18 and 16; in two, 21 and 18, and in one, 21 and 14 respectively. In some States marriages under these ages can take place, the parents consenting.

In most States no man, and conversely, no woman, can marry his lineal ancestor or descendant; or his brother or sister of the half or whole blood; or his niece; or in two, the daughter of his brother's or sister's child; or in five, no nearer than would cousin. The degrees apply whether the person or his parents are legitimate or not.

So far as affinity is an impediment, a man cannot marry his father's widow or his wife's daughter in 22 States; or his grandfather's widow or his wife's grand-daughter in 18 States; or his son's widow or his mother-in-law in 19 States; or his grandson's widow in 13 States; or his wife's step-mother in 2 States; or his wife's widow in one State.

In these cases of affinity the prohibition continues, though the marriage is dissolved by death or divorce, unless it was originally void.

FORMS OF MARRIAGE.

The provisions of the statute as to the form or mode of solemnization are, generally, merely directory, the penalty for violations thereof being, in nearly all States, a small fine.

In most States a license must be obtained, or the intention to marry recorded in the office of the clerk of the city or town, or Register of Deeds or Probate where the parties live, or where the marriage is to be solemnized. Of all licenses issued, of all intentions filed, the clerk is to keep a record.

Banns. In three States, there being no license, banns must be published two Sundays prior to the date of the marriage.

In sixteen States a clerk of a city or town is not to issue a license unless the male is 21 and the female 18; nor in nine States if either is under 21, except upon the written consent or personal application of the parents, relations, master or guardian. If there be none in the State, such application is not required, this being the law in three States, Massachusetts, Maine and Oregon.

The clerk may require affidavits of age in seven States and also in six a bond that the parties have a legal right to marry, and sometimes may examine them under oath. In a few States legal objections to a marriage may be filed with the clerk or minister.

WHO MAY SOLEMNIZE.

A minister, priest, preacher, may solemnize. In ten States he must be a resident of, in two he must "labor steadily" in the State where the marriage is solemnized. In some States no conditions are prescribed. In one State (Rhode Island), any elder; in five States, any Mayor; in one, any Alderman (New York); in three, any Governor; in thirty-seven any Justice of the Peace; in two, any Recorder; in one (Mississippi), any County Supervisor; in Oregon, any judicial officer within his jurisdiction; in Florida, any notary public; any civil magistrate in New Mexico; any Chancellor, in two; any County Commissioner, in one; any Judge of the Superior Court in eleven States; Supreme, in seven; Probate, in five; of Record, in seven; county or parish, six; city, in one; judge, in one; and in nine States any Judge may perform the ceremony. In Virginia, any person who gives bonds in $500; in Illinois and Minnesota, any Superintendent of a deaf and dumb institution may solemnize. In Pennsylvania, if a certificate is obtained, the parties may join themselves before two witnesses, of which ceremony they must make a return.

As to the place where the ceremony can be performed, the only provision noted is that of Massachusetts, in which State it is provided that the marriage shall take place in the town where the person solemnizing it lives, or where one or both of the parties live.

An Eye to Business.

It is related that an Ohio widow owned a large gravel bank which a certain railroad company was very anxious to secure. Several propositions were made and rejected, and the President finally sent his private Secretary down with instructions to offer up to $14,000. The young man returned after a couple of days and when asked how the business had turned out, replied: "I will accept your offer." "You?" "Exactly. I married the widow and own the bank."

Remedy for Rheumatism.

To a medical man the announcement of a remedy for rheumatism is about as definite as a remedy for illness. There are various forms and any part of the body may be affected. It is therefore absurd to claim that the same remedy will relieve all cases. But there is a form of the complaint that is very common in malarial districts, for which we would suggest a treatment that has been highly commended by persons who have employed it.

Take one or two tea-spoonfuls of Rochelle salts in half a glass of cold water; follow this immediately with a glass of lemonade, which contains all the juice of a large lemon, and the requisite quantity of sugar to render it pleasant to drink. This simple treatment may be employed once or twice a day, according to the severity of the rheumatism. We are assured that this plan will cure in eight to twelve days any rheumatism of miasmatic character. The treatment is indeed based on scientific principles. Citric acid separates any excess of bile from the blood, and the Rochelle salts hastens its elimination from the system. This form of rheumatism depends upon the unhealthy condition of the blood caused by malarial poison; consequently no form of treatment could be more rational than the one above suggested. And nothing can be more absurd than to expect to cure rheumatism with liniments alone. These are simply useful in affording relief until more thorough remedies have time to act.—Hall's Journal of Health.

The Age of Horses.

A horse's life, with moderate care and good usage, is protracted to twenty-five, thirty-five or forty years. A gentleman at Dulwich, near London, had three monuments of three horses who severally died in his possession at the ages of thirty-five, thirty-seven and thirty-nine years. The oldest, it is to be remarked, was in a carriage the very day he died, strong and vigorous, but he was carried off in a few hours by spasmodic colic, to which he was subject. At Chesham, in Buckinghamshire, there was a horse thirty-six years old who exhibited no symptoms of senility nor any external signs of age, except being covered with warts. It was remarkable with regard to this four-footed Nestor that when an unusually hard day's work was required he was chosen as never failing in what was expected of him. A horse named Wonder, formerly belonging to the riding school at Woodwich, may be quoted as living to forty years. Mr. Culley, in his "Observations on Live Stock," mentions one he knew which lived to forty-seven years, having during all that time a ball in his neck received in the battle of Preston Pans, in the rebellion of 1715, which was extracted at his death in 1758; thus judging him to be four years old at the time he received the wound (and it was probable he was more), he must at his death have been forty-seven. But even these venerables were mere babies to the large horse of the Mersey and Irwell Navigation, which was well known to have been in his sixty-second year when he died.—Blaine's Encyclopedia of Rural Sports.

The Origin of Mosquitoes.

The Indians have a very satisfactory account of the origin of the Montezuma mosquitoes. The legend runs thus: There were in times of old many, moons ago, two huge feathered monsters permitted by the Manitou to descend from the sky and alight on the banks of the Seneca river. Their form was exactly that of the mosquito. They were so large that they flew to the earth.

Standing one on either bank they guarded their river, and stretching their long necks into the canoes of the Indians as they attempted to paddle along the stream, gobbled them up as the stork king in the fable gobbled up the frogs. The destruction of life was so great that not an Indian could pass without being devoured in the attempt. It was long before the monsters could be exterminated, and then only by the combined efforts of all the warriors of the Cayuga and Onondago nations. The battle was terrible, but the warriors finally triumphed, and the mammoth mosquitoes were slain and left unburied. For this neglect the Indians had to pay dearly. The carcasses decomposed, and the particles, vivified by the sun, flew off in clouds of mosquitoes, which have filled the country ever since.

MISSIONARIES. The Cunard steamer, Catalonia, which sailed from East Boston one morning recently, carried among her passengers the largest band of missionaries that has ever been sent to India. The band numbers seventeen, as follows: Rev. T. Johnson and wife, Rev. J. E. Cochrane, wife and children, Rev. W. J. Price, wife and children, Rev. W. Bushell, wife and children, Rev. E. W. Clark and wife, Rev. A. E. Carson, Rev. W. C. Calder, Misses Carrie E. Putnam, E. Lawrence, Ella F. McAllister, Sarah B. Barrows and Emma J. Cummings.

Your Girl's Thumbfatness.

The female thumb is said to be an important index to character. Women with large thumbs are held to be more than ordinarily intelligent; while women with small thumbs are romantic. According to certain authors, who profess to have been observers, a woman's hand is more indicative of her character than her face, as the latter is, to a certain extent under the control of temporary emotions, or of the will, whereas the former is a fact which exists for any one who understands it to profit by. Women with square hands and small thumbs make good house wives and gentle wives. This sort of women will make any man happy. They are not romantic, but they are, what is better, thoroughly domestic. Women with long thumbs have tempers, and generally a long tongue.

There is a hint in this to a lover. Let him the first time he seizes his mistress' hand, examine, under some pretext or another, her thumb, and if it be large, let him make up his mind as soon as he becomes a married man, he will have to be careful. Again, if a young man finds that his love has a large palm, with well shaped fingers and a small thumb, let him thank his stars, for she is susceptible to tenderness, easily flattered, very easily talked into or out of anything, and readily managed. But if she is a woman with a square hand well proportioned, and only a thoroughly developed thumb, then she is either one of two distinct classes of women—a practical female who will stand no nonsense, or a designing female, a woman who cannot be duped, or a woman who will dupe him.

Comfortable Travelling.

When the Emperor William travels every possible measure is taken to provide for his comfort. The Emperor's special train consists of three saloon carriages, connected with each other by a covered way. The imperial carriage proper is richly hung with blue damask, and at one end there is a small compartment in which the Emperor usually sits at the window when making short journeys. A small saloon next to this coupe contains a sofa and a spring seat opposite, which is the Emperor's camp bed. Near the saloon is the study, in which stands a desk with writing materials, whose appearance shows good wear. Upon a bracket above the desk is a small model of the column of Victory in Berlin. Adjacent to the study is a dressing room, fitted up with extreme care and good taste. A final room contains two small sofas, a leaf table and a large mirror.

A child was recently born in East Washington, N. H., that weighed but two pounds ten ounces.

Massachusetts Bananas.

In a Worcester hot-house are two banana plants, each eight feet in height. They are grown from two small plants set out three years ago, and this is the first year of their bearing. They present the same appearance as though they were in their native tropical climate, but of course the fruit does not mature so readily here, about four months being required, but, nevertheless it has a much better flavor than the imported. The leaves are from four to six feet in length, and about three feet wide, but not more than five leaves at once allowed to remain on the tree during the maturing of the fruit. This year's product are two bunches with seventy-five bananas to each bunch, and an interesting fact in connection is that just as soon as the fruit is picked the main stalk of the tree is useless, but a stalk springs from the dead one, which bears the next season.

The plant sends up two leaves, one inside of the other, tightly rolled together until the green roll has grown to two or three feet, when the blades unfurl. These leaves are followed by others until the stems of the leaves have formed a smooth trunk some eight or ten inches thick, composed wholly of these leaf stems. The new leaves resemble a calla in shape when maturing and previous to their spreading out. At the end of nine months a purple bud appears in the center of the leaves. Its lengthening stem soon pushes the bud beyond the leaves and it hangs down like a large heart. As the purple envelope of the bud falls off rows of buds are disclosed. Each miniature fruit has a waxy yellow blossom.

COAL TRADE. At present it appears as though the Boston tow boat owners intend to monopolize the eastern coal trade. They have been for the past six months buying up all the old American ships they can and converting them into coal barges. After these old ships have their spars taken out they have the cabins turned into carrying capacity, and all the houses are built above the decks, thus enabling them to carry from 2000 to 3000 tons of coal each, more than three times as much as the ordinary coasting schooner can carry. The barges are towed to and from Philadelphia by tug-boats, owned in Boston by the owners of the barges. This undertaking has proved a success, and is greatly interfering with the coasting schooners, as the barges are able to carry the coal at much lower rates.

THE DECORATOR AND FURNISHER. One of the most interesting and useful papers that has ever appeared in this useful magazine is that in the October issue, giving a number of designs for small pieces of furniture, such as brackets, sconces, book-racks and the like. Every article shown in the page is novel and practical. There is likewise a full page of Arabic borders and panels that will be of great value to artists and wood carvers. The latest importation in vases are illustrated and described in an appropriate article. Some new English patterns in wall papers are shown, together with good sensible directions for the selection of papers. A comprehensive article on Graining gives instructions how best to do that work, and will be of service to the trade and the amateur.

This fine magazine is published by the DECORATOR AND FURNISHER COMPANY, at 30 East 14th street, New York, and sells for thirty-five cents per copy. Copies may be seen at the office of this paper.

JOKING. A young lawyer of Ellaville, Ga., bantered a young woman at a social gathering to marry him. To his evident surprise she told him to get the license. He wouldn't be bluffed, and got the license at once, while others of the party sent for a clergyman. He knew nothing of the joke, and when the pair entered the parlor arm in arm he thought it strange that the spectators laughed. But he began solemnly, while the party wondered which of the two would weaken first, and the contracting parties each wished that the other would ask the minister to stop. When the first question was asked, the young man concluded that the affair had gone far enough and he broke ranks and fled, much to the young woman's relief.

MUST BE HUNG. It is again decided that the Chicago anarchists must swing, and the majesty of law be vindicated. It won't do in this country for every crank who has a hobby to start out and murder those who differ with him. We've tasted liberty and don't propose to give it up to despots whether their names are capitalists, socialists, anarchists, boycotters or what not. One man is as good as another in the eyes of the law, so long as he minds his own business and leaves others alone. This isn't a healthy climate for any set of men to force their ideas on other people.

In spite of continued protests wall paper is still the source of poison by means of arsenic. Of 88 samples examined 60 were found to contain arsenic, 34 having much arsenic, 17 having a trace of arsenic, 9 having considerable arsenic.

A miner in El Dorado County, Cal., who has struck a rich lead, has to carry the pay dirt on his back two miles over a steep hillside, but it pays him $100 a sack. He has taken out over $9000.

FEARFUL. A special from San Francisco says: "Private advices received in this city state that cholera is still raging fiercely in Korea. No idea can be formed of the extent of the scourge. It has more than decimated the capital, where, out of a population of 200,000, the death rate rules at the frightful average of a thousand per day. About as many Koreans as there are people in the State of California have been swept away already, and it is hard to say where the plague will stop. Korea is described as 'an appalling pest spot.' Never was there a more frightful record of the ravages of disease on mankind. The story of the plague of London is beggared by what is now going on in Seoul. They are beginning to give over the task of burying their dead and the city is threatened with positive extinction."—Boston Journal.

A BIG HAUL. Four fishermen of Pine Point, York Co., Me., secured in one haul of their net on Wednesday, Oct. 13, 110 barrels of herring and 8 barrels of mackerel, said to be the largest catch ever made at the place. It took the men all day to assort their fish.

OPIMUM. The Custom House authorities at San Francisco have seized $20,000 worth of opium consigned in the disguise of tea, to a Chinese firm in that city, which arrived from Hong Kong on the steamer Belgic, on Thursday of last week.

UNCLE SAM'S NAVY. It is very humiliating to read that the United States is at the foot of the world in the matter of naval equipment. She hasn't an iron clad monitor in condition for service nor a gun on her effective fleet with a longer range than two miles. This condition of things is now fast being remedied.

A VALUABLE LEG. A wooden leg taken off from an Indiana man was found to contain a fine gold watch, a woman's necklace, three pairs of bracelets, five diamond rings, with other articles of plundered jewelry to the value of $1500. They had been stolen.

DEDICATION. The Bartholdi statue of Liberty, in New York harbor, is rapidly approaching completion, and October 28th has been fixed upon as the day of dedication. Hon. William M. Everts will make the presentation address. President Cleveland will accept it, and Hon. George William Curtis will deliver the oration.

ENVELOPES. which in 1860 cost $4.80 per 1,000, can now be sold for 1.80 per 1,000 and the extra letter size that then cost $6, are now sold for $2.40. The proposals for bids for the next four years will include two sizes called baronial, about three by four inches, for the benefit of the ladies who like to use fancy note papers.

WOMAN'S RIGHTS. Another step towards woman's rights has been made, this time in Bourne, where a woman's bond has been accepted for the appearance of a liquor dealer at Barnstable before the Superior Court.

A HEAVY SUIT. Cyrus W. Field has begun suit against Mr. Higginson and President Clark of the New York & New England Railroad for an accounting for the disposition of $1,842,000 bonds, a block of preferred stock and $500,000 in cash, the last item representing profits that Mr. Field alleges he was deprived of.

Mrs. Alice Tobin, who died in Arcade, N. Y., recently, aged 100 years and 3 months, was a remarkable woman. Within a month of her death she retained all her faculties, and engaged in household duties. Her cheeks were rosy and her step elastic. She never used glasses during her life, and could see to thread even the finest cambric needles. Her mental faculties remained unimpaired up to the very last hour. She was the mother of twelve children.

GREAT SUCCESS. The Century Company paid Messrs. Scribner's Sons $250,000 for their magazine, when the purchase was made, some years ago. The profits of the publication since then have been very great.

NEW YORK. The first city directory of New York was issued in 1786 and contained 846 names. This year's directory contains over 314,000 names representing a population of 1,500,000.

More and more it is coming to be believed that the long wished for revival of business is in sight. Certainly the great volume of business is largely on the increase. The figures showing this are of the sort that cannot lie.

A calf was killed in Zionville, Penn., one morning, the skin was at the tannery at noon, was tanned and turned over to a shoemaker that evening, and by the next morning were made into a pair of boots which were worn by the man who owned the calf that had worn the skin the day before.

Seven thousand dollars in silver, the proceeds of a fair, were being taken to the bank at Mount Pulaski, Ill., recently, when the horses ran away, the wagon was overturned, and the money scattered in the street. Citizens gathered it up, and when counted at the bank there was but sixty cents missing.

RAILROADS. That the tendency of the railroads of New England is toward consolidation cannot be doubted; and the opinion has been many times expressed in this column that the future would witness great changes in the railroad map of New England and a marked diminution of the number of railway organizations. The Central Massachusetts is anxious to be leased by the Lowell, and the Lowell itself is desirous of being leased by the Boston & Maine. The New York & New England—or at least the element now in control of a majority of the stock of that company—is anxious to be leased by the Boston & Albany or New York & New Haven or both.—Advertiser.

PATENT OFFICE. The receipts of the Patent Office for the year 1885 exceeded the expenditures over $163,710, while the balance on hand January 1, 1886, was $2,945,405.58; and yet the Commissioner of Patents cannot get Congress to appropriate a sufficient sum out of the surplus patent fund to enable him to employ a sufficient examining force to keep up the work of the office. It does seem as if the majority of our legislators fail to realize the importance our Patent Bureau is to the country.

P. H. GAVIN

PLUMBER,

The Quincy Patriot.

With Supplement.

SATURDAY, OCT. 30, 1886.

1836—PIERCE—1886.

Last Saturday Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Pierce reached the golden milestone in their married life. Because of the serious illness of their son-in-law, the observance of this important event was very private. Mr. and Mrs. Pierce were married by the Rev. Matthew H. Smith, then pastor of the Universalist Church, and during their married life have lived at their present residence on Canal street. Both are enjoying very good health, and their eyesight and hearing are excellent. They have had six children, and the four that are living—Miss Lucetta A. Pierce, of Quincy, Charles E. Pierce, of Boston, Mrs. W. B. Worcester, of Quincy, and George L. Pierce, were all present.

The bridegroom and bride of fifty years were the recipients of many presents, among the number being fifty large pearl necklaces and fifty dollars in gold. Both Mr. and Mrs. Pierce were born in Quincy. The former without doubt once his long life to his excellent habits, using neither tobacco or liquor; and he has never been known to swear. Until twelve years ago he was a boot maker. They are respectively 77 and 73 years of age; have been subscribers of the Patriot for nearly half a century and always prompt in paying. It is the wish of the publishers that they may enjoy many more years of usefulness.

FREIGHT CARS DERAILLED. Shortly after 5 o'clock on Monday morning several cars of an outward bound freight train jumped the track near the Quincy station, strewn lumber (with which the cars were loaded) promiscuously about, and temporarily blocking both the outward and inward tracks. The freight conductor, desiring to give immediate notice of the accident to the railroad headquarters in Boston, roughly disturbed the morning mail of Bro. Sprad of the Herald, who lives near the station, and who was enabled to telegraph for a wrecking train, and render other assistance until the arrival of Agent Coffin. The inward track was quickly cleared, and the outward line was also opened soon after the arrival of the wrecking train from Boston. No one was injured.

THE HARVEST FESTIVAL. On account of the storm on Wednesday last, there was a small audience at the Universalist vestry but those who were present, most have felt fully repaid, by a most excellent entertainment. Each and all of the artists did themselves great credit, especially Mrs. Bisset in "Catherine, Heretic," which was, in itself, well worth the price of admission. Although late in the season, there was a very good display of vegetables. This is the first of a series of suppers and entertainments which the ladies propose giving the coming winter.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY. A very happy and social event took place at the residence of Mr. George Crane on Washington street, Quincy, last Monday evening, it being the fifteenth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Crane. A large number of invitations were issued, and many friends and relatives responded, bringing useful and beautiful presents in the form of glassware, silver, statuary, etc. Presents were also received from friends in Boston and New York. The evening was spent socially and pleasantly. Mrs. L. B. Smith, nee Miss Mary Raynes of Auburn, Me., gave two pleasing recitations. Ice cream and wedding cake, together with other refreshments, was most bountifully provided. All upon retiring wished Mr. and Mrs. Crane many future happy anniversaries.

ACCIDENT. Mr. Joseph E. Tipping, miller, living at Foxon lane, had the unfortunate to fall from a tree Tuesday morning and striking his knee on a stone fractured his knee pan. This accident will probably lay Mr. Tipping up for some months. He has the sympathy of his many friends in this misfortune.

SUDDEN DEATH. Miss Mary Larkin, died very suddenly of heart disease, at the residence of Hon. Charles F. Adams on Wednesday last. She was in her usual health, up to a short time before her death. She had been in the service of the family, in the capacity of cook, for the past twelve or more years and was respected and esteemed by her for her lady friends.

NEPHEWS. One of the happy episodes which naturally occurs in our transitory lives, took place at Hocksett, N. H., on Wednesday, when Mr. Frank F. Prescott, one of the rising young men of Quincy, was united in marriage to Miss Fannie A. Child daughter of Mr. John W. Prescott of Hocksett. The ceremony which was of the Episcopal form, was performed by the Rev. George J. Prescott of Boston, assisted by the Rev. Mr. Demeritt of Hocksett.

The bride was a handsome light complexioned girl and was well looked. A singular coincidence connected with this union, is that the principal parties, the groom and bride and even the minister who performed the marriage ceremony should all bear the name of Prescott, without being in any way related.

Mr. Albert Winslow, an intimate friend of the groom, of Marblehead and best man, Miss Nellie Styles of Winton, N. H., as bridesmaid. Some thirty or more relatives were present to participate in the marriage festivities. The young couple were the recipients of many beautiful and valuable presents.

After congratulations Mr. and Mrs. Prescott left about three o'clock, amidst a shower of rice and old shoes, for Montreal where a short time will be spent in sight seeing.

A BROWNIEST. James A. Warren, a teamster in the employ of Gilbert Miller, was arrested last Saturday morning by Officer Farnham, for being a brawler. It seems that Warren married Celestine Serant in Manchester, April 21, 1871, living with her four or five years. They then separated. June 20, of this year, Warren was united in wedlock at Braintree to Miss Anastasia A. Ring of West Quincy, thereby committing bigamy. Warren was when first arrested, married to Celestine, and had two wives, but afterwards admitted that he had married twice. Before being united to No. 2, he sought advice as to his legality, so he says, and was informed that No. 1 over seven years he was at liberty to marry again, and he would seem therefore that the crime was committed in ignorance of the law, and with the purest of intention. In court Monday, he pleaded not guilty, and the hearing will take place Saturday, Nov. 6.

PIANO TUNER. We regret to hear that the well known and popular tuner, Mr. Frank A. Locke, has decided to leave for California. It gives us pleasure to know that he leaves his tuning in the care of an excellent tuner, Mr. L. B. White, from White, Smith & Co., of Boston. Mr. White's reputation as a thorough tuner is well established, and we believe the citizens of Quincy will find him reliable. See his card in our columns.

GRAND CONCERT AT TOWN HALL, NOV. 10. See next week's PATRIOT.

Tirell-Curtis Marriage.

About sixty of the relatives and friends met at the residence of Mr. C. Philip Tirell to celebrate the wedding of Miss Cora Tirell and Mr. Jesse F. Curtis of New York. The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. D. M. Wilson of the First Church, according to the Unitarian form. The bride was richly attired in white India silk, trimmed with lace and wore diamonds, the gift of the groom. Grooms were present from Boston, Brockton, Woburn, Weymouth, Bridgewater, Roxbury, and Quincy.

After many congratulations and good wishes showered upon the newly-married couple, an elegant collation was served by caterer G. B. Smith of Boston.

The wedding gifts were very handsome and numerous. Among them we noticed a Rogers Group, scene from Merchant of Venice, from Mr. Henry Tilden; Bronze Vase, from Mr. and Mrs. Foster; Gold-lined berry spoon, from Mr. and Mrs. Frank Foster; A large picture, Springtime of love, from Mr. and Mrs. Beckwith, Norwiche, Conn.; Garnet toilet set, from Mr. A. F. Russell; dozen fine cut glass goblets, from Mr. and Mrs. John Cleverly; Head of Apollo in hammered copper, silver and acacia, from Mr. and Mrs. Q. Tirell; Nail set in plush case, Harry and Henry Tirell; Silver toilet forks, C. F. Tirell; Silver nut pickers, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Kimball of Woburn; Silver ladle, Mr. F. B. Perkins; Silver cake basket, Mrs. S. Williams; Silver fruit knives, Miss Blanche Roberts; Jarandine, Mr. and Mrs. S. Williams; Hand painted velvet banner, Mrs. Fred Tirell, etc., etc.

At 10 P. M. the bridal party left for Niagara Falls. Upon their return they will reside for a short time at the Hotel Danforth of Weymouth, formerly of Quincy, and Messrs. A. E. Nowell, G. H. Baker, and A. M. Bacheelder of Weymouth. The reception lasted from 8 until 10 o'clock, and was attended by throngs of well-known society people from Weymouth and neighboring towns. The ladies present were very elaborate and elegant. The presents were greatly admired, not less for their beauty, and costliness than for their extent and variety.

It is impossible at this time to attend to particulars, but may be stated that the gifts included delicate articles of furniture, pictures, lamps, silverware in great variety and beauty, pottery, china, bronzes, mirrors and almost numberless articles of use, and beauty. A very dainty collation was served throughout the reception.

Dr. and Mrs. Weymouth left for their new home in Quincy directly after the reception. They will live on Hancock street, in the house recently occupied by Dr. Demeritt.

HON. ELIJAH A. MORSE.

A BAKER'S DOZEN OF REASONS FOR HIS ELECTION TO THE SENATE. BY D. DOUGHERTY, D. D.

1.—He is a pure minded, exemplary man in his life and in his conduct a virtuous citizen.

2.—He is a consistent, total abstainer, a fit man to represent temperance.

3.—He is an active, unflinching temperance worker, of the true, advanced type, and of many years' standing.

4.—He is a self sacrificing temperance advocate, averaging two addresses a week for ten years, free of charge, even for traveling and entertainment expenses, working from day to day.

5.—He has given money liberally and constantly for the temperance cause, and so unobtrusively that most of it has never come to the knowledge of the public, a true, unselfish giver.

6.—As a legislator, he has had experience in the Senate, and has efficiently discharged his official duties.

7.—As a temperance legislator, he voted and spoke for every temperance measure in the House of Representatives in 1870.

8.—As a Senator, in 1880, he was one of the best advocates of advanced temperance legislation, radical, radical, radical, and stalwart enough for the stalwarts of the temperance reform.

9.—Last winter he dealt a hard blow to the gin mills and breweries, and his defeat in this election would make a jubilee in the slum.

10.—Because, the fact that the Third Party runs a candidate against him, shows that radical temperance advocate Mr. Morse is, he is nevertheless not a temperance crank.

11.—Because his election will be a protest against the machine policy of the Third Party State Committee in overruling the local convention in the interest of their party, to the sacrifice of temperance principles.

12.—Because his election will be a protest against the machine policy of the Third Party State Committee in overruling the local convention in the interest of their party, to the sacrifice of temperance principles.

13.—Because Mr. Morse is a genuine temperance labor reformer, helping labor by temperance, by good wages, by generous charity, by social and intellectual aids, and by a strong advocacy of true labor interests.—Boston Traveller.

Statute of Liberty.

The unveiling of Bartholdi's great statue of "Liberty Enlightening the World," at Bedloe's Island in New York harbor, October 28, makes the following description of the magnificent gift of the French people to the American people both timely and interesting.

This new wonder of the world, now placed in position on its pedestal, on Bedloe's Island, the site selected in New York harbor by General William T. Sherman, as authorized under the act of Congress, February 1877, deserves more than a passing comment, being the largest statue of its magnitude ever obtained from the following facts: Looming up 305 feet above sea-water, the height of the statue is 152 feet, 2 inches, that of the pedestal 101 feet, and the foundation 52 feet, 10 inches.

The Statue is constructed of copper sheets 3-16 of an inch thick. The forefinger measures 8 feet in length and 5 feet in circumference at the second joint. The nail measures 14 inches in length by 10 in breadth. The head is 14 feet high. The eye is 28 inches in width. The nose is 3 feet 9 inches long. The total weight of this stupendous figure is 400,000 pounds, of which 170,000 pounds are copper, the remainder being wrought iron.

About forty persons can find standing room within the head. A six-foot man standing on the level of the eye might reach the top of the crown. Fifty men might sit around the base of the torch, which elevates it to a height of 305 feet above the water level.

The manner of properly lighting the Statue by means of electricity has been carefully studied during the past three years, and some of the most eminent electricians in the country have been consulted. The system adopted embraces a powerful electric light from the torch, the illumination of the Statue itself, and small clusters of lights in the diadem. The means for procuring the necessary plant was voted by Congress.

The conception and execution of this great work of art are due to the efforts of the eminent French sculptor Bartholdi, who has devoted eight years of his life and a part of his private fortune to the completion of a task so nobly and generously supported by the French people.

VICINITY NEWS.

The famous old steamer "Plymouth Rock" was burned early last Sunday morning for the iron, brass and copper.

Kamel B. Mosley, Esq., editor of the Gazette, at Hyde Park, has been nominated by the Republicans to represent them in the next General Court.

East Weymouth's Salvation Army had an oyster supper last week.

An East Weymouth market gardening firm last week, sold 3000 celery plants to Boston parties.

A fire in the coal sheds of the O. C. R. R. Co., at Boston, necessitated the landing of 6000 tons of soft coal. The officials said as much as they could to dealers along the line of the road.

Some East Weymouth boys have broken over forty lights in the vacant tenements of Cyrus Washburn, by throwing stones at the building.

MEETING. The forty-second annual meeting of the Massachusetts Teachers' Association, will be held on Friday and Saturday, Nov. 20th and 21st, at the Girls' High School, West Newton street, Boston.

Samuel Barker, of Scituate, raised thirty tons of squashes upon his farm this year. The largest one weighed 126 pounds.

A Brilliant Wedding.

The spacious residence of Mr. Francis Amherst, on Front street, Weymouth, was ablaze with light on Tuesday evening of the week. After a carriage roller had been driven to the front door, which had been decorated with that they ever can improve. The rain was very welcome. No school Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Harrington made a trip to New York this week.

Dr. A. J. Colgan is to open a dentist office in Quincy, at the residence of J. F. Welch, M. D.

The Elliott Club met at the residence of Mr. Simmons, on Central avenue, on Wednesday evening. Mrs. G. F. Pinkham read a paper on "Newspapers and Journalism" on "Newspapers and Journalism."

Mr. H. T. Whitman is to build a house on Central avenue, north of H. O. Fairbanks.

Mr. A. L. Baker has bought a lot on Arlington street, and will erect at once a stable for his own use.

The Musical Society met for the first time this season at the house of its president, Rev. W. R. Lord, on Monday evening. A large number were present. The society has accepted the offer of the "fire engineers," and will occupy the hall over the house on Winthrop avenue, this winter. They have no debt and are in a flourishing condition.

The harvest supper and entertainment at the M. E. church on Wednesday evening, was well attended, notwithstanding the rain. The supper provided by the young ladies was excellent. The entertainment consisted of singing from Gospel Hymns by the audience, a solo by Dr. J. L. Lord, selections for violin, cornet and piano, "Hobbesian Girl" and "Gypsy-voice-Charante" were very finely rendered by Mr. J. S. Emerson, violinist, Mr. R. A. Quincy, cornetist, and Mr. C. G. Greeley, of East Boston, pianist. The artists did themselves much credit.

Mount Vernon Association, No. 24, was instituted at Wollaston on Monday, with twenty-two charter applicants. The congress meets at the house of Mrs. S. McKay, corner of Newport and Central avenue on Friday. Twenty-six new congresses have been instituted since Oct. 1st. The society is now having the honor of being the advantage of weekly benefits from six to eight dollars, in sickness or disability.

WOLLASTON.

A writer from Wollaston thinks the Village Improvement Society did a very brilliant act when they set the woods on fire.

WEST QUINCY.

Carpenters are rushing the work on the new buildings, being built on Copeland and Cemetery streets.

Mr. Harry Williams' new house, off Common street is completed, and he expects to move in the first of next week.

The stone cutters in this section report a work a little dull.

The much needed rain has come at last and people are rejoicing over it, for some families living in the vicinity of Willard street, have been obliged to bring water a great distance, their wells being dry.

Mr. Edward Dexter left town for Brockton last week, where, we understand, he has a very desirable and profitable business.

Rev. Mr. Dorr gave a very able and instructive sermon Sunday evening on "manners," taking for his text the words found in 1 Cor. 13: 3, "Evil communications corrupt good manners."

Mr. C. S. Jose, in the employ of E. H. Doble & Co., who has been practicing a few days, began work again Monday.

The work of house, store and shop building is booming hereabouts at the present time. Many new families have lately moved into the place.

Business seems good.

Some small urinals in the neighborhood of the depot, are indulging in the dangerous practice of throwing stones at passing carriages. Where are our officers of the peace? Would it not be well to look to the boys allude as they go to and from school? A little practice of "manners" on our streets would be an excellent supplement to preaching upon this subject.

Instead of the sermon on Sunday evening at the Methodist Church, there will be a social gathering, and the usual meetings on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings have been united and are to be held hereafter on Tuesday evening.

A course of lectures by distinguished speakers is contemplated for the coming winter.

Some very heavy blasting has been done the past week in the quarry west of the village and in the process of excavating for a well on land owned by Mr. Adam Vogel & Son. These frequent shocks serve as a most excellent end in breaking the monotony of life, provided they do not break some one's head.

The Rev. John W. Dingle, a young man and a member of the Methodist Church in West Quincy, is expected to preach for the Rev. Henry Dorr next Sabbath, at the morning service. Mr. Dingle is now at Boston, university—Theological department—which is to open next Wednesday the 31st of November.

The Rev. Charles Fuller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fuller, who joined the West Quincy Church last May, and a few weeks ago took with him to his new parish, one of Wollaston's fair daughters, is in the midst of an interesting work of revival. About one hundred have been converted. He is deservedly popular.

ATLANTIC.

William B. Glover has raised during the past season a large variety of choice flowers, among which were the "Cosmo Bicolor Hybridus Grandiflorus," a very ancient and rare species, which was introduced during the seventeenth century. It is a magnificent plant, resembling somewhat the single dandelion and they range through all shades of red, purple, flesh color, and pure white. Blooming as they do in October, they are a most brilliant and attractive sight. This plant is little known by the florists in Massachusetts. Mr. Glover has also a very large collection of the choicest varieties of chrysanthemums, comprising many of the latest novelties to be had.

We learn with regret that Mr. Seth B. Bass and wife were called suddenly to Vermont to attend the funeral of a relative.

Miss Lizzie Glover is visiting in New York, and will also visit friends in New Jersey; she is expected to be absent several weeks.

Not so; our local reporter is absent on business connected with the Press, and will return no better than he went; this is from the most reliable source.

Mr. Demeritt, who resides in Appleton street, has greatly improved his house by painting it, and has also added to the appearance of his place in planting fruit trees and shrubs.

Mr. Herbert Coombs is to build a nice Queen Anne house on Walker street. The cellar is being dug and work will be pushed on it.

The Atlantic Reading Circle now meets once a fortnight at the house of E. C. Wade, and affords much pleasure to the ladies belonging. An effort has been made to interest the gentlemen, but they do not entreat much in Atlantic.

The Ladies' Aid Society gave a harvest supper at the chapel on Wednesday evening, Nov. 10th.

Eaches parties are all the go just now. The noon train has been discontinued and much complaint is being made here. No train leaves Atlantic now from 11.14 to 1.56, nearly three hours, and it does seem that the patrons were entitled to a little more consideration. A petition for the train leaving Newport at 1.00 will soon be presented.

The handful of people who responded to the call of the Village Improvement meeting presented rather a lonesome appearance in the chapel last Monday evening. A fire and drum is needed in this place to wake the men up.

The body of stagnant water, more commonly called Tied Pond, has become a nuisance of the worst kind to the citizens of Atlantic, and should receive immediate attention from the Board of Health. School children are obliged to pass four times a day, and the stench is so strong at times that it causes a feeling of nausea. It certainly is not the proper air for the children to inhale and a remedy should be found for this nuisance. A petition has been made by the neighbors to the proper authorities at Quincy, but they appear to think we can endure anything here in Atlantic.

Spills and parents alike are much troubled with Mr. Smith, the principal of the school here. A marked change for the better has taken place among the scholars, particularly the boys, who now feel that they really have a master. The marching out of the school-room—both at recess and at the close of school—done to the music of a tenor drum and clappers, and the little ones make real good soldiers. The fire drill is practiced often and parents would be surprised and gratified to visit and see how well it is done. More important still is the fact that the school children are learning the value of the money.

At the Memorial Congregational Church next Sabbath the pastor will preach in the morning. Subject: "The Sure Foundation." Rev. E. Norton will occupy the pulpit in the evening by exchange.

Quite a number of citizens are at present quite in earnest on the question: How can we procure a public hall at Atlantic? It is to be hoped that something will come of the matter.

Plymouth A. hall has been recently hung in the Memorial Methodist Church in Plymouth. It bears the letters "Revere & Son, Boston, 1886," and was cast by Paul Bevere five years after the town bell was turned out from his foundry, that bearing date of 1801. It was formerly known in Boston as the "liberty bell," having been the custom to ring it when a war was issued by the governor. It swung on state institutions for eighty years, and was purchased by Lieut. Gov. Ames, a personal friend of the Methodist pastor, who after using it on his grounds for a short time, presented it to

SUPPLEMENT.

SATURDAY, OCT. 30, 1886.

The Hudson Bay Railroad.

The very newest and farthest off of all American railroads is the one whose name stands given above. Ground has already been broken for it. As an enterprise, it stands out as perhaps the most prominent on the American continent. Some fifty or sixty miles of the newly projected line, to be completed this season, will bring the Manitoba wheat fields and those of the Saskatchewan valley with tide water at Port Nelson. Lieutenant Gordon of the Alert steamer, which made her second voyage to Hudson Bay last summer, has sent word overland from Port Nelson that "the practicability of the strait is solved;" and Captain Markham, an accepted authority on ice navigation, telegraphs that he thinks "the route is practicable four months, and five," and that "the nature of the ice in the strait is favorable to navigation." The navigation of the Hudson Strait and Bay has long been demonstrated. Vessels of all sizes and descriptions have sailed through the strait and bay for nearly 300 years, and but three are recorded as lost. The Hudson Bay Railroad is projected as an outlet for the products of Northwest Canada. It is to be six hundred miles in length, and will bring the great sea of Hudson Bay, on whose shores feathered game of all kinds is remarkably abundant, within four or five days of New York and Boston. The posts of the Hudson Bay Company in one autumn killed 20,000 wild geese.—Massachusetts Ploughman.

How Far Can We See?

The question has arisen in scientific circles, how far an object on the earth's surface is visible to the human eye. One savant declares that he saw a mountain in Sumatra when distant one hundred and ten English miles, and at another time he saw a peak in Java when one hundred and eighty miles away. Different observers have recorded the fact that Mount Blanc can be distinctly seen from points one hundred and ten miles distant. A traveller in Greenland beheld a mountain from which he was separated by one hundred and fifty miles; and Mount Canigon has been seen from Marseilles, France, a distance of one hundred and fifty-eight miles. The whole range of the Swiss Alps has been seen by Sir J. Heppit when two hundred miles away, while Sir William Jones affirms that he once saw the Himalayas at the distance of two hundred and forty-four miles. The range of vision depends of course on the state of the atmosphere and the altitude of the observer. In the clear, rarefied air of high altitudes, like some parts of Colorado, for example, a traveler may be greatly deceived by the apparent nearness of a mountain or other object which he thinks but a few hours away, but which on trial he is not able to reach by a day's journey.

A Change in Seasons.

The Provincetown Advocate of the 21st inst. says: "It is a noticeable fact that the seasons have greatly changed in New England during the past twenty-five years. We seldom experience any really boisterous weather now before the middle of December. Formerly winter seemed to begin near the close of October. The latter month, and in fact November, are becoming as enjoyable as September used to be. Twenty-five or thirty years ago, December saw the earth white with snow and the ponds frozen solid, now a snow storm before January is the exception rather than rule, and skating is out of question much before February."

A $4,000,000 BUILDING. The commission having charge of the new congressional library site in Washington, have advertised for proposals for tearing down and excavating. The buildings to be destroyed cover two blocks, and are among the oldest in Washington. Thus far not a dollar can be expended of the $500,000 appropriated for beginning the work. The law provides that the title to all the land must first be perfected. The secretary and clerks of the commission, who have been employed for two months, have not yet received any pay, and they are naturally working hard to perfect the deeds. Architect Smithmeyer estimates that the building will cost $4,000,000, and that it will require five years to complete it.

SKUNKS. These animals seem to have developed wonderfully during the summer in Connecticut, and complaints are heard from all parts of the State of their unusual rapacity. Mink are also abundant, and are very thickly furred, indicating, according to the sportsmen, a cold winter; and old hunters say that fox hunting in the snow the coming winter will be the best sport of the kind known for years.

Changing the Name.

The absorbing question in the convention of the Episcopal Church in session at Chicago, has been raised by the resolution which was offered, to drop the name Protestant Episcopal and adopt the name of the American Catholic Church.

Rev. Phillips Brooks of Boston, opened the debate on the resolution, combatting it with a fervor of eloquence that enlisted the rapt attention of the entire body of delegates and auditors. He said the policy of the Church did not authorize it to arrogate to itself the title of being the Church of America.

Rev. Dr. Gibson of New York, said that if ever a historical blunder was made, it was when the name Episcopal was applied to this church, and he would therefore abolish a meaningless title.

Rev. Dr. Harwood of New Haven, said the change would cause a convulsion in the church; it would drive from it and keep from it that great body of Protestants and Northern races which hated the word Catholic, compounding it with Romanism.

Rev. Dr. Greer of Rhode Island, thought that if the present name of the church was in a measure accidental, it was in a much larger measure providential.

Another reverend doctor objected to a change because he would have the church have no hobby, or be placed in the light of continually harping about the apostolic succession. The matter was further debated, and finally decided adversely.

Humbugs.

SMALL BUSINESS.

It is very small, mean business for a white man who has been taught to read, to try to cheat the Government out of two cents. Yet two cents often enough repeated will amount to dollars. Persons have often advertised for old stamps under one pretext and another, usually such as will excite the sympathies of the benevolent, and kind-hearted people have responded. There are but just two uses to which old stamps can be put. One, to sell them like other old paper for paper stock; the other, to wash and re-gum them, and sell them to be used a second time, and thus defraud the Government—in a small way, it is true, but still a fraud. Knowing that these are the only uses that can be made of old stamps, any one who gives or sells them to those who advertise for them, in a measure participates in a very small fraud.

GO CAUTIOUSLY.

Inquiries are made of a Decorative Art Concern in Boston, which offers to furnish work in the way of painting plaques, panels, tiles, etc., to be painted at home, for which a remunerative price will be paid. When people go a long way around to accomplish an object, they are open to suspicion. If these advertisers really wish to have such painting done, why do they not take a room and advertise for girls? They could get hundreds at once who would work under their immediate supervision. Instead of this, they propose to send out work by mail to distant points, upon which postage is to be paid both ways. Perhaps the sale of books of instruction, etc., for $1.25, is the chief object of this Decorative Art Establishment.—American Agriculturist.

A HANDSOME BOAT. The new freight steamer City of Brockton of the Fall River Line is a handsome boat, as fine looking as a passenger steamer. She has all the modern improvements, and can be steered either by hand or steam, the apparatus being similar to that furnished for the new government steel cruisers. She can carry without difficulty 100 cars of freight, and has besides a portion of the decks fitted up for horses and carriages. Near by are also state-rooms for the men who accompany the horses. She is supplied with every facility for the carrying trade, and is in every respect a handsome and convenient steamer.

JOE JEFFERSON. Jefferson is one of the wealthiest actors in America. He is not making so much money now as he used to do, for the simple reason that he does not give himself the trouble. He only works on the stage about sixteen weeks in the year, and this affords him all he needs for his yearly maintenance without at all impairing his capital. Mr. Jefferson's fortune is variously estimated at from $400,000 to $600,000.—Chicago Times.

KNIGHTS OF LABOR. An exchange remarks of the Knights of Labor that the order has grown weak as it has grown large, and the jealousies and suspicions that have arisen in the election of officers and the amending of the constitution seem to indicate that it may break up at any time from its own weight. It is already charged by delegates of the order at Richmond that it has been "transformed into an asylum for dead beats and a scheming school for politicians."

A Truthful Man.

Hon. David Davis tells the frozen truth when he says: "Each year every local paper gives from $100 to $5,000 in free lines for the benefit of the community in which it is located. No other agency can or will do this. The local editor, in proportion to his means, does more for his town than any other ten men, and in all fairness, man with man, he ought to be supported, not because you happen to like him or admire his writings, but because a local paper is the best investment a community can make. It may not be brilliant or crowded with great thoughts, but financially it is more of a benefit to a community than a preacher or teacher. Understand us now, we do not mean morally or intellectually, but financially, and yet on the moral question you will find the majority of the local papers are on the right side of the question. To-day the editors of local papers do the most work for the least money of any men on earth. Subscribe for your local paper, not as a charity but as an investment."

CURING NIGHT SWEATS. A correspondent of the Utica Observer repeats this story: "Well, my sister, Mrs. Karlic, has seemed to be fairly started on the road to the grave because of consumption. She had night sweats and every indication of that dreadful disease. She doctored, she travelled, but she grew no better. Indeed, we could see that she grew steadily worse. Somebody told her that she could cure the night sweats by setting a large pan of fresh water under her bed every night. Of course, she laughed at the idea. People always do laugh at any remedy that involves neither trouble nor expense. No; she rather thought such a remedy an insult to her intelligence. Her daughter, however, thought everything worth trying, and slipped the pan of water under the bed without her mother knowing it. Curious, but that night she missed her usual sweat. And every night thereafter when the pan was under the bed there was no sweat."

Then she was told and was greatly astonished and delighted. After that, when the water had not been changed, the sweats returned, though she did not know that the water had not been changed, so it couldn't have been the result of imagination. The sweats have been entirely stopped by this simple remedy, and Mrs. K. seems to be getting well. It's a simple thing, but I wish you would write it out in your newspaper letters, for it may do sufferers good. The pan must be set under the middle of the bed, directly under the spine of the patient. Once, when Mrs. K. rolled over in her sleep on the side of the bed, away from the water, the sweats returned."

More Cheating.

What the Pawtucket Gazette, one of the oldest and best weekly papers published in Rhode Island, says of the new silver notes: The new one-dollar note has made its appearance. It is quite a pretty specimen of work. It promises to pay the bearer one dollar in silver. Indeed! But a silver dollar is worth only seventy-five cents. The government disappoints the miner, and cheats fifty millions of other people. The miner clamors for free coinage, but the government says, we will buy your silver at current rates, but the cheating we will do ourselves. And so it puts seventy-five cents' worth or less into a dollar, and calls it a hundred cents. Martha Washington's lovely face is disgraced by being put on this fraudulent rag. Instead of covering her head with a simple cap, however, why did not the engraver adorn it with a love of a bonnet? The extravagance might have explained the cheat.

In our judgment a better picture on the bill would have been one of Dick Turpin. A highwayman's visage would best adorn a fraudulent bill. Would it not be a good design, indeed, to put on Bland's countenance? If it were represented with his thumb on the tip of his nose, it might be suggestive of the unlikelihood of the holder's ever receiving from the government more than three-quarters of the nominal value of the certificate. But as the small greenbacks have almost disappeared from circulation, perhaps these dishonest notes will gain currency. Millions will take them under protest, however, and get rid of them as soon as possible.

Method of Making Water Gas.

The Glasgow Engineer says that a new method of making water gas at an extremely low cost was the subject of a recent communication to the French Academy of Science, and that "the matter has caused much anxious attention, not only in France, but all over Europe and in England as well." It is of weighty importance, not only to gas but also to iron makers, if it accomplishes what is predicted of it. A jet of superheated steam is directed into a retort full of incandescent coke. The oxygen unites with carbon to form carbonic acid, and hydrogen is liberated. So far nothing new. The gases are led to a second retort filled with some refractory substance kept red hot, by which a glowing surface is exposed to the gases. At the same time, superheated steam is introduced. This seizes upon the carbonic oxide to form dioxide, and more hydrogen is liberated. A milk of lime bath removes the carbonic dioxide, and the pure hydrogen is led to a reservoir. One ton of coke in this process produces about 60,000 feet of gas, which is about eleven times the quantity usually produced by the expenditure of a ton of coal. This reduces the cost to little, if anything, more than that of natural gas, when the difficulty of controlling the latter is taken into the account. This is for heating purposes. Inventors are at work devising the best methods of carbureting it, and Boulogne-sur-Seine is to be lighted with it next winter.—Scientific American.

IMMENSE. The Hingham Journal of the 22d inst., says: Smelt catching never was better than at present. T. O. Edmunds, the veteran musician at Downer's, has caught upwards of 3,000 this season. Fred R. Goodwin caught sixty dozen last Tuesday. It is no unusual sight to see Hartwell A. Palmer returning at night with his little row-boat so loaded that the gunwale is within an inch or two of the surface of the water.

BRUTAL. A captain of a British barque voyaging between Shanghai and British Columbia, employs none but Chinese sailors, and says that they cost him 900 per cent. less than an English crew would. He pays them $5 a month, and feeds them on kelp and dogfish at an expense of $1.50 a month to each man.

At one of the fashionable camp meeting resorts, visitors are greeted by the thrusting before them of a card on which is a picture of a hearse. Below the picture is the name of the undertaker who owns the vehicle. Then follows: "Coffins and burial caskets of every approved style served at the shortest notice. Give him a trial."

BAD PRACTICE. The Washington Star asserts that most of the gentlemen of Washington carry pistols, and many of the ladies, also, particularly in the evening. It is the rule rather than the exception for men to go armed. There is hardly a house that has not a pistol in it. The quietest and most respectable people in the city are the most apt to have weapons in their pockets to defend themselves against footpads and ruffians, who must be plenty at the capital, if the Star is correct in its statements.

ANCIENT FURNITURE. Hon. Richard L. Pease, of Martha's Vineyard has probably the oldest piece of furniture in this country; it is an old carved oak cabinet of English make, and which has been in the family over five generations. It remained in the old Pease mansion on North Water street for over seventy years, and on having it cleaned and repaired, the date A. D. 1487 was found on it.

Word to Mothers.

Teach your boy to be courteous and obliging. This you can do in the nursery by precept, but can also point out to him when abroad the courteousness of other gentlemanly boys, and show him how much you admire it.

An unselfish and non-self-indulgent boy will generally grow up a gentleman in manners; at all events, the converse is true.

Teach your child to be honest and honorable, in all his doings and dealings with his brothers and sisters; and teach him, too, that rare virtue, charity, which ever follows at the heels of truth.

Order and regulation are no mean acquisitions. If they be not taught early they will never be learned. A child should be made to put his toys away, each in its proper place, and even to know where he puts his clothes, so that he could find them in the dark. So will he be tidy in person, tidy in the apartment he occupies, and orderly and tidy in life.

I need not tell you to teach your child to pray, nor remind you how religion softens one's path through this world, and lengthens life itself by giving hope and calm in the hour of peril and sickness.—English Writer.

NATICK'S WATER SUPPLY. Natick's water supply, its increase and the preservation of its purity are important questions open for discussion, and will soon be questions that will demand decisive action. The presence of malaria for two successive seasons, and its increasing virulence indicate that there is something "rotten in Denmark," and that it is of such a character that its pollution must be removed. All cities and towns that have a public system of water supply have been obliged to deal with the question, and resort to various methods of engineering to prevent the pollution of their sources of supply and to keep the supply in a proper state of purity.

The city of Newton has lately provided a new source of supply for its inhabitants, and has satisfactorily settled in an economical manner the purity of the water from the new experiment. The Newton Water Board contracted with the Manhattan Artesian Well Company to sink seven wells, and the company were to receive no pay unless the wells could supply 250,000 gallons of water in twenty-four hours. These wells have been completed and are now in operation and have been accepted by the Water Board after a continuous test of thirty-one days in which they produced 300,000 gallons daily, there being no decrease in the supply on the last day of the test. The price paid for the wells was $5.25 per 1000 gallons in twenty-four hours. The wells were sunk within 400 feet of the pumping station and developed that the sinking of more wells would largely increase the supply of water. The most important part of the experiment is the fact that the water obtained from these wells is of the highest standard of purity and during the test maintained a temperature of fifty degrees.

The success of the experiment at Newton will undoubtedly lead other towns to try it.—Natick Bulletin.

CONSOLIDATION. The Peabody Reporter is of the opinion that the Boston and Maine railroad, having swallowed the Eastern railroad and the Worcester, Nashua and Rochester road, will ere long take in its capacious maw the Boston and Lowell and the New York and New England road. While the Boston & Maine is in the gastronomic line, why not also swallow the Boston & Albany?

Secretary—Mrs. Charles A. Spear.
Treasurer—Mrs. E. W. H. Adams.

The following is an abstract of the report of the treasurer, Mrs. E. W. H. Adams:

" cash, 3.00
Total, $770.11

Families assisted—American 15; Scotch 2; Irish 4; English 4; Welsh 1; total, 26.

The Society continues its aid to the humble, but entirely respectable persons, aged and infirm, who have fallen victims to the public for many years. The help rendered is timely and greatly appreciated. It is enough to elicit many a slender income. Besides these, cases are constantly being brought to the attention of the society. Such are searched into at once and thoroughly. If the need is only temporary it is ministered to, until the person is able to help himself. In this way many self-respecting families have been saved the painful necessity of applying to the town, and with a just pride unbroken have gone on to more prosperous careers. Cases which threaten to continue long and to call for great deal of help are turned over to the town and to the visitors of the associated charities.

It will be seen that last year the expenditures were more than the receipts, and it is anticipated that the calls for assistance will be even more this year. It is to be hoped, therefore, that all the old members of the society will not fail to pay the annual fee and that many new members may be gained.

NARROW ESCAPE. On Friday morning of last week, about 9:30, the Cunard steamer Paronia, Captain Woodford, from Liverpool for Boston, with about 400 passengers, ran upon the rocks of High Line in Plymouth harbor, during the thick mist and northeast storm. Fortunately the rising tide floated the Paronia in about an hour from the time she struck, and the captain headed the huge iron hull southward again at 10:30 A. M. The Paronia left saving patrol next sighted her at 11:45 o'clock, heading for the shore near White Horse, and three of their number put off in a boat, and halting her found that the captain thought he was north of Boston, and had been misled after leaving High Line, by the whistling buoy off the corner, mistaking it for one at the Graves off Boston. They gave him the right course and that night the disabled ship was grounded on the mud of Hallowell Island with three compartments full of water, the passengers having been transferred to the city by tug boats. It was the narrowest escape from a fearful disaster that ever occurred in Plymouth bay. Had the ship struck on ebb tide she could have been saved, and there must have been loss of life, as she was a mile from shore, on which the surf was heaving in tremendous rolls.

COMING. President Cleveland will visit Boston on Monday next. He will be accompanied by his wife and daughter. His party will arrive by the way of the Boston and Albany railroad, at 6:30 A. M. and be met at the depot by Governor Robinson, accompanied by Col. Currier and the 1st corps of Cadets, who will receive and escort the party to the Hotel Vendome where they will breakfast. At 8:30 the Cavalry Battalion and Independent Cavalry will escort the official party to Harvard College. At the conclusion of the ceremonies in Cambridge, President Cleveland will be driven to Faneuil Hall, Boston, where a public reception will be held; a dress reception will be held at Hotel Vendome under the auspices of the City of Boston in the evening ending in time for the Presidential party to catch the 10:30 train for New York.

The liabilities, chiefly bills payable, on several firms and corporations, equal the assets, amounting to $22,564.64.

SUPPLEMENT.

The Quincy Patriot.

SATURDAY, NOV. 6, 1886.

Leak in the Kitchen.

From an ignorant belief that the more good things that are put into the making of a dish the better it will be, and from an entire indifference to the cost of supplying, the average servant uses a third more material than is necessary to place palatable dishes on the table, and the poor housewife observes with dismay the emptying butter-jar and sugar box and the fast disappearing eggs and spices, and sits disheartened before the thin purse and unbalanced accounts. A far more effective way is to take a share in the cooking yourself, and to appear often in the kitchen. When you know certain dishes are to be made, be on the spot and yourself check the lavish use which is so closely allied to wilful waste that the result is the same. You know that two or three eggs will make your pudding as well as five, that your cake is far more apt to be heavy with a heaped cup of butter than a scant one; you can judge just how much your family will eat, and can see that little is cooked to be left over, and the best of it cold or "hashed up"—that distressing form of bad diet. Only your authority can stop these leaks. Agnes B. Ormsbee in Good Housekeeping.

A Ton of Coal.

There is more in a heap of coal than a thoughtless person may discover. Besides gas, a ton of gas-coal will yield 1,500 pounds of coke, 20 gallons of ammonia water, and 140 pounds of coal-tar. Destructive distillation of the coal-tar gives 69.6 pounds of pitch, 17 pounds of creosote, 14 pounds of heavy oils, 9.5 pounds of naphthalene yellow, 6.3 pounds of naphthalene, 4.75 pounds of naphthol, 2.25 pounds of alizarin, 2.4 pounds of solvent naphthalene, 1.5 pounds of phenol, 1.2 pounds of aniline, 1.1 pounds of aniline, 0.77 of a pound of toluidine, 0.46 of a pound of anthracene, and 0.9 of a pound of toluene. From the last-named substance is obtained the new product known as saccharine, which is 250 times as sweet as the best cane-sugar.

English, Irish and Scotch.

An Englishman, an Irishman and a Scotchman were represented as looking through a confectioner's window at a beautiful young woman who was serving in the shop. "Oh!" exclaims Mr. Patrick, "do let us be spending a half crown with the dear creature, that we may look at her conveniently, and have a bit of a chat with her." "You extravagant dog," said Mr. George; "I'm sure half the money would do just as well. But let us go in by all means; she is a charming girl." "Ah! wait a wee!" interposed Mr. Andrew; "dinna ye ken it'll serve our purpose equally well to ask the bonnie lassie to give us two sixpences for a shilling, and inquire where Mr. Thompson's house, and such like? We're no hungry, and may as well save the siller."—London Quarterly.

He Seemed to be Deaf.

In olden time, before Maine laws were invented, one Wing kept the hotel at Middle Granville. He was a good landlord, but terribly deaf. Fish, the village painter, was afflicted in the same way. One day they were sitting by themselves in the bar. A traveler from the South, on his way to Brandon, stepped in to inquire the distance. Going up to the counter, he said: "Can you tell me, sir, how far it is to Brandon?" "Brandy?" said the ready landlord, jumping up. "Yes, sir, I have some"—at the same time handing upon a decanter of the precious liquid. "You misunderstand me," said the stranger; "I asked how far it was to Brandon." "They call it pretty good brandy," said Wing. "Will you take sugar with it?"—reaching for the bowl and toddy-stick. The despairing traveler turned to Fish. "The landlord," said he, "seems to be deaf. Will you tell me how far it is to Brandon?" "Thank you," said Fish; "I don't care if I do." The stranger treated, and fled.

CUTE. A bright little six-year-old girl, living at Dorchester, Mass., was baptised one Sunday recently. After the ceremony she was taken back to the family pew, where her aunt gave her a dime to put in the contribution box. After receiving the money she changed her position to the other end of the pew, away from the aisle, and whispered to her aunt: "If he don't come real near I shall keep the money myself." It is needless to say that the contribution-box did not come near enough.

A Good Wife.

A capable wife is an admirable and delightful person, and a prize for any man to possess. A husband has no more business to say he supports his wife than he has to say he supports his partner or his clerks. All good wives render a full quid pro quo in the partnership of the house, even though they do nothing, but make it pleasant and meet their husbands upon their return from business with a smile. A young woman, by virtue of a fine education and natural abilities, is able as a teacher to earn, say a thousand dollars a year. A young fellow asks her to relinquish this and join him in founding a home, her part of it being, perhaps, mainly to stay in the house and overlook the housekeeping.

She may consent to do so with the most happy results both to herself and him; but one essential element in her happiness must be that by so doing she does not place herself in a position that shall create a painful sense of dependence. There is no high-spirited woman who can endure without pain such an attitude, yet there is no right-constituted woman who does not, under the right conditions, enjoy having all her temporal wants supplied, and of being cared for and protected. It is her natural destiny.

A Millionaire's Room.

An order has just been given by a New York millionaire for a Turkish lounging-room to be built at the back of his house. The walls are to be of some rare wood, inlaid with silver arabesque. Running around the entire apartment will be a low divan covered with rich silk "shot" with gold and silver threads, and the floor is to be one complete design in mosaic, made of thousands of pieces of stone. Over the floor will be thrown expensive Turkish rugs, a divan constructed of great silk and satin covered pillows being arranged in the center of the apartment. Silver lattice work covering the windows will admit the light, and the latter being softened at pleasure by means of rich hangings. From a niche will issue a jet of water, falling into a marble basin. The roof of the extension will be partially movable, so that in summer a tent-like arrangement of drapery can be fashioned above the heads of the loungers, admitting the air through its folds, and still keeping out the warm rays of the sun.—Chicago Times.

Drains and Cellars.

Housekeepers cannot be too careful with regard to keeping drains and cellars in proper condition. A plentiful supply of sulphate of iron (copperas) should be kept in every household and used daily to deodorize the drains. After each dish washing, have a quart of boiling water in which two tablespoonfuls of washing soda have been dissolved, poured into the sink so that all the grease particles may be destroyed. Then flush the sink with hot water for a few minutes. Pour a solution of copperas—one tablespoonful dissolved in a quart of boiling water—each day in the pipes leading from the bath tub and closet. If you have stationary wash basins treat them in the same way, not forgetting the flushing process. See that no decomposing vegetables remain in the cellar; have at least two windows always open, and, if possible, keep the outer cellar door open that the sunlight may purify the air. Two or three times during the season fumigate with roll brimstone, being careful to close all openings, so that the fumes of the sulphur may do their perfect work. If possible, never have ashes in the cellar, and on no account permit any garbage from the kitchen to be placed there.

THE WOOLEN SMOKE CURE. So much interest is expressed in the cures of felons, bruises, etc., effected by means of woolen smoke, that we give the record of a fresh case. Recently, a child of five years old fell from some high place upon his face and struck three upper teeth entirely through the upper lip. They had to be extracted, but the agony of the wound was fearful. His mother left him in some one's care and went to her washing on Monday. She was told of the smoke cure, and when she went back on Monday evening applied it to the child. She took the precaution to put a cent upon the hole in the inverted flower pot, that she might regulate the smoke, and, guarding his nose and mouth from inhaling it, applied it to the wounded lip and the violently convulsed jaw. In ten minutes the pain was much relieved. In an hour the child seemed as well as ever, except that the mouth was sore, and he could only drink, not eat.—Boston Transcript.

ABOLISHED. The Boston and Maine Railroad Company has abolished the pay-car system, and now pays the men on the road in bank checks, which are sent to the station agents for the men. This saves considerable expense, as formerly it took two trains with a gang of twelve men to pay the help.

NEW MUSIC. The great music-publishing house of Oliver Ditson & Co., Boston, are constantly laying before the music-loving public the choicest productions of the best composers. Among the latest we notice "Memories of Happy Hours," an idyl for the piano, by Sophia Reynolds, (40 cts.); a charming song by the famous composer, Gounod, entitled "The Arrow and the Song,"—Longfellow's poem—(40 cts.); "Babillage," by Durand, a choice piano piece, (40 cts.); "A Sail in Sight," a vocal duet, by Guest, (30 cts.); "Maid of Monterey," by Hewitt, (25 cts.); "An Exile Sat upon the Strand," by Ernest Jones, (30 cts.); a beautiful little classic Lied or Song arranged as a piano piece, by Jensen, (25 cts.).

SLEEPLESS NIGHTS. Only they who have endured the torture of wakefulness can know the suffering of lying awake for hours, tossing, turning, longing, praying for sleep, the whole body pleading for unconsciousness and the brain unable to grant it, the nights coming like a cruel Nemesis from which there is no escape. Thus was I once, with apparently good health, yet a prisoner to this demon, insomnia. Then one year ago, in early spring, circumstances compelled me to walk a mile and back every Sunday afternoon for three weeks. I went through sunshine and storm without a thought of deriving any physical benefit therefrom. Judge, then, my surprise and joy when at the end of that time I found that I slept like a child, and that the cure for my insomnia was exercise.

Miss Higgs—"And what course would you wish your daughter to pursue—the dead languages and the severer studies, or French and deportment?" Mrs. Vener (whose husband has just retired from the furniture line with a fortune)—"Oh, no! I can't abide the dead finish; give her the French polish, even if it costs a little more."—Harper's Bazar.

A teacher took an apple from one of his boys during school hours. After a while the teacher ate the apple while the pupils were busy with their sums. The lad, noticing this, began to cough. "What is the matter with you?" inquired the teacher. "Oh, please, sir," answered the boy, "the apple has gone down the wrong way."

WHERE GRANT DIED. A writer says: The Drexel cottage remains almost literally as when Gen. Grant died. There are the bed upon which the illustrious commander breathed his last, his favorite chair, his garments, including dressing gown, slippers and hats, and even his medicines, cups, and the sponges with which he was wont to moisten his lips. You are shown pens with which he wrote the latter portion of his book, and quantities of paper cut in small sizes by means of which he was wont to carry on his share of conversation. A number of the beautiful flower-pieces wrought in immortelles sent by the friends of the general, including the huge pillow sent from the Philadelphia Post, are also on view. All these relics are looked upon by the visitors in solemn silence. Some of them might with propriety be removed—notably the medicines and vessels. Outside the cottage all looks calm and beautiful.

READ THIS. Don't repeat a scandal or a gossiping story, which, after all, may be wholly untrue. Don't tarnish the name of a fellow mortal by circulating ill-sounding reports, which may be the result of an enemy's malice, and vastly exaggerated, or totally false. Rather be careful of your brother's good name, more willing to excuse an error than to circulate a bad report, and in this, as in all your conduct, live up to the Golden Rule. Never speak ill of another unless, by keeping silence, you may bring harm to some one else.

A GOOD MEMORY. "Yes," said Blobs proudly, "I've got a good memory. I never forget even little things. Now you may not recollect it, but I borrowed $1.50 of you two years ago. I suppose you've forgotten all about it now, but I haven't." "I confess," said Blobs, "that I had forgotten it till you spoke of it. But see here, Blobs, now you speak of it, why wouldn't this be a good time to pay it back?" "Oh, no, my dear boy, don't talk about it," returned Blobs. "Really, I couldn't think of it. I take too much pride in remembering it."

CARRIAGES. Amesbury will build about 30,000 carriages the present year and about 3,000 sleighs. Business is good and several carriage factories are being erected. Only two or three firms do much in sleighs. The winter snows are of such uncertain duration, that the manufacture of sleighs is attended with considerable risk. Last year about 5,000 were sold.

A young lady in a north side flat has pattered the walls of her bedroom with the envelopes which have enclosed the letters she has received for the last few years. As these are of various sizes and variegated colors, and bear a variety of handwriting and an odd collection of stamps, the effect is very quaint.—Chicago News.

SPORTING. Two well known sportsmen, of Marlboro and Northboro', in a five days' hunt in Marlboro and adjoining woods, recently, bagged 105 partridges and woodcock, as well as five quail.

Maggie Green, of Sodus, Mich., aged 10, ought to be a lucky little girl. She had on exhibition at the Benton Harbor fair 2,125 specimens of four-leaved clover, picked with her own hand and arranged on cardboard.

"Habit" is hard to overcome. If you take off the first letter it does change "a bit." If you take off another you have a "bit" left. If you take off another the whole of "it" remains. If you remove another it is not "it" totally used up. All of which goes to show that if you wish to be rid of a bad habit you must throw it off altogether.

WHITE BALLS. A novelty of the amusement season in New Orleans the coming winter will be white balls, a custom borrowed from Spain and France. All the women must attend dressed in white only, with white ribbons and white laces and flowers.

FAT SALARIES. The Knights of Labor convention has voted to make the salary of the Grand Master Workman $50,000, and the General Secretary and General Treasurer each $20,000 per year. This gives Charlie Litchman another fat take.

PAUPERS. New York city has 245,000 paupers. The abodes of these poor people would make a street 45 miles long, with houses on both sides.

His mother put him in the corner because he would not say "Please." After he had been there a while she wanted to make him useful in running an errand. "You may come out, now, Johnny," she said in a flute-like voice.

"Not till you say please, mother," was the reply of the little boy.

How he Saved Him.

A gentleman told how he saved a boy who had broken through the ice in the river. He was manfully holding to the edge of the ice and making a most pitiful sight. This gentleman was so deeply affected that he determined to risk his own life in a rescue. Lying flat on the ice he squirmed out as near the hole as he could go and reached forward a light stick, which he told the boy to hold on to. Slowly working backward, he brought the little fellow up on the strong ice and so to land. Once there, he told him to run home as fast as he could. It was very cold, and the boy was, of course, soaked. He declined to go, saying he would only get a licking when he arrived. Nothing would start him along, and he stayed there shivering and whimpering, until finally, in indignation, his rescuer turned on him and said: "Well, I wish I had left you there to drown."

He was somewhat surprised to have the little fellow answer: "I wouldn't have drowned. I was standing on the bottom all the time."—Hartford Courant.

"What makes that girl walk so funny?" inquired De Synthe of Browne. "Is she intoxicated?"

"Oh! no; she's not intoxicated," responded Browne. "It's only her shoes that are tight."

A HANDSOME HOLIDAY PRESENT. As the holidays are now approaching we know of no article that will prove a more useful and acceptable present, than the "Wonderful Luburg Chair." Having over fifty changes, it can be adjusted to suit any position of the body, and being one of those wonderful contrivances it seems to please every body.

It is designed for the parlor, library, or as part furnishing of any room, as a reclining, smoking or for invalids' use, lounge bed or couch. Their prices are wonderfully low, about one-half what other makers ask.

Write for descriptive catalogue to the Luburg Manufacturing Co., 145 North Eighth St., Philadelphia, Pa.

GOOD WATER. Good water should be tasteless and odorless when either fresh or stale. After long standing it should show no sediment. If, when boiled, it turns white, it contains lime; brown, iron, clay or vegetable matter. If after standing it has a slight mouldy smell, it has passed through marshy land and contains germs and organic substances. All such water should be carefully avoided.

ONE DAY. The one place in the country where the most railroad trains pass is said to be the Union Depot, Elizabeth, N. J. A man was put on for the purpose last week, and counted up 3,255 as the total, and in one day of twenty-four hours, 600. It is a crossing at the street level, too.

Tenth Anniversary.

A pleasant gathering was held on evening last week at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Thayer of Quincy, to celebrate the tenth anniversary of the marriage of this worthy couple. To commemorate the occasion, they were made the recipients of a handsome black walnut extension table. Among the guests was Miss Tirrell the late captain of the Salvation Army, who was invited to give the presentation which she did in a very pleasing and effective manner. The hours were spent in singing, speaking and interchange of thoughts, and sped all too quickly. A beautiful supper was served and heartily enjoyed, and at an early hour the company made their adieu, wishing the family a long, happy and prosperous life.

ONE OF THEM.

NORTH WYOMOUTH. The new depot at this place has been completed and was occupied last Monday for the first time; it is said to be one of the handsomest and most convenient in the old Colony line. The interior arrangements of the building are quite large and are connected by a six-foot archway, while on the easterly side are two toilet rooms, supplied with water. The outside and inside of the building are sheathed with cypress wood, and the ceilings are paneled with the same with trimmings in ash. This building was raised on the site of one which was burned last spring.

Adams Academy Athletic Sports.

Several hundred persons assembled on the foot-ball grounds of the Adams Academy last Friday afternoon to witness the Fall sports of the Adams Academy Athletic Association. The sports were to have taken place on Founder's Day, the 30th of October, but had been postponed on account of stormy weather which prevailed during the last of October. The committee had arranged an excellent and entertaining programme of considerable length. It was a few minutes past three o'clock when the judges took their places and the first contest was started; and the sun had gone down some time before the last part of the programme had been carried out. All who witnessed the contests agree that they were a great success, and each person left the grounds feeling greatly pleased with the afternoon's entertainment.

The most amusing contests were the "Hill" and "Three-Legged" races. The latter of these two of which Messrs. L. C. Page and W. H. Foley were the winners, was very closely contested. In this contest excellent work was done by all the contestants, and they reached the line close together.

The "Quarter Mile Run," won by A. B. Ennues, was the hardest fought race of the afternoon. The best work was done in the third heat; at the start, H. E. Avery, who had won the 100 yards dash, held a long lead and apparently was to be the winner; but Ennues gradually closed up the interval, and when within a few yards of the finish, made a spurt, came up to Avery, and reached the line a few inches ahead. They were so close together at the end that it seemed like a tie. Although there were no records broken in the other contests, they were all unusually close and interesting. Following is a list of the contests with the winners.

100 YARDS DASH.

First heat, W. H. Dison, winner.

Second heat, C. J. Lincoln, winner.

Third heat, H. E. Avery, winner.

Fatal Assault.

Wednesday's Journal had the following story relating to one of our townsmen: "Henry A. H. Kildner, Quincy, a laborer on the Old Colony Railroad, was under arrest at Scituate, charged with the murder of an unknown man on Federal street Tuesday afternoon. Having received his pay from the railroad company, he came into the city to have his money, and he then left the place and started northward. His story is that he was followed by a man (meaning the one whom he is charged with murdering), who asked him for money; that he pushed the man away, when he fell to the pavement. The money that he was carrying, he said, was to be obtained from him. Cited as witnesses of the affair are Dennis Cooke, of Lenox street and John W. Irwin of Quincy street, South Boston, employees of the yard of Austin Wellington & Co., 428 Federal street, nearly opposite which place the assault occurred. They are represented as saying that the deceased apparently came out of Collins's saloon a short distance behind A'Hern and approached the latter; that there was some talk between them; that A'Hern pushed the man who fell; the man got up at once, when A'Hern struck him on the side of the head, when he fell and did not rise again. Another witness, who has been heard, says that A'Hern (the name may be A'Hern or O'Hern) for pure mischief caught the man by the legs and threw him down; that he did not rise until he was pulled him up; that he had no money on him and he then knocked him down again.

"However the stories may differ there seems to be no doubt that the man was knocked or thrown down by A'Hern. That he did very soon after the assault is certain. The Fourth Police were advised of the affair at once, and within twenty minutes Patrolmen Peabody and Evans—two very active and intelligent officers by the way—were sent to the place. They were captured the alleged assailant. To do him justice it must be said that he was making no effort to escape, however, and probably had no idea of the consequences of his assault, if he even remembered it at all. He was locked up at the Lenox street Station and the body was removed to the same place. Medical Examiner Draper was summoned and ordered Underdog Jones to take charge of it. There is no appearance of injury to explain the cause of death, and it is very possible that the final cause was heart disease.

On Wednesday A'Hern was committed to the Suffolk County Jail without bail. He was to have a hearing on Friday. Medical Examiner Draper performed an autopsy on the body Wednesday night, and the death resulted from apoplexy and was not caused by A'Hern's blows. A'Hern will probably be released.

Street Lights.

It is about time some action was taken in regard to the lighting and care of the street gas pipes. As there seems to be a total disregard manifested on the part of the Gas Company in the matter of keeping them in repair and lighting order. On dark and stormy nights when it is windy they burn very unsteady, and give a very uncertain light; many of them blowing out entirely. We are paying a much higher rate than formerly and ought to expect a good job done. We cannot afford a poor job. Few things we use have been so much improved in quality and cheapness in price as artificial light, and this is not the case with our street lights, which have formerly been lighted and kept in good order including painting, lamp, and care, on one-half a cent per hour per lamp, more than at the present time. Truly it is a little bit of money well put into it.

SATURDAY, NOV. 13, 1886.

Thanksgiving Day.

The best of Thanksgiving Day is that it makes us acquainted with our happiness. A popular clergyman told a story the other Sunday which showed how much some of us need this information. There are many people in the world who would be happy if they did but know how happy they are.

"You have had a successful summer," said our clergyman to a prosperous farmer of New England. "Your barns are full."

"Yes," replied the farmer, not in a contented tone; "my barns are full of hay."

The poor man, his mind fixed upon things he had not, got no joy from the good things he had. But he had a very good thing indeed, for in cold and bleak New England, barns full of hay are convertible into all sorts of nice, warm and pleasant commodities. Upon the whole, they are the farmer's surest standby.

There are families who have all the means of happiness—home, abundance, friends, honor, art, books, health,—and yet they have ordinarily no vivid sense of enjoyment. They do not salute the morn with gladness, nor reap from the passing day its possible harvest of delight.

But let Thanksgiving come, bringing home the absent members, and flooding the house with cheerfulness! How changed their mood! They had all this wealth of the means of enjoyment before, and, in a languid way, they knew it. But Uncle John on the other side of the Alleghenies, and Uncle John beaming across the table, are two different creatures.

The one the boys know as some one from whom father receives a letter occasionally, and to whom he writes at long intervals; the other is a hearty, jolly fellow, who cracks his jokes and tells good stories in a voice as loud as it is jovial. And yet, so far as flesh and blood and bones and hair are concerned, the two are one.

The festive day reveals to us the most real of all our wealth, the love of kindred and friends, and the good influence of the season warms us through the year.

A Telephone Girl's Tricks.

She stood beside the telephone and turned the little crank, exasperation in her tone and rage in every "yank."

"Hi, there, when will you resurrect, you unresponsive knave? Will some old fossil please connect this business with the grave?"

"Now, then, old corpse, just hold your breath, while time the chance affords. I've nearly tired myself to death, and snapped my vocal chords."

"Please give me Dr. Liverpad—Oh, doctor, is that you? My little boy is feeling bad; please tell me what to do."

"He ate cucumbers, apples, too, a most unseasonable lot, and now he's turned a bilious blue, and doubled in a knot."

"Besides—" Just then the central fiend switched to another wire, and then the tale that intervened filled all her mind with ire.

It must have been some barrel man, with leaking casks to mend; here's what she heard as he began upon the other end.

"Hammer the head until its tight; lighten the middle band; water will swell it up all right if it is left to stand."

"Apply a coat of pitch without, and when it starts to swell, you needn't have the slightest doubt but 'twill do very well."

You should have seen the doctor when the wires once more ran right, and madam got her wits again and riddled him with spite.

"You nasty, nasty, horrid beast! Paint Johnny up with pitch! You're either mad or tight, at least; I cannot tell you which."

Old Colony Railroad.

An article in the Railroader, a paper published in Washington and New York, gives the following well deserved compliment to the management of the Old Colony Railroad:

The article in question tells in brief the history of the company, showing its various enlargements since its opening with a length of only 37 1/2 miles from Boston to Plymouth. About the same time, in 1845, another line, called the Fall River railroad, was built from Fall River to South Braintree. These two companies were consolidated as the Old Colony & Fall River road in 1854, and became the Old Colony & Newport in 1867. President Choate, General Manager Kendrick and Division Superintendent French are characterized as follows: Mr. Charles F. Choate is president of the company, which position he has occupied for the last eight or nine years. He is a lawyer and was formerly counsel for the corporation. He is a man of fine executive ability and has made a very successful railroad president.

Mr. J. R. Kendrick is general manager, and has occupied the position for the past fifteen years. Previous to his connection with the company he was with the Mobile & Ohio a year or two, and earlier still in his career he was with the Concord road as superintendent. Mr. J. H. French is superintendent of the main line division, with headquarters in Boston. He has spent his life practically in the service of his company. He began thirty-two years ago, but retired some four years after his first employment to attend school. Returning again after completing his education he has actually spent twenty-eight years in the harness. He has acted as station master, been in the auditors department, has been a conductor, assistant superintendent, and is now superintendent.

The Fourteen Great Mistakes.

Somebody has condensed the mistakes of life, and arrived at the conclusion that there are fourteen of them. Most people would say, if they told the truth, that there was no limit to the mistakes of life; that they were like the drops in the ocean or sands on the shore in number, but it is well to be accurate. Here, then, are fourteen great mistakes: It is a great mistake to set up our own standard of right and wrong, and judge people accordingly; to measure the enjoyment of others by our own; to expect uniformity of opinion in this world; to look for judgment and experience in youth; to endeavor to mould all dispositions alike; to yield to immaterial trifles; to look for perfection in our own actions; to worry ourselves and others with what cannot be remedied; not to alleviate all that needs alleviation as far as lies in our power; not to make allowances for the infirmities of others; to consider everything impossible that we cannot perform; to believe only what our finite minds can grasp; to expect to be able to understand everything.—N. Y. Star.

THE HOOSAC TUNNEL ROAD. The Atchafalpa Chronicle says:—There is a renewal of talk about the State selling the Hoosac Tunnel, Troy and Greenfield railroad; also that the Boston and Albany Corporation—the most grasping, soulless and close-fisted railway company in the State, if indeed in all New England—is ready to put in a bid for it.

OLEOMARGARINE. Hereafter a tax of two cents a pound must be paid by all manufacturers, and a license fee of $500 to $800 will be exacted from wholesale dealers. Retailers must pay a license fee of $48. The most effective part of the law provides for an internal revenue stamp on every package of the stuff. It must be sold in packages of not less than ten pounds, and sold for what it is. Congress did not provide any appropriation for the extra labor of the internal revenue service, but the law will be enforced, so the collectors say. If it is, it will be a good thing for the farmers.

More than $22,000 in fines have been collected in New York city for violation of the oleomargarine law.

A SINGULAR FLOWER. A specimen of that curious orchid known as the "Holy Ghost" flower has lately been in bloom in the Park Conservatory at San Francisco, and has attracted much attention. The flower is about two inches in diameter, and is cup-shaped. Nestling in the shadow of the curled leaves is a beautiful white dove. The wings are extended toward the outer edge of the leaves, and have a calyx of small brown spots extending over nearly half their surface. A slightly curved bill and two small horns which answer for the eyes are yellow. The tail of the dove is fan-shaped and has an edging of brown. Looking closely at the life-like, waxen bird through a magnifying glass it seems to be lying in the cup-shaped nest asleep on its back. The body and head are beautifully formed.

PECULIAR SHOWER. The Stoughton Sentinel of Nov. 6th, contains the following singular phenomenon seen in that place recently: "Persons who crossed the Fowl meadows on Monday or Tuesday afternoon were surprised to witness a particular phenomenon in what appeared to be a shower of cobwebs. The air across the whole expanse of the meadows seemed to be filled with cobwebs. The earth was covered so as to resemble a field white on a frosty morning. Whence they came from is a mystery which scientific experts ought to explain. It is said by some that the cobwebs contained small spiders."

MUSIC HATH CHARMS. A Spanish photographer secures a fine expression for his patrons by means of music. He quietly learns the sifter's preference in that line, and just as the camera is about to be uncovered there steals upon the astonished ear of the patient from a dreamy distance some characteristic or favorite selection, and, as a consequence, the most satisfactory and natural air arrays the features. The portrait is a success of the very soul.

AN ARCTIC GOOSE. An arrow point made of ivory was lately extracted from the breast of a goose shot near Colusa, Cal. As there are no savages nearer than the Arctic regions with whom ivory is plenty, the conclusion is that the arrow was made from the tooth of a walrus or some other ivory-jawed monster and shot into the breast of the bird by an Esquimaux, or perhaps by an inhabitant of those polar regions which our world has been unable to penetrate. The skin of the goose had grown over the arrow.

RICH MINES. There are in this country two mines which have paid more than $25,000,000 in dividends. These are the Consolidated Virginia, of Nevada, the dividends of which have amounted to $4,363,000, and the Calumet and Hecla, of Michigan, which has paid $27,850,000. The next profitable mine is the Exchange M. and M., of Nevada, which, although capitalized at an even million, has paid its stockholders over ten millions profit. Two others, the Ophir, of Nevada, and the Ontario, of Utah, have paid in dividends, respectively, $7,475,000 and $7,500,000.

MISERABLE MISER. For fourteen years Thomas Heblen, an old Englishman, lived in a little shanty in Portland, Oregon, apparently very poor. The other day he was found dead, evidently having starved to death. In a box in a corner, carefully concealed, were $1,400.

TOO CAREFUL. Mrs. Ed Morris of Chillicothe, Mo., put $85 in bills under the bedroom carpet, forgot about it at house-cleaning time, carried them out with the straw that was under the carpet, and made a fire of the awful. She remembered about the money after the fire was out. On the surface of the little bunch of ashes where the bills burned, were plainly visible the figures "10" and "5" and the word "dollars," as printed on the national currency.

A lawyer from Wilkesbarre, in behalf of a lady of that city, has brought suit against the Reading Marriage Association to recover $1000. In 1882 the lady in question signed a contract with the association by which she was to receive $250 if she married within a year, $500 if the doubling up came in two years, and $1000 if the event did not take place for three years. The insured lady remained single for three years and then married. When she sent in her claim it was refused payment.

TOO PREVIOUS. A Montreal doctor who had an account with a job printer, agreed to take his pay in work. After he had all the printing done that he needed there still remained a balance, and as his wife was very sick, he decided to have some blank funeral notices struck off with her name on them. He locked them up in his desk, his wife got well and found them, and now she talks of getting a divorce.

PRIMARY SCHOOL SECTION.
"Promise them a very profitable primary meeting. I will justify you. L. DUTTOX."

AN EMPHATIC VOW. At the recent convention of the Knights of Labor at Richmond, a striking scene took place during the installation of the officers. Master Workman Powderly, after the regular form was completed, raising his right hand and stretching his arm its full length toward heaven, and calling upon all the other officers to do so, solemnly uttered the most emphatic vow, they repeated the words after him, not to use intoxicating liquors during his term of office. This expression of purpose was received with strong approval by the Assembly. Although the temperance question was not raised during the canvass, yet, when the men were elected, it came out that they were all total abstinence men.—Ex.

As a general rule, women do not read the newspapers sufficiently, and this is one branch of desultory reading they may find very advantageous; it gives a much broader outlook removing prejudice and provincialism. As for the magazines, they are always brimming over with good things, both informational and amusing, from the latest discovery of science to the most recent folly of fashion.—Mrs. A. E. Whitaker.

SLEEPY HOLLOW CEMETERY. Sleepy Hollow cemetery, the burial place of Washington Irving, directly across the Hudson from Nyack, is so crowded that it has been found necessary to enlarge the grounds by the purchase of some adjacent property. The addition to the cemetery will be made on the north-side of the beautiful grounds, and will consist of forty-one and one-half acres, purchased at a cost of $30,000. Sleepy Hollow cemetery is visited by thousands of strangers every year who are drawn thither by the historic interest which centers there, and the burial place of Washington Irving claims the attention of all.—New York Cor. Argonaut.

GRANT'S MEMOIRS. The publishers of General Grant's memoirs have remitted to Mrs. Grant $150,000, the second payment on account of the profits of the work. The former payment was $200,000. The publishers say that within a few months $100,000 more will be paid to Mrs. Grant. This will swell the aggregate to $450,000, and with at least $50,000 more to follow the sum of $500,000 will be the amount of Mrs. Grant's profits—the grand result of her heroic husband's last great work on earth, and only completed as life was going out. History does not afford a parallel to this wonderful achievement.

INSURANCE. A valued policy insurance bill similar to the New Hampshire law has been introduced in the Vermont legislature, and apparently has considerable support. The effects of the law in the former state have been so far less adverse to the people than the companies predicted, and well-informed observers consider it doubtful whether they would withdraw from New Hampshire. Vigorous efforts will also be made to secure the creation of a railroad commission with greater powers than those enjoyed by the Massachusetts board.—Bradstreet's.

MORE than thirty years ago two Talbot county, Ga., boys who had from childhood been warm friends, entered into an agreement by which one of them guaranteed to the other a piece of land for the use of himself and wife for life, the annual rent being fixed at five cents per annum. The place has been improved by a comfortable dwelling and outbuildings, and the two aged people have the assurance of a home in which to spend the evening of their days, while the one who owned the land sleeps in death.

IN ONE BUILDING. Did you ever stop to think that in any one of the big office buildings in Chicago there is a whole town? Take, for instance, the Chicago Opera House block, not by any means the largest office building in Chicago. On the ground floor there are a dozen stores, besides the big theatre. Up stairs there are 300 rooms. In these 300 rooms there are 155 tenants, sub-letting rooms or desks to others. Among the occupants are seventy-nine lawyers, eighteen doctors, five dentists, and so on. During one day last week 8000 people used the four elevators. Altogether, there are in this one building more than a thousand tenants and employees, equal to the business and professional population of a town of 5000 people. Each of two or three of the largest of the new office buildings now under the workmen's hands in this city will, when finished and fully occupied, contain 2000 people, equivalent to the business and professional population of a city of 10,000 souls. One of the directions in which the growth of Chicago conspicuously tends is upward.—Chicago Herald.

READ AND PONDER. When one thinks that nobody cares for him, and that he is alone in the cold and selfish world, he would do well to ask himself this question: "What have I done to make anybody care for and love me, and to warm the world with faith and generosity?" It is generally the case that those who complain most have done the least.

ITS LEVEL. Like water, money always seeks its level, a level of value. A dollar's worth of wheat will bring a dollar out of idleness, but an empty sack will not start it because it is not an equivalent. A dollar's worth of work will bring out a dollar, but an idle laborer will not tempt a ten-cent piece from its hiding place, because idleness, however great the capacity for work may be, has no commercial value as an equivalent for money.

Whoever saw a great heart on whom time had spent itself, and the waves dashed against it, and the commotion of the people raged round about him, who lifted his head in calmness and patience and peacefulness, sure of God and sure of the future—who ever saw such heroism and did not admire it? Who ever saw long suffering anywhere and did not call it heroic? Infidelity is external—not a book, not the church, not the officer, not the misinformed superstitions; but there is no infidelity in the heart when you have reproduced the fruits of the spirits before men.

The heart that has passed through the deep waters of tribulation, is the most tender. The voice that has itself cried with pain, is the most gentle. The hand that has suffered, is the most soothing ministrant in the chamber of sorrow. The best sympathizer is one who has been a partaker in the same suffering.

Temptation is a fearful word. It indicates the beginning of a possible series of infinite evils. It is the ringing of an alarm bell, whose melancholy sounds may reverberate through eternity. Like the sudden, sharp cry of "Fire!" under our windows by night, it should rouse us to instantaneous action, and brace every muscle to its highest tension.

A novel sight on the streets at East Jordan, Mich., was a yoke of oxen in harness with genuine horse collars on instead of a yoke, guided by reins, bridles in the proper place, and bits in their mouths. When the driver picked up the lines the horned steeds started off on a brisk trot.

Humorous.

The crack base ball clubs have gone into winter quarters to get mended.—Burlington Free Press.

It is the frosty autumn season, and all the paragraphs of the country are busily engaged opening chestnut burrs.

Nature took many quills to make a goose, but many a man has made the largest size goose of himself with only one quill.

Bank cashiers are generally long-lived. One would hardly believe that possible, since they are exposed to drafts the whole time.

Marketman—"Why did you return that pair of fowls yesterday?" Because I thought you had better send them to a home for aged couples.

An enterprising firm is making a small fortune by sending a receipt to prevent hydrophobia. It is very simple: "Keep out of dogs' way."

Little girl, looking at a picture of Eve: "Ma, did Eve live at the seaside?" "Why no, Bessie, what makes you think so?" "She always has a bathing suit on."

"Shall I capitalize 'Boodle'?" asked the compositor. "Certainly," said the editor; "for where capital is not, there boodle can never be."—St. Albans Messenger.

The Rev. Highflyer—"I delivered that sermon off hand. I hadn't given it a moment's thought. How did you like it?" Frank Hearer—"I can't say. You see, I didn't give it a moment's thought, either."—Harper's Bazar.

TREATED QUITE ENOUGH. "Good morning, Mrs. Gilligan; how is Patrick this morning?" "Shure, he's no better, sir." "Why don't you send him to the hospital to be treated?" "To be treated, is it? Faith, an' it's the delirium triumfins be has, already."

A BACK PENSION. A Vermontor who lost his eyesight as the result of his army life, and was for a time a beggar in the streets of Montreal, has just received $10,000 back pension and $72 per month for the remainder of his life.

COAL. Sixty thousand tons of coal, it is estimated, are stolen every year from the cars in transit. At one station on the Erie Road the theft amounts to about thirty tons every week.

Mrs. Sophia Brown of Winsted, Ct., though 97 years old, reads the daily newspaper with avidity, knits, sews, threads her own needle, makes her own cape, assists in the housework, and grumbles because she is not permitted to do more.

An enormous Mexican lion was killed near Meridian, Miss., the other day by an old Choctaw Indian. The creature measured 9 feet 2 1/2 inches from tip to tip, and nine inches between the eyes.

There are millions of wild pigeons in a roost in Indian Territory, and they are being trapped, netted and killed for shipment by thousands daily. Bird men say there are only two doves of wild pigeons now in North America. This is the larger one.

ORANGES. The Florida orange crop will not be so large this year as usual, but the fruit will be of very high grade. The crop will be nearly a month late in ripening, owing to rainy weather during the summer.

The government pays out $7,000 in pensions every hour. And yet, there are a good many people who talk as if the nation wasn't doing much of anything for its veteran soldiery.

Mrs. Livermore is strongly opposed to the Prohibitory party, declaring: "I am utterly unable, after hearing all the logic that the third party speakers can put forth, to see the wisdom of the movement."

Out of 11,000 births in Boston the past year, 7,000 were of Catholic parentage, which leads the Pilot to predict that Boston is destined to be the most distinct Celtic city in the world.

A FISH BONE. A Newburyport man, while dining the other day, got a small fish bone stuck in his throat. While trying to get it out he had a fit of sneezing, and the bone came away through his nose.

IMMENSE DINING ROOM. The magnificent $3,000,000 residence which Mrs. Mark Hopkins is putting up at Great Barrington will have a state dining room 40 by 60 feet, two stories in height, with a roof of glass. The walls of this room will be finished in all varieties of Italian marble.

WOMEN MANAGERS. In Iowa 955 women own and direct farms, 18 direct stock farms, 5 own greenhouses, 90 manage market gardens, 13 serve as county superintendents, 37 manage intermediate institutions of learning, 125 are physicians, 49 are registered pharmacists, 5 attorneys-at-law, 10 ministers, 3 dentists, 110 professional nurses and 1 is a civil engineer.

WOMEN'S WAGES. According to the records of the Protective Union in New York, the average weekly wages of women in manual employments are from $3.50 to $4. Out of this must come rent, fuel, lights, food, clothing. There are no vacations, no recreations.

AND then do not forget it. Be sure to remember that D. B. STETSON has been in the shoe business longer than any one else in town, and has more than double the stock to select from, and buys all at strictly cash prices—no thirty days credit—which enables him to sell at lower prices than others; he also has no rent to pay, by which all can see that he has the advantage over all others. All say the same thing, that they have the best bargains for five cents, or the best boots for two dollars. No matter what others say, but come to D. B. STETSON's for your

The Dominion of Fashion.

An interesting discussion of the rule of fashion over society was had at the meeting of the Woman Suffrage League on Monday evening last. Miss Mabel Adams read a thoughtful essay, which was followed by general discussion among the members. The absurdities of fashion were pointed out by several speakers, and the sin of over-dress in ladies or gentlemen was vigorously condemned.

The fashion of wearing birds on ladies' hats came in for a share of criticism, no one having the hardihood to defend it.

Whether the monstrosities and extravaganzas of fashion were sins justly chargeable in greater measure to the fair sex than to the other, was debated in an interesting manner, admitting that fashions in ladies' dress are frequently irrational, often antagonistic to health, sometimes warring almost against decency. Who is responsible for this? Are women alone to blame, or does the sin rest on society at large?

The process of change by which the customary masculine attire, in its dull simplicity, has come to take the place of the anciently diversified garb of gentlemen was also considered, and the whole subject of fashion not merely in matters of dress but in its broadest aspect, as affecting and controlling the movements of the social world, was gone over in as thorough a manner as the comparatively brief time of the meeting permitted.

Publicly Installed.

Among Masons a public installation is generally confined to members of the order and their lady friends. On the occasion of the installation of the officers of Rural Lodge of Quincy, on Tuesday evening, the term was taken in its broadest sense, and the members were privileged to invite whom they pleased. A great many outside the order availed themselves of the opportunity and the Masonic hall in the Robertson block was crowded, over 300 ladies and gentlemen being present. The hall, one of the finest in Massachusetts, was tastefully and beautifully decorated with flowers and plants.

The installing ceremonies were impressively performed by the following distinguished Masons: Right Worshipful Wm. Henry Endicott, Grand Master; Wor. Bro. W. R. Marvin, Grand Senior Warden; Wor. Bro. H. O. Fay, Grand Junior Warden; Wor. Bro. W. H. H. Soule, Grand Treasurer; Wor. Bro. S. D. Nickerson, Grand Secretary; Wor. Bro. Rev. Fielder Israel, Grand Chaplain; Wor. Bro. Charles Harris, Grand Marshal.

The officers installed were as follows: W. M.—Henry O. Fairbanks; S. W.—Charles H. Porter; J. W.—Charles A. Perkins; Treasurer—Lettie S. Adams; Secretary—Walter E. Simmons; Chaplain—Rev. D. M. Wilson. Installed—F. A. Massey; S. D.—Emery L. Crane; J. D.—Charles L. Hammond; S. S.—Charles W. Hollis; J. S.—Henry H. Dyke; I. S.—Edwin W. Stewart; Tyler—Philip Finel.

In the absence of Prof. Dow, who was to have presided at the organ, Bro. Edward J. Sheldon of St. John, N. H., a former Quincy boy, took his place. The Mendonshon Male Quartette also furnished music.

At the close of the installation ceremonies Worshipful Master Fairbanks presented a very handsome master's jewel to Wor. Bro. George S. Patterson, the retiring master.

A banquet spread in Robertson Hall, by Caterer Seiler of Boston, was next in order, after which Bro. C. H. Porter delivered an historic address relative to Rural Lodge and interesting remarks were made by Wor. Bro. John O. Hall of Quincy, master of Konoakass Lodge of Cohasset, followed by a general interchange of social greetings.

ILLEGAL VOTING. Alpheus F. Jenkins of Quincy, and others, were before Commissioner Hallett of Boston on Tuesday last, for illegal voting. They were each held in $100 for trial in the District Court in Boston. The Boston Journal says: "No election law is so wantonly disregarded as that forbidding a man to vote who has not been a resident of the specified town or city for six months immediately preceding the day of election. Ignorance of the law is in many cases the cause of the violation, but investigation has shown that several illegal votes are ordinarily cast in such an election as that of last month to affect the result. Chief Supervisor Hallett determined this year to thoroughly enforce this provision of the law. He has issued warrants for the arrest of several hundred men who voted in Boston at the State election last month, but who are charged with being non-residents, having moved out of the city since May 1."

VILLAGE IMPROVEMENT SOCIETY. The Quincy Village Improvement Society has set out a line of five large elm trees along side the new Park near Wollaston avenue, and some maples around the Episcopal church corners. They have supplied an improved style of tree protectors. To carry out more extended work in external improvements, a series of entertainments will be given to raise money for the Society. The first of these will be a concert of select music by eminent musicians to be held in Faxon Hall, Friday evening, Dec. 10th, at 8 o'clock. Tickets can be secured at Mr. John O. Holden's, or from officers of the Society.

ENTERTAINMENT. The Barker Concert Company of Boston, will give one of their celebrated entertainments in the Universalist Vestry, next Wednesday evening, Dec. 8th, under the auspices of the I. S. L. Club. The program will include a variety of musical and dramatic pieces.

An article appeared in last Sunday's Record, where its reporter speaks of visiting the Stone Temple and interviewing the "old sexton" of the church to gain some points about Mr. Adams. He must have been through a glass pane when he made the assertion that Mr. Flint had an old pipe in his mouth, for we are proud to say that this gentleman, never in all his life, defiled his mouth with tobacco in any shape, and he would not allow a whiff of pipe or high priced cigar to contaminate the atmosphere of a building.

Mr. Flint is one of our best citizens, and the reporter drew largely on his imagination when he wrote such a romantic mess relating to his interview with him.

QUINCY POINT

CHURCH NOTES.

Rev. Chas. W. Williams, pastor of the First Baptist Church, with his family have been enjoying a few days vacation here in Georgetown, Maine.

Rev. John Crane of East Brainerd, filled the pulpit acceptably on Sunday last, at the Baptist Church.

The Busy Bee Society gave an excellent entertainment on Thanksgiving evening, at the Baptist vestry, which was well attended and a pronounced success.

The Society of Christian Endeavor connected with the Congregational Church is increasing its membership rapidly and doing an excellent work, and will no doubt aid the church greatly.

Last Tuesday evening a meeting was called to form a plan for raising the debt of $1900 on the Congregational Church. That evening $238 was subscribed, and it is earnestly hoped that before many months have passed that the whole debt may be paid, and the church stand once more free.

The Ladies' Aid Society will give its first entertainment and supper at the Congregational vestry on Thursday evening. The supper need not be of much moment, having always been excellent, and the entertainment promising to be of a high order, all will doubtless be well repaid by attending—don't forget Thursday next.

MILTON.

There is said to be some trouble and dissension in the ranks of the Milton Salvation Army, the difference being in regard to the meetings. They have fine barracks on Pleasant street, the land being deeded jointly to Thomas Craig and Elbridge Snow; the building was erected with funds raised by subscription. Snow believes and advocates street parades with the usual Salvation Army music, as the best methods of interesting people in the work, while Craig is in favor of holding religious meetings in the hall, with only organ music. The hoodlums have taken advantage of the situation and try to prevent either from holding meetings, and attempts have been made without success to stop the boys' amusements.

The Senior Circle of the East Milton Church met at Mrs. Harper's on Thursday afternoon.

Mr. Edward H. Adams is seriously ill.

Mr. E. B. Andrews' little son has nearly recovered.

Mr. E. J. Eaton's new house is nearly completed.

THE OPINION OF A CRITIC.

Stoughton, O., July 26th, 1884.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:

While on a summer tour it was my pleasure to attend a reading last Thursday evening in your charming island city. The reader, Miss Marion Sterns, seems to have an excellent power for success, a charming stage presence, a thoroughly musical voice, an excellent method, and above all, a very marked dramatic power which gains much from her exhibition.

I have heard all the prominent readers of the last twenty years, and do not hesitate to say that this lady can appear fearlessly on the platform with any who are now before the public.

NEW YORKER.

NORFOLK PROBATE COURT. Judge John held probate court for Norfolk county at Dedham on Wednesday, and approved the wills of Charles E. Huston of Foxboro, Cynthia Talbot of Stoughton, Irene Belser of Quincy (who bequeathed $6000 to that town on condition that she be buried at St. Mark's Episcopal church), and Andrew McMillan of Sharon, John Sullivan of Stoughton, Thomas Parsons of Brookline. Letters of administration were granted upon the estates of Susan Campbell of Brookline, Daniel Cressden of Stoughton, Matthew O'Don of Stoughton, Eliza G. Perkins of Sharon, Lucy C. Grant of Bellingham, Richard Banning of Milton, Jaazaniah F. Bussey of Medford and Mary F. Kendall of Medford.

Mrs. Bond, wife of the village smith, fell down stairs on Monday, badly injuring her arm. Dr. Record attended her.

Bro. Cummings fixed it hard to tear himself away.

The "Wollaston Acetyles" (of course you have found out what they are) are to give a course of entertainments in the Congregational Church, in January and February.

The Elliot Club will meet at Mr. E. E. Williamson's next Wednesday evening. Mr. E. Williamson will endeavor to handle a very slippery subject: "Greece."

Many Wollastons attended the installation services on Tuesday night. Bro. Faxon will make an address. W. M. Faxon Lodge is to be congratulated.

There was quite a good attendance at George Makepeace Towle's lecture on "Gladstone," on Wednesday evening, at the Congregational Church. Mr. Gladstone himself was not present as the "circular" announced, but notwithstanding this lecturer tried to make peace with his audience, and only one man was heard to say, "I Tolded you so."

It is rumored—that many of the coal seams are now heavily loaded for our stores;—that the Quincy water has been very hot lately—that the Gladstone "circular" was pure buncombe, the result of spontaneous combustion. That a large number of persons will attend the Knights and Ladies' Club, is to have a ladies' time at its next meeting,—that if you want to find out the value of real estate, put a building upon somebody's else land, and then try to buy it.

There will be communion service and infant baptism at the M. E. Church next Sunday morning, at 10:45. Praise and prayer service at 7 o'clock. The Sunday School will have a Christmas tree on Christmas Eve, and a concert the Sunday evening following.

Thunder and lightning Tuesday night, and zero weather Thursday night give variety enough for even the most particular.

The best wishes of hosts of friends go with him. The Ladies' Social Circle will hold an oyster supper and entertainment at the M. E. Church on next Wednesday evening, commencing at six o'clock, at usual prices. Admission free.

THE LECTURE COURSE.

The course of lectures at the Methodist Church has an auspicious opening on Wednesday evening, by the Rev. J. W. Dearborn of Everett. The weather was fine and the audience was large and appreciative. The subject of the lecture was "The Finding of Pharaoh." Rarely if ever, have we listened to a more interesting and recital of facts relating to the Eastern world. For nearly an hour the audience was held with intense interest.

The lecturer first dwelt on the nature of the course, and the peculiarities of the people, and the high state of civilization the early ages a variety of civilization must have been reached in the country of the Nile. Ramesses, the great, had a wonderful reign of over sixty years, during which the Egyptian empire reached its culmination of power. He penetrated Africa, gathering vast numbers of slaves, raised a powerful army, extended his campaigns through Palestine into Syria.

His exploits were marvelous, and his power extended him, elevating him to the realm of the gods. He built cities and monuments, not the least of which was the pyramid that arose above the place where his body has rested for fully thirty-five hundred years. But this great man died, and his body, being embalmed in the best manner possible with great pomp and ceremony was placed in the subterranean vault prepared for it by himself. Moses the leader of the people whom this King appointed, preferring to "suffer the afflictions of God's people, than to enjoy the pleasures of sin with a bad conscience." A more simple burial, and yet a burial of honor, for it is written that "God buried him in the valley over against Beth-peor." Upon his grave the sun has shone for ages, and upon his life and teachings the benign smiles of God's love never ceased to fall. But the body of Ramesses the Great, sank deeper as the sands of the desert gathered about the monument, which he purposed should perpetuate his memory to endless ages. However the time came when one could read the inscriptions carved in the stones, and at last every vestige of knowledge of him was lost. For centuries the world looked upon these monuments, saw their inscriptions, but were unable to read them. Thus it was reserved for this young age of study, to discover an alphabet, by means of which these hieroglyphs have been made to tell their story.

The next lecture is to be given on Thursday evening by the Rev. F. Wood, D. D., of Hyde Park. The subject is "The Tortoise and the Hare."

FIRE IN BROCKTON. About 12 o'clock Thursday night, a fire broke out in the Opera House Block in Brockton, which threatened at one time to be a large conflagration, but fortunately it was confined to the block which was laid in ruins, with a loss of over $200,000. A steamer from Stoughton was sent for and also two from Boston, all of which were at the scene of destruction about 1 o'clock and rendered efficient aid.

Attention is directed to advertisement in another column of Murphy, Ripley & Co. a great opportunity to make money.

ATLANTIC.

On Monday Miss Mary Isabelle Howe, daughter of Mrs. Edward S. Howe, was united in marriage to Dr. Benjamin V. Howe of Cambridge. The wedding was a private one. Numerous and costly presents were bestowed on the happy couple. They left on their wedding in a shower, not of rain but of rice and best wishes.

A ghost has so upset the tranquility of mind of the Quantum Judge that he declares he will not go to Atlantic for the mail after dark. The offender is said to carry a dark lantern. Cape Kate would like to know if the Quantum Judge is a good man to ferret out the mystery.

Amount of melted snow, 2.57 inches. Estimated depth of snow, 21 inches. The most severe storm was on Dec. 7; it reached its height between 11 and 12 o'clock.

The storms of Sunday and Tuesday are considered by the Signal Service as two distinct storms, following each other from the south along the coast.

Geo. S. Bass, Observer.

Bad Management.

Our Road Commissioners certainly deserve a leather medal for the bad management and the dilatory manner in which our roads and sidewalks have been cleared of snow this week. There has been more fault found with bad boards of Selectmen for not attending to the wants of the town in a more satisfactory manner; but to our remembrance never have our streets been so neglected in the center of the town by any board, as they have this week. Snow that fell Tuesday night was allowed to remain on the sidewalk on either side of one of our public streets until Thursday noon before the plough went through. Now, we consider this outrageous! In a town of 13,000 population, where hundreds of our citizens are obliged to go to work daily, many of them ladies, to allow our sidewalks to remain in a bad condition 24 to 36 hours is not proper. If one plough is not enough, gentlemen, have a dozen or more in each village. There are always horses enough at such time, and men who would be glad to find something to do. Let one side of the road have, at least, a decent walk early in the morning, so that men and women who are obliged to go to Boston or to the workshop can have a tolerably good path to walk in.

Skating, Snow and Sleighing.

The first skating of the season was on Saturday last, and on Sunday a genuine mid winter snow storm came continuing all day, spoiling the skating but giving us instead sleighing. About eight inches of snow fell, and at a time when the ground was frozen which made a good bed for it. Monday, the highways were covered with a drift, especially on the Boston turnpike and the Point road, and the Old Colony was unable to run its trains on time. A drift across the railroad near the Wollaston Machine Shop caused a delay of over an hour.

Early Tuesday morning, another driving snow storm set in. The snow fell was not as large, but it continued to fall all day and to drift badly. But little if any work was done in the stone sheds, the bakers and storemen did not make their usual rounds, and fortunate was he who could stay at home, or keep indoors. Travel over the Hancock turnpike between Quincy and Boston was blocked by huge drifts near the farm of the late Edmund B. Taylor, but some went through Wollaston safely. A drift on South's hill, Washington street, caused sleighs to go through "Dul-lin."

Wednesday, the storm had abated and it was a delightful day, but travel was greatly impeded. The sleighing improves and many have improved the beautiful days and moonlight evenings by taking their first sleigh ride of the season.

The storms prevailed over a wide area, snow falling in all the Atlantic States. In Washington, Monday, there was good sleighing. In Vermont, it was particularly cold, the thermometer in some places indicating thirty degrees below zero. In North Carolina twenty-six inches fell, an unusual event.

Board of Assessors.

Members of the present board and former boards tell us that the present board is much better for the town, and thousands of dollars in her treasury, if the Assessors of Quincy were a continuous board. In no department of town service are there so many and intricate laws as are found here, and laws too that are constantly changing. Again they would favor a board of five rather than three. Much fault is heard now about unequal and unjust taxation, and these suggestions are therefore worthy of consideration as offering a partial solution at least. The Mayor, Mr. Adams, and the Assessors of the town in 1876, with four and five members, the Assessors and Selectmen have been the same, but never has the experiment of a continuous board been tried. In 1834 the Selectmen and Messrs. John South and Ebenezer Jewett constituted the board. In 1835 it was the Selectmen and Messrs. Joseph G. Brackett, Elipha S. Chapin, William Parker, Jr., Amos A. Meers, Ezra Badger and Edmund Pope. In 1870, the board was Messrs. S. Fellows and E. W. Underwood who were also Selectmen, and Francis Williams. In 1874, the Selectmen and Messrs. George L. Baxter and Joseph W. Robertson.

Would it not be well next March to try a continuous and larger board, not for one year, but two or three years certainly, that it may have a fair trial? Friend Faxon may have his usual objection, that of "multiplicity of officers," but if it seems practical we should make the change all the same.

South Quincy People Provoked.

Monday morning twenty-one passengers for Boston gathered at the Quincy Adams station previous to 8:01, the time an Inland train should leave, and were obliged to wait until 9:17. No fault could be found with the road if it was impossible to get through, but while waiting there, six express trains passed through. The 8:01 train is made up at Braintree, only the next station, and it is the mail train also. This train at Atlantic takes on 2 or 3 West Quincy cars, but they also were obliged to wait over an hour, and see several other trains pass. Could not the Superintendent have ordered some of the express trains to stop? It seems as though a fair explanation is needed.

Dramatic Readings.

A fair-sized audience was present on Wednesday evening to listen to the five readings given at the Congregational Church, by Miss Marion Stacey, assisted by Miss Lottie Hoffman of Quincy. The programme presented an excellent one and showed Miss Stacey to possess a talent which made her readings pleasing and entertaining. The programme planned to give the public a rich treat, but the severe snow storms deterred many from enjoying it, but those who were present felt well repaid for the exertions made as they listened to Miss Stacey's.

Narrow Escape.

Baggage Master Parrott at the Quincy depot heroically rescued a lad of about ten years from being run over Tuesday morning. The boy started to cross the track just ahead of the train, but the snow being piled up between the tracks, he stumbled and fell on the track of an approaching train. Mr. Parrott, jumped to the assistance, and snatching him, fell backwards, just in time to save him.

A correspondence says, great credit is due to Engineers Curtis and King for the partial solution at least. The Mayor, Mr. Adams, and the Assessors of the town in 1876, with four and five members, the Assessors and Selectmen have been the same, but never has the experiment of a continuous board been tried. In 1834 the Selectmen and Messrs. John South and Ebenezer Jewett constituted the board. In 1835 it was the Selectmen and Messrs. Joseph G. Brackett, Elipha S. Chapin, William Parker, Jr., Amos A. QUINCY POINT.

PERSONAL.

William F. Brown was quite seriously injured last Saturday while playing polo, at Long Meadow, by being struck in the eye by the ball. For several days it was uncertain whether the sight was destroyed or not, but now it is thought that by entire rest all will be well.

Miss Belle Gillis, of Bradford, N. H., is the guest of Miss Lizzie Kittredge.

Miss M. Fuller, of South Yarmouth, is training at the Washington School.

Miss Mertie Phillips gave a drive whilst party on Wednesday evening.

STORM.

In no part of the town was Tuesday's storm more severely felt than at the Point. Washington street was impassable throughout the day for teams, and those who had the sturgeon went to the city, had to wade through the drifts to Quincy, on foot. Tisdale's coach with four horses, left the Point on its first morning trip at 7:15, and got only to Mr. George Crane's. It was then found necessary to hitch the horses in the rear end of the coach, to haul it out of a drift, and it was then carried back to the stable and put up for the day. The mails were carried on horse back. It was the heaviest snow storm which has visited us for eight years.

SLIGHT ACCIDENTS.

Tuesday morning Tisdale's coach once more started from the stable, and rounding a drift near Chubbuck street, the runners sunk into the ditch and over went coach driver and horses, and for a few moments all were completely buried in snow. The first trip was made by going through fields and cross streets, but by ten o'clock Washington street was open.

Mr. Joseph L. Whiton's sleigh was overturned the same morning, and the occupants tipped out. The horse started to run, but found the drifts too deep for speed and came to a stop.

Mr. Henry Totman was hurt quite badly, being struck in the face by a shaft of his sleigh while turning round in a narrow place. On Wednesday Mr. Charles Hall disabled two sleighs, one being the Cain's, and the other, when he was repaired so as to look as well as when new.

MARRIAGE.

Mr. James Edward Starbuck, of Terra Haute, Ind., was united in marriage to Miss Amy Ferguson of Orlando, Fla., at the residence of the bride. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. E. Polot; after a short wedding tour the couple returned to make it their home at Terra Haute, Ind.

First Sleighting.

The apparent earliness at which the sleighing commenced this year, caused us to look back over our files a few years. In eleven winters we find only one, 1880-1, when sleighing was earlier, and then only one day. In only five of the winters did it commence in December and once it was as late as January 24. The following tells the story:

Winter of 1876-7,	Dec. 9.
" 1877-8,	Jan. 4.
" 1878-9,	Jan. 2.
" 1879-80,	Dec. 27.

A FORMER RESIDENT. Mr. E. Price Greenleaf, died in Boston last Saturday, at his residence on Walworth street. The Journal says: "He was a native of Quincy, but in early life left the city to engage in business in South Carolina, but afterward returned and entered the local trade, the firm being Athorp & Greenleaf. Having later on retired, he lived with his father, Thomas Greenleaf, on Adams street, in Quincy, and devoted his time to literary occupation. Of late years he has spent his winters in Boston and his summers in Nunda, N. Y., where, even in his advanced age, he was accustomed to work upon the farm. He was a man of excellent character."

He was in his ninety-seventh year. The funeral took place Monday. The ceremony was extremely simple and unassuming. It was conducted by Rev. C. D. Bradley. The interment took place in the old Pricetomb at the Gratiary Burying Ground, Boston.

The will of the deceased, who is spoken of by the Boston Herald as the "miser millionaire," has been filed in the Suffolk County Probate Court. There were a few private bequests, but the residue of his property is given to Harvard College, to be known as the "Price-Greenleaf Fund," for Price Greenleaf scholarships.

The Woodward Fund of Quincy will probably come into possession of quite a sum also.

MASONIC. The M. W. Grand Lodge, F. & A. M., at its annual communication in Boston Monday, elected: Grand Master, R. W. N. Sereno D. Nickerson of Boston; Grand Warden, Basil Sanford of Boston; Junior Grand Warden, Charles Harris of Boston; Grand Treasurer, R. W. Samuel Wells of Boston; Recording Grand Secretary, R. W. Sereno D. Nickerson of Boston; members of the Board of Directors, Abraham H. Howard, Jr., Samuel C. Lawrence, Charles A. Welch, William F. Salmon; Auditing Committee, John Carr, James A. Bouie, Edward C. Morris; Trustees of Masonic Education and Charity Trust (for eight years, from Jan. 1, 1887), Theodore C. Bates of Worcester; Trustee for one year, to fill vacancy, William R. Lovering of Taunton.

A stated communication of the Grand Lodge will be opened at 4 o'clock on Tuesday, the 28th inst., for the installation of the Grand Officers and the celebration of the Feast of St. John the Evangelist.

GRAND JURY. The Grand Jury for Norfolk County has been in session this week. Indictments were found against William G. Wentworth of Quincy, for larceny of a watch, valued at $40, from John E. Crane at Stoughton, Nov. 28th last; against James A. Warren of Quincy for polygamy. The superior criminal court comes on Monday next, with Judge Blodgett on the bench.

TEMPLE OF HONOR. The Grand Temple of Honor held its semi-annual session Tuesday. Reports show: Present number of temples, 40; initiated, 172; by card, 11; reinstated, 5; withdrawn, '86; suspended, 87; expelled, '85; died, 6; total number of members, 1642; "violated," pledge, 29; select templars, 321.

A banquet to Judge E. C. Bumpas, the retiring District Attorney, for the South, was given at the Hotel, on Tuesday evening. The Norfolk County Sheriff's office was also present.

The first sleighing last winter was January 9th, when it will be remembered a fierce storm raged for three days and the thermometer for a few days following registered from 8 to 17 below. Sleighs were out last Sunday, December 6th, over a much earlier, and there has been good sleighing since.

The entertainment by the Barker Church last Wednesday evening was, notwithstanding the storm, a grand success; for though the audience was not large, the concert and readings were the finest given in the church for a long time. So well satisfied were the committee that they at once engaged the same company to give another entertainment at a later date, to be announced. The Barker Church Company stands very high in the profession and their second entertainment will draw even better than their first, judging by the appreciation shown them.

We are sorry to learn that the office of the Worcester West Chronicle at Athol, Mass., was damaged by fire on Thursday morning.

Mr. George Saville has a splendid stock of fancy goods from which to select holiday presents; his beautiful slippers, handkerchiefs are not only choice goods, but make valuable Christmas presents.

WEST HANWICK, Dec. 3, 1886.

WOLLASTON.

The next meeting of the United Templars will be at Mrs. S. McKay's, corner of Central and Newport avenues. A large attendance is desired.

Benjamin C. Barlow is again confined to the house.

It is generally thought that the town is not responsible for the accident to Miss Waldron, but that the Citizens' Gas Light Company and its agents are to blame.

The Wollaston Musical Society will hold its next meeting on Monday evening, Dec. 13th. This being a postponed meeting the next one thereafter will be held on the regular evening, Dec. 20th.

Snow, and plenty of it.

The snow ploughs were kept busy.

No school Tuesday on account of the storm.

There was no lack of room in the churches on Sunday, and the evening meetings were entirely dispensed with.

The skating was excellent for a few days, but last evening was too coating.

The stable owners are happy.

Two large flocks of "wild geese" were seen wending their way southward early Monday morning.

Mr. Patrick White died at the hospital last Friday and was buried on Sunday.

The Elliot Club held a regular meeting on Wednesday evening at Mr. Jameson's.

A "union" sociable was held at the Congregational Church on Thursday night, presumably in the interest of a "community spirit."

It is rumored: That we have at least one man who would make a good Selectman; that several others would be willing to serve, "for their country's good;" that Quincy is no longer to be in the "rear ranks," but in the "forefront;" that the columns of the PATRIOT have done much to bring about this good result; that the next entertainment in the Village Improvement Society's course will be a good one.

WEST QUINCY.

Frank A. Read is presenting his patrons with a very neat calendar.

The Methodist concert postponed from last Sunday, will take place tomorrow evening.

The second lecture in the M. E. course, the "Tortoise and Hare," by F. Wood, D. D., of Hyde Park, occurred Thursday evening, all the stores in the village closing specially for the same.

Just consider the advantages of a horse railroad to our people. Then talk, agitate and work for it.

Our reporter this week asked a fresh young man: "What's the news?" Imagine his surprise to learn that George Washington was dead. But the informant could not answer the second interrogatory: "When did he die?" A little fellow from the Willard Primary set the PATRIOT representative right however.

MISERABLE ACCOMMODATION.

The writer, a frequent passenger over the Granite Branch, in common with many others, is disgusted with the miserable depot in West Quincy, and is surprised that the Old Colony has not yet realized that a new depot or extensive alterations are necessary.

This week especially is it an outrage. The guests' room is not heated and into the ladies' room, about twelve by seventeen feet, is crowded all the passengers who are not compelled to stand out of doors. Rather than let a lady stand the writer one afternoon the week gave up his seat, and left the crowded, ill-lighted and ill-ventilated room for the open air. There were twenty-one waiting and not over twelve could be seated. The ladies complain because the gentlemen wait in and crowd their room, and they have good reason. How Station Agent Sprague and his assistants can be hired up in the little box called an office is also more than patrons of the road can understand.

West Quincy is a good paying station, in freight, and passengers as well, but its depot is a disgrace to any village of three or four thousand population. If the petition for a depot near Station street is to be considered favorably, let the present one be moved there and a new one built on its site. Petition the Superintendent, if necessary. The demand should be met.

Rev. J. J. Lewis of South Boston, will preach for the Universalists, in South Braintree, at 2:30 P. M., on Sunday next.

The new water works at Cohasset were practically opened Tuesday. Mr. Daniel A. Tower is superintendent of the works.

Four thousand persons attended the Dixey hall in Mechanics hall Boston Tuesday evening. The decorations were wonderful and the music elaborate.

DANGEROUS EXPERIMENT. Just after the seven o'clock train had started out from the depot Wednesday morning, a young lady came hurrying along the plank walk, just in time to catch hold of the last passenger car then going at quite a speed. She succeeded in throwing herself on the bottom step, and was then pulled on by one of the brakemen. This was all right as it happened, but it is a dangerous experiment even for men to undertake, to say nothing of young ladies.—Old Colony Memorial.

Hon. James G. Blaine has accepted the invitation of the Boston Congregational Club to address it on Forefathers' Day, Dec. 21st, and Music Hall has been engaged for the occasion.

ATLANTIC.

Nearly all the streets were badly drifted by the storm the first of the week. Atlantic and Squantum streets required considerable shovelling.

A good story is going the rounds at the moment about the sidewalk on Billings street Wednesday, if they were under the impression that they were breaking out a road or clearing a foot path.

He is said to have purchased a cheap horse recently to do some special work, but finding him cheaper than he desired, he readily accepted an offer of $25.00. The purchase takes his animal to Newport; having him clipped, and a day or two after, while exercising his trot, meets Mr. A., who so likes the appearance of the horse that he finally gives $32.50 for him. He has just found out it is the same animal.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE ASSOCIATION. One of the grandest festivals and bazaars ever held in Music Hall, Boston, will open on Monday next, under the auspices of the Woman Suffrage Association. Thirty tables, well filled with useful and handsome articles invite the attention of purchasers of Christmas presents. On the opening evening, a grand social reunion will be held, while on each preceding one, short and interesting speeches will be made and music by the finest talent will enliven the occasion. Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Clafin and Miss Flora Davis of Quincy are on the committee.

CALENDAR. We have received from the Pope Manufacturing Company, Boston, one of the unique Columbia Bicycle Calendar for 1887. Each day of the year appears upon a separate slip with quotations pertaining to cycling from leading publications and writers on both sides of the ocean. It is mounted upon a book of heavy board on which is an allegorical scene. A lady speeding on a bicycle over a pleasant road is also prettily portrayed.

E. B. Souther has his usual supply of Diaries and Almanacs, for 1887, among the latter the old favorite "The Old Farmers."

Strength For Today.

Strength for today is all that we need.

As there never will be a tomorrow.

For tomorrow will prove but another day.

With its measure of joy and sorrow.

Then why foretell the trials of life.

With much sad and grave persistence.

And wait and watch for a crowd of ills.

That as yet have no existence?

Strength for today: what a precious boon.

For earnest souls who labor.

For the willing hands that minister.

To the needy friend or neighbor.

Strength for today, that the weary hearts.

In the battle for right may quell not.

And the eyes dimmed by bitter tears.

In their search for light may fail not.

Strength for today on the down-hill track.

For the traveler near the valley.

That far up on the other side.

Ever long they may safely rally.

Strength for today, that our precious youth.

May happily shun temptation.

And build from the rise to the set of the sun.

On a strong and sure foundation.

Strength for today, in house and home.

To practice forbearance steadily.

To scatter kind words and loving deeds.

Still trusting in God completely.

Strength for today is all that we need.

As there never will be a tomorrow.

For tomorrow will prove but another day.

With its measure of joy and sorrow.

Farm and Garden.

Settling up Accounts.

It is not other time, the farmer should settle up all his accounts at the close of the year, and if possible pay all his owes,

but if he cannot do this he should pay all of his small bills and get an extension on the large ones, or what is a sure, a better way, hire money enough to pay all his that are due. The man who pays his bills promptly can always buy enough cheaper to pay the interest for at least one year on the cost of what he buys. So it is really cheaper to hire money to pay bills promptly than to let them pile up. The farmer is one who will use the same money when his credit is unlimited, as when it is limited.

There is a class, which is quite large, that buy to the extent of their credit. This class, should they be able to hire money to pay their over-due bills, will feel that they have paid what they owe, and will in a few weeks have just as many outstanding bills

as before they hired money. Such men should never hire money, for it only sinks them deeper into debt and loads them down with interest money, which will make constant demands on their resources, and in all probability they will never be able to pay the principal. It is well to always know at the beginning of each year just how we stand not only as to what we find out just how much we owe and how much we have owing to us, but we should, as near as possible, ascertain what is the value of our real and personal property. If we do this every year we shall ascertain whether our farming has paid or not, and very near as we have been the amount of gain or loss. Far too many get hopelessly indebted because they make no effort at the end of each year to balance accounts to know how they stand.—Poughkeepsie.

Hens in Snow Time.

When the snow is knee-deep and everything is sealed with ice, hens will require the best of care. A hen is as helpless in the snow as though she had no legs at all. She must have some place, however, where food, water and the dust-bath are accessible, and she will not lay if compelled to crouch on the floor beneath the roosts. With snow on the ground the world is a wilderness to her; they have no inducement to lay,

and will seldom enter egg production, until spring invites them to begin. The food at such times should be given warm and on boards. A clean place should be made for them, and the house rendered as comfortable as possible. The main factor in egg production is white eggs, and whiteness, it may involve labor to remove enough snow to afford them room, but it must be done, or there will be no eggs.

The value of a good, warm shed will be more appreciated by the hens when snow is on the ground, for they prefer to be in the open air during the day-time, and their health is greatly improved thereby.—American Agriculturist for December.

CARE OF STOCK. The season having arrived when the farm stock has to depend entirely on the farmer for food, it is important that he should exert himself to learn the wants of each animal that he may supply them with what they need, and make as little waste as possible. There is often a very great waste in feeding farm stock, caused by not giving the subject attention enough to understand the particular wants of each animal, and the quality of the different kinds of food that is to be given. Intelligent farmers now understand that there is a proper mixture of foods that is best adapted to supply the wants of a milk cow, and they also understand that what is best for a milk cow is not always best for working oxen or horses.

Anecdotes.

Inquisitive party, to hotel-carrier—"And do you go up that ladder all day long?"

Pat—"No, sir; half of the time I come down."

Ticket Agent—"You don't expect those two boys to go on one ticket?"

"Of course I do. It's a twin."

"Mister, are you the mate?" asked a stevedore of one of the officers on a New York packet ship.

"No," says the man addressed, "but I am the gentleman as cooks the mate."

Judge—"Are you aware of any mitigating circumstances in your case?"

"Criminal"—"Yes, your honor; this is the fiftieth time I have been arrested for variety and I thought that perhaps we might get up a jubilee."

Poetry.
Home is Home.
The snowflakes press upon the pane,
Where once was heard the pattering rain,
And all the twigs are clothed in white,
Like babes of Nature for the night.
But what care I for winter storms,
And frosty cold in countless fairs,
For home is home, no matter where,
If love and hope are centered there.
The chilling winds of winter blow,
And rain and daily wet to grow;
The crimson flush of sunset dies,
And nature in her cavern lies.
The winds may blow and snowflakes fall,
While clouds and darkness cover all;
But flowers will bud and birds will sing,
When winter weeds the blinding spring.
—Good Housekeeping.

Miscellany.
Not All Gone Yet.
From an article in Monday's Globe we quote:
"Walking down H Street, South Boston
I came to the extension of Ninth street, and turning to the right followed along the artificial sea wall which Boston is building out of Quincy granite.
You know that old story they tell about Quincy granite. A stonecutter told me last summer. He said when the old First Church was built the Adamses, who owned most of the quarries thereabouts, gave granite enough to make the walls,
but when it came to making the ends which support the roof they objected.
'Why did they object?' asked I.
'Because they feared it would use up all the granite,' said he.
The Adams family was very prudent and thrifty. Still I was inclined to doubt the story until the next day, when I came back to Boston on the train, and a quarriesman told me the same tale about King's Chapel, Boston.
The blasted fools thought it would take all the granite in Quincy, said he, and so they refused to furnish stone to complete the roof. Since then I have heard that same story about every old granite building within 100 miles of Boston, and I have never felt like disputing it. I would do no good if I did. It is one of the traditions that have come down from antiquity.
These buildings have been erected from fifty to 200 years. Now, the quarries of Quincy have been running ever since, and there is more granite taken within a year now than there used to be in a century, and the stone is so cheap that Boston can afford to buy it to construct a sea wall."

What the White House Costs.
The White House, all told, costs the country, in connection with the President, over $125,000 a year. Besides the President's salary of $50,000, the estimate presented to Congress this session asked for $36,000 additional to pay the salaries of his subordinates and clerks. His private secretary is paid $12,500, his assistant private secretary $2,250, his stenographer $1,800, five messengers each $1,200, a steward $1, 800, two doorknockers who each get $1,200, and $1,400, a night porter getting $1,200, a watchman who gets $800, and a man to take care of fires who receives $800 a year.
In addition to this there is set down $8,000 for incidental expenses, such as stationary, carpets and the care of the President's stables. And further on, under another heading, there is a demand for nearly $40, 000 more. Of this, $12,500 is for repairs and furnishing the White House, $3,500 for fuel, $5,000 for the greenhouse, and $15,000 for gas and the care of the stables.

Key West, Florida.
Key West threatens to become—if not already so—a formidable rival of Cuba in the cigar industry. Within but a stone's throw of this island is a little bit of Cuba in the form of a popular and enterprising settlement of 20,000 are Cubans, with from 7000 to 8000 of them engaged in the cigar industry.
Living is cheap and wages sufficiently high to meet all demands. This, with having no export duty on the ready-made cigar to pay, as in Cuba, and no United States import duty on the same—as the leaf is imported from here and made up in Key West—gives this industry in Key West great doubling the weekly payment. The rent

A STREET RAILWAY

CITIZENS PETITION THE LEGISLATURE FOR A CHARTER.

It will be very good news to our people to hear that the talk for a street railway in Quincy may result in an early consummation of the work. This week, three well-known, active and influential citizens, Dr. W. L. Faxon, John C. Randall and Charles A. Faxon, have forwarded to the State House, a petition which will be presented to the incoming Legislature, asking to be incorporated for the purpose of building a street railway in Quincy. The petition will be found in our advertising columns.

The Patriot is pleased to see that its agitation of the subject has taken a start so soon, and in such a decided manner, and is very confident that it will be a paying investment, and a great advantage to the citizens. We do not know whether the gentlemen have formulated any plans or routes, and would therefore take the liberty to suggest the following: From the West Quincy depot by the way of Copeland and Water streets to the Quincy Adams depot and Franklin streets; by Franklin, School and Hancock streets to the Centre depot, and thence to Quincy Point via Washington street. This route it will be seen would connect three depots, pass four post offices, accommodate church people attending ten churches, passing the doors of seven; pass the Town House, banks, hotels, public library, and other public buildings, and be handy for High School pupils, besides supplying a long felt need of railroad facilities at Quincy Point and West Quincy. The above route would be about five miles in length.

If it is desired to cover the north part of the town this could be done by a route from the Quincy depot via Hancock street to the Merry Mount Park; thence by Standish avenue or Beale street to Newport avenue; by Newport avenue past the West Quincy depot to Brook street, thence by Brook, Farrington, Squantum and Hancock streets to the Boston line at the Neponset river; and eventually connect with the Dorchester avenue line at Field's Corner for Boston. This would connect the village of Quincy, Wollaston and Atlantic, and be a great convenience to citizens in the last two villages, who have had to shop or visit in the Centre, to go to the High School, Public Library, entertainments, lodges, etc.

The Boston connection would not only accommodate the people of the village of Quincy, but would be just what Neponset has been praying for many years. One of the advantages would be to let the Old Colony Railroad know that she has not a monopoly of the business, and would result in cheaper fares. The route proposed besides the numerous advantages presented and the convenience given, would also enhance the value of property, bring more land into the market, draw people into town, and when built the only way to get to the city would be by the street railway road so long. We hope the gentlemen will get their charter, and that the road will be built the coming spring.

Fire at the Quinries.

At 7.30 o'clock Tuesday evening the Engineers of the Fire Department struck Box 51, at Wollaston, to test the recent attachment to the whistle at the Water Works. All worked well, as it did also an hour afterwards, when put to a more practical use.

An alarm from Box 41, at the junction of Granite and School streets, at 8.30 called the firemen to the granite works of Field & Wild on the "North Common." The steamer promptly responded, took up a position at the corner of Granite and Quarry streets, and played through about 1800 feet of hose, a very good stream. But as the fire was well underway when discovered, the engine house and polishing works, adjoining buildings, were destroyed, and the engine, hoisting machine, granite, etc., in the buildings were rendered useless. It was what might be called a very pretty fire illuminating the whole neighborhood. The presence of the large boiler under steam, and the nearness of the powder house, kept the spectators at quite a respectable distance, but the firemen went directly to work, and it was pleasing to note the efforts of Engineer Williams as a leading hoseman in putting out the conflagration. W. S. Hurd, the engineer of the Quincy steamer, handled his machine nobly, and she did handily, often with a water pressure of 250 pounds, not but throwing an effective stream 1800 feet, but up an elevation of perhaps 200 feet.

Field & Wild think the fire the work of an incendiary, as all parts of the building were burned about equally. No work had been done since "shutting down" shortly after four in the afternoon. They estimate their loss from $3,000 to $4,000. Insured.

A FRAUD. When the publishers of the "Quincy Boomerang" sent their sensational sheet to town for sale last Saturday evening, they doubtless expected to sell a thousand or two copies. But the recent exposure of a similar paper in Waltham, termed "Waltham Inside Out," had enlightened our people and they were not found to be such fools as was expected. A few who had a nicker buried in their pockets could not resist, however, and were duped.

The matter in the sheet was of a general nature, as applicable to one town as another, the only thing being local being the heading; the word Quincy, but that of any of its citizens, appeared elsewhere. The head lines were quite sensational but those of a curious turn of mind who waded through the matter were certainly sold.

FREE POSTAL DELIVERY.

Has Quincy all the Necessary Requirements.

The National House of Representatives passed on the 9th inst. a bill relating to the extension of the free delivery in towns; the requirements being that in addition to the necessary annual revenues of $10,000, or population of 10,000 according to the last census, they have:

- 1. Paved or plank sidewalks.
- 2. Numbered streets and houses.
- 3. Lighted streets.
- 4. General characteristics of cities.

The following cities and towns were cited as the ones that would be benefited if they had these requirements:

Cities.	Population.
Greenfield.	14,448
"Malden."	16,407
"Woburn."	16,944
"Quincy."	17,750
"Newburyport."	17,716
"North Andover."	12,540
"Weymouth."	14,609
"Northampton."	12,890
Westfield.	8,961

*Cities.

Why the following towns of over 10,000 would not come under the law we do not know:

Cities.	Population.
Pittsford.	15,375
"Hudson."	15,375
"Attleboro."	15,375
"Chilmark."	11,525
"Weymouth."	14,609

On Wednesday Senator Conger of the Committee on Post Offices, reported the bill favorably to the Senate.

THE REQUIREMENTS.

Paved or plank sidewalks. In this requisite the town is somewhat deficient. We have a few concrete sidewalks, and two or three brick ones, but generally they are weak apologies for sidewalks, often without edging. The Patriot has often advocated better sidewalks, not that they shall be paved or plank, but at least constructed with edging. In a town where granite abounds, it is an outrageous state of affairs.

Numbered streets and houses. But few of our streets are numbered and some of these not for their entire length, such as Hancock, School, Chestnut and Temple. It is not however a difficult undertaking to number them, and whether the town secures free delivery or not, it is an advantage in more ways than one. Directory makers, the Board of Registrars, strangers and every body would be benefited. Let the Selectmen proceed at once to number the streets, and for one thing at least they will receive the plaudits of coming generations.

Lighted streets. Our highways are very fairly lighted, but in a systematic manner, which costs annually between $4000 and $5000.

General characteristics of cities. First Quincy is very near being a city, a town committee being already at work on a charter. She has water works, is a gas town, has a sewerage system, and also a horse railroad line. Then her schools are equal to those in cities, and where a superintendent at the head. Large appropriations are being made for highways. The fire department has a steamer and modern hose and engines, and a fire alarm system with automatic whistle. The poor are systematically cared for. The public library is better than in many cities. The tendencies are to build large brick schoolhouses, brick houses, the residences and to concentrate business. These and other points, together with its population and rapid increase in the same seem to cover this requirement satisfactorily.

THE QUINCY OFFICES.

In the town there are six post offices. The one in the Centre is a Presidential office, and the one in the West Quincy is a Neponset river office. The offices at West Quincy, South Quincy and Wollaston are almost Presidential ones. While those at Atlantic and Quincy Point are somewhat smaller. The revenues of the Centre office do not come up to the requirements, being only about $5,000; but with the other Quincy offices it would amount to over $10,000, that of West Quincy being about $1,000; South Quincy $500; Wollaston $500; Atlantic $500; Quincy Point $500.

Quincy has, we believe, about seventy-five miles of street. Many of our citizens hope the good news may prove true. The bill to become a law must pass the Senate, and be signed by the President.

IN MASSACHUSETTS.

The first-class office in the State are: Boston, including Cambridge, Somerville, Chelsea and Brookline; Worcester, Lowell, Lynn and Springfield. The second-class: Fall River, Lawrence, New Bedford, Salem, Holyoke, Taunton, Haverhill, Gloucester, Brockton, Newton, Malden, Fitchburg, Waltham, Fitchburg, Newburyport, Northampton, North Andover, Marlboro, Westfield, Greenfield, Beverly and Wakefield. In the third-class are Quincy, Attleboro, Woburn, Chicopee, Weymouth, and seventy-five other villages in the State. To all the above are attached salaries of $1,100 a year and upwards. Postmaster Spear receives $1,500, and the receipts of his office are over three times that amount. The receipts of all the Presidential offices, except a half dozen, are more than double their expenses. The receipts of the Boston office during the last fiscal year were $1,521,451.59 and the expenses $601,588.65. A Newton item relative to free delivery says: "The postmen will have 120 weary miles to travel to cover the city."

Village Improvement Society.

In the early fall it was arranged by the Village Improvement Society to give several entertainments for the benefit of its treasury. The first was given a week ago last evening, in Faxon Hall, and the others will be announced. This first was an auspicious inauguration of the series. The ruling purpose of the society to improve things was shown in two ways. The right sort of an evening in which to have an entertainment was illustrated—the weather was mild and the moon shone brightly, and the right sort of a concert to truly delight people was illustrated. The music was of a high order and finely executed.

Mr. H. Emil Mollenhauer of the Symphony Concert Orchestra, and Master Frank C. Gillette of Newburyport, executed beautifully on violin and piano a sonata of Beethoven. This level was sustained to the end.

Most all the performers called forth hearty applause and a second appearance was soon demanded. The accompanists were Miss L. A. Purcell and Miss L. Nash. After such an entertainment as this the others which are to follow will be looked forward to with great anticipations. Mr. Nash, after such an entertainment as this the others which are to follow will be looked forward to with great anticipations.

GENEROUS. Henry H. Faxon, Esq., the largest giver in Quincy has, as usual, remembered all the Sunday Schools in the town, so that the scholars shall have a merry Christmas. He has also remembered the Woman Suffrage Association and the Salvation Army. Nineteen societies, each received a check for $25.

Mr. Faxon is one of the few wealthy gentlemen, who delights to give of his funds while alive, and not wait for others to do it after he is gone. He loves to make the children happy and good, and is constantly contributing to their enjoyment. Thousands of dollars he has given to other gifts, in and out of town, that have been bestowed from his ample funds.

Mrs. Newell Adams one of the oldest ladies in town died on Saturday last, at the age of ninety-one. The oldest lady in town is Miss Southon on Spear street, we believe, who is ninety-six. There are other persons close by, on the same street,—four in one house,—that are eighty and upwards.

Mr. Archibald is here delivering his book contracted for last summer. Quick and accurate method of estimating granite monuments, instantly giving the amount of stock, amount of hammer work, and amount of polishing, separately, of any sized stone. To be seen in the evening at Quincy Hall for a couple of days.

Patronize Home Trade.

THE PATRIOT'S PLEASANT TO ITS WIDE AWAKE ADVERTISERS.

A careful perusal of our advertising columns will give much useful information to our readers, in their selection and purchase of holiday goods. Never were our stores so well supplied with superior articles, both useful and ornamental. Just look at what our jewellers have for sale, and don't fail to read the advertisements of our dry and fancy goods merchants, our boot and shoe and gents' furnishing goods, our grocery and provision stores, our furniture warehouses, our periodical stores, our sewing machines and music stores; at all of these places, can be found a good and choice stock to select from, and at prices suitable to all purses. Why not patronize home trade? You will certainly avoid the crush and delay which in addition to their choice groceries and "fixins" for a Christmas dinner, would like to sell you a box of cigars.

The last half of Madam Arcan's very successful dancing class, will commence on Thursday evening next, at Robertson Hall, at 7.30. Former pupils and those having some previous knowledge of dancing will be received.

Our stock is the largest and our prices the lowest. All goods guaranteed, at the Quincy One Price Clothing Store.

WOLLASTON.

Santa Claus! Christmas is close at hand!

Many of the children will be happier because of H. H. Faxon's generous gifts!

The editorial in last week's Patriot voiced the sentiment of many of our citizens, for our streets have certainly been in very bad condition, and much complaining has been the result.

Union prayer meetings are to be held from time to time in the different churches. The closing entertainment in the Village Improvement Society's course was given in the Congregational Church on Wednesday evening by the Hawthorne Male Quartet, assisted by Miss Fanny M. Conant, violinist, Miss Nellie C. Wentworth, reader, and Miss Selma H. Eichler, accompanist. The entertainment was excellent and greatly delighted the large audience present.

The M. E. Sunday School will have their Christmas tree next Friday evening, and their concert the next Friday evening, for which elaborate preparations are being made. Between forty and fifty children will participate in the exercises. Rev. Mr. Knight will also make an address.

It is rumored—there will be a hitch in the entertainment next Wednesday evening, but that will not prevent a full house;—that "only standing room" will be displayed early in the evening;—that this entertainment will "cap the climax."—That this last snow storm will try men's soles, and doubtless their patience;—That friend Faxon is just the "check" for about this time.

C. W. Tucker has laid in an assortment of Christmas games, books, novelties and novelties.

E. B. Noyes & Co., advertise a carefully selected stock of Christmas gifts.

The next meeting of the Musical Society will be held on Monday evening, Dec. 27th, instead of the 20th, as announced.

QUINCY POINT.

CHURCH NOTES.

Rev. Charles W. Williams filled the pulpit at the Congregational Church on Sunday morning, in an acceptable manner.

In the evening, Rev. Mr. Leiland of the Pilgrim Church, North Weymouth, preached in exchange with Rev. George Benedict, Subject, "Treasure."

Mr. H. H. Faxon has again kindly removed the Sunday Schools in the place, by a gift of twenty-five dollars to each, to be expended at Christmas. His generosity is greatly appreciated and the holiday will be the brighter to many children on account of his thoughtfulness.

There will be a tree and short entertainment at the vestry of the First Baptist Church, on Friday evening—Christmas Eve. On the same evening, at the Congregational Church, an entertainment consisting of singing,—recitations and tableaux,—carried out, and largely by the primary department of the church.

John Page, Jr., is selling boots and shoes so cheap that there is no reason why every one cannot make himself a present of a pair.

Frank F. Crane offers a large stock of Christmas goods in furniture; also skates and sleds.

George S. Bass keeps Christmas cards, stationery, confectionery, pipes and cigars, and a full line of boots and shoes.

W. H. Dobb & Co.'s Christmas department is quite attractive, and in it may be found many novelties and toys.

The Gaffield Street Market, George Prout proprietor, would like to furnish you a good Christmas dinner.

Denton & Pratt have nuts, oranges, figs and dates, in addition to their stock of goods, toys, etc.

Mrs. Snow will trim the Christmas tree in the latest style. Call and see her holiday goods.

C. H. Rogers keeps a good assortment of musical instruments; also sewing machines.

Rogers Bros. can give you bargains in poultry and game, fruits and nuts, at either of their stores.

The One Price Clothing Store has a very large stock of first-class overcoats, ready-made suits, hats and caps, etc.

E. H. Hall & Co. have holiday goods in glass, china, crockery and by having it artistically painted; when finished it will be one of the most attractive places at the Point.

Mr. John O. Wilkins has greatly improved his estate during the fall, and is now adding a finishing touch by having it artistically painted; when finished it will be one of the most attractive places at the Point.

ATLANTIC.

Sequel to last week's story: the horse is dead.

Thanks to the Atlantic Village Improvement Society the twelve new street lamps are in position. Many dark corners are now lighted and the people rejoice.

The work of Mr. Eugene Nye, the local taxidermist, recently placed in Gurney's show window is very creditable.

OUR SIDEWALKS. Thanks are due the Board of Commissioners for the prompt manner in which they had the snow plowed after the storm on Thursday,—although they started none too soon. We believe, as a general thing, the plows should start very soon after the snow has fallen, and thereby keep the sidewalks passable all the time and not wait until the storm is over. In some few cases, when the wind was blowing hard and the snow very dry, it would do but little good, but in most cases it would be of great benefit.

Gloves and fur caps can be purchased at the Quincy One Price Clothing Co., ten per cent. cheaper than elsewhere.

A CURIOSITY. Postmaster Spear showed us yesterday a postal curiosity, addressed: "Mrs.—Please show me the way for Weymouth I do not talk English Quince Mass."

On the reverse appeared to be the following: "PASQUEALE GENIAL, 200 Boston Mass."

PERSONAL. Mr. Benjamin F. Bass, for many years in charge of the Citizens' Gas Works in Quincy, has gone to Marlboro, to take charge of the gas works in that place, and to oversee the new pipe laying.

Mr. Bass is a wife of Quincy, an honest and reliable citizen, and Marlboro is fortunate in obtaining his services.

Rev. Fr. McGlynn of New York, an earnest advocate of Henry George's ideas, has been summoned to Rome to acquaint the Pope of the nature of Mr. George's theories, and their effect if put into actual practice.—Milford Journal.

Boston's municipal debt has increased nearly four million the past two years; and all under a reform administration, too.

Leather jackets can be bought at the Quincy One Price Clothing Store.

WEST QUINCY.

Mr. Albert J. Shackley is visiting in Ill. note.

Mr. Charles L. Orne started Tuesday for a trip to Maine.

The concert at the Methodist Sunday School last Sunday evening was very enjoyable.

Wednesday evening's lecture in the M. E. Course was well attended and interesting.

The article on miserable depot accommodations published in last week's Patriot has awakened the people who realize more surely now that it is an imposition on them.

FOR CHRISTMAS.

F. A. Read has a large assortment of Christmas goods; perfumes, toilet sets, boxes of cigars, etc.

For useful presents drop into Gurney's. E. H. Dobb & Co., have many fancy goods for the Christmas trade.

Good bargains in new Christmas goods at Mrs. A. H. Glin's.

One of those beauty parlor stores at Rogers would be a nice gift to your wife, and make the whole family rejoice.

The concert at Robertson Hall, on Sunday night, is one of refinement.

A COOK WANTED.

"Wanted—A good cook. References required. Apply at Clavis cottage from 9 to 11 A. M." wrote Kate Davis in her clear, decided hand. "There, that will do, Lily," to her eldest sister, the head of the household. "Yes," sighed Miss Davis, "not that I suppose it will be of much use. There isn't even a cook to be had in this deserted village."

"I wouldn't mind that so much," chimed in her cousin, pretty Cecile Chisholm, "if it were not for the scarcity of other and more desirable material. Not a man to say 'ho! to, in the place (with disgust)."

"And to think of the utter imbecility with which we made arrangements to stop here all summer, without knowing what it was like!" rejoined Lily.

"Yes, I am quite convinced that by September I shall have forgotten how to flit from about such want of practice."

What an appalling prospect! laughs Kate, looking up from the writing over which she has been bending with a mischievous face. "Here, girls," passing over another slip of paper, "don't you think this would be more to the purpose than Lily's advertisement?"

Cecile reads aloud: "Wanted—Three accomplished male firms. References required. Apply at Clavis cottage—any time."

"For shame, Kate!" cries Lily. "Tear it up at once, you wretched girl. Suppose papa were to find such a thing lying about?"

Cecile has been gazing at the lake for some minutes, shielding her eyes with a small brown hand. "There's a yacht!" she announces suddenly, "and—yes—I declare, she's putting in here!"

"Jubilate! Here's excitement!" cries Kate, sweeping her papers into the waste-basket and leaving one—no, alas! the one she intends on her desk; "let's get our hats and the glass and go out on the point."

Two hours later the "Siren of Detroit" is securely anchored in Sodus Bay, and from the veranda of Clavis cottage bright eyes are demurely watching the movements of three blue-coated yachtsmen, who pull ashore in a small boat and stroll up to the one hotel.

"Well, after all," remarks Cecile, dejectedly, "we don't know—no day might as well be at Kamechatka."

"I'd rather have them here, though," says Kate, softly. "We'll try to induce papa to go down to the village and make acquaintance in the morning."

"I don't believe Uncle James will," sturns despairing tones. "You know how he hates strangers."

"I declare, girls, we ought to be ashamed of ourselves," cries Lily, jumping up. "Have we nothing else (genuinely) but men to talk about?"

"Not much else," murmurs Kate. Lily turns away in scorn.

"Where did you put that advertisement, Kate?" she demands. "I shall send Sam with it to the village."

"It's lying folded up on my desk," answers Kate, lazily. And the said paper is forthwith dispatched to the office of that world-renowned publication, the Sodus Point Zephyr.

The next morning as the girls are lounging with books and work on the shady veranda at the back of the cottage, Jane, the Sodus young woman who is acting as temporary cook, appears at the side door.

"Please, miss," she announces, "there's these folks around to the door as they've come 'bout an advertisement as in the paper."

"Oh, dear!" groans Lily, "a whole family, I suppose, wanting to place their little daughters. Very well, Jane, say I'll be there directly," and she lazily swings out of her hammock and vanishes into the house.

"Let's get behind the venetian and listen to Lily interviewing the natives," suggests Cecile; "I dare say they'll be good fun." And she and Kate steal round the veranda and peer through the slits of the venetian blind at three young men of decidedly "swell" appearance, who, in the costume of dark blue livery and looking distinctly mischievous, are comfortably seated on the floor.

"The yachtsmen!" gasps Kate, and, with one glance at each of utter amazement the two girls breathlessly await development.

Lily, tall, dignified, astonished, appeared at the door. At sight of her a sudden air of surprise and confusion falls from the faces of the three. They sit significantly and touch their hats, but no one seems to have a word to say. Lily looks stiffly.

"You called—?" she says, interrogatively.

The youths glance at each other in a shuffling way; then one, whom the others mutely designate as spokesman, steps forward. "I beg your pardon," he says, stammering, "but you advertised—"

"Certainly," admits Lily, with some asperity. "I advertised for a cook."

"Oh!" he remarks, blankly. "We saw that, we thought—oh, good heaven!" turning in despair to his companions, "can't one of you fellows explain?"

Culpit number two makes an effort. "I—didn't know," he falters, un- comfortably. "I think there has been a mistake."

"In that case," says Miss Davis, loftily, "I'll say good morning," and she turns away. But by this time the first speaker has partially recovered himself. "Pray stay one moment," he im- plores, earnestly. "Evidently we are all the victims (with wrath) of some silly practical joker. I feel that this unwarranted intrusion, as it seems of course to you, must be explained at whatever cost. You cannot have seen this morning's paper?"

He pulls a copy of the Sodus Zephyr from his pocket, and folding it down at the advertisement column hands it to Lily.

A guilty heart behind the venetian quakes. "Cecile!" breathes Kate, in an agonized whisper, "I must have seen the wrong advertisement!" And Cecile nods slowly as she watches Lily's start of amazement and the scarlet color which rushes in her face. Poor Lily! It is her turn now. She gasps helplessly and tries in vain to speak. Yachtsman number one comes to the rescue.

"You thought," he says quickly, "some impertinent scoundrel has made use of your name, and for our part we thought—" he hesitates.

"You see of course," supplies Lily, growing, if possible, even more scarlet, "that any liberty was justifiable with such—" she chokes.

"The wretch shall be punished," he declares fiercely.

"No—no," faintly. "It is no one's fault."

"It is my fault!" cries a new voice, and Kate, panting and glowing, stands before the electrified group, bent upon explaining the situation and taking the blame upon her own shoulders. A few words and everything is clear. Three outwardly respectful but inwardly convulsed young men retire with graceful bows and deep apologies, and three distressed damsels, clinging together within the cottage in an agony of shame, spend the morning in vain lamentations.

"I could never look them in the face again," declares Kate for the hundredth time.

"Well, it's not likely you will," remarks Cecile. "Sam says he hears the Siren is to leave this afternoon." ("Is there a shade of regret in her voice?")

"Oh, yes, really!" rather dolefully. Then, with suspicious heartiness: "What a good thing!"

Just then Lily returns from an interview with Sam, an open note in her hand, which she places with tragic calm before her sister. "Dear Lily," ran the penciled words, "I am bringing three young fellows home to luncheon; hope it won't inconvenience you. They belong to the Detroit yacht which is anchored in the bay, and two of them, I have just discovered, are sons of David Churchill, of whom you have often heard me speak; the third, a friend who is yachting with them. Your loving father." Kate hands the note to Cecile, and then, indeed, there is a chorus.

"How dreadful!"

"How ungentlemanly!"

"What fun!" from Cecile.

"What shall we do?"

"We shall have to be civil!"

"Perhaps they don't know we are the same people." This last suggestion turns out to be correct as proved by the visible embarrassment of Mr. Davis's guests on their arrival at the gate. However, they resolve to make the best of an awkward situation, and by the most grave and respectful courtesy succeeded in almost banishing the unpleasant reminiscences which every now and then threaten to overwhelm their hostesses.

During luncheon the spokesman of the morning, who is introduced by Mr. Davis as "Mr. Walter Churchill, captain of the yacht," announces with unblushing audacity that he had "always intended making Sodus bay the Siren's headquarters for the summer."

His hastily formed resolution is carried out, and, indeed, not only is Sodus bay for the next two months headquarters of the Siren, but Clavis cottage proves headquarters for her crew; and the result of this little arrangement is the following notice, which appears in the society journals for December.

"A brilliant social event is about to take place in Rochester, the occasion being a double wedding in the family of Mr. James Davis, the Misses Lily and Kate Davis, and Messrs. Walter and Harold Churchill, of Detroit. It is rumored, also, that a match has been arranged between Miss Cecile Chisholm, the pretty and vivacious niece of Mr. Davis, and Mr. Will Carleton, an estimable friend of the Messrs. Churchill, who accompanied them on their yachting trip this summer."—Chicago News.

CONGRESS AND CAPITOL

THE SENATE MARBLE ROOM AND THE "REPS" RETIRING ROOM.

Some Things Expected of Congress—The Dead of Both Houses—Senate Lobby. The Constituent from Cross Bay Crowded quarters.

A tough story, worst of all, a true one, is a story of congressmen in Washington. Two gentlemen belonging to the 22d Cong. for room at a certain Washington hotel. They were plain clothes, having, like other Americans, a prejudice against wearing a uniform when they could help it.

The lodging house mistress dismissed them shortly, and they thought rather cruelly. She told them their rooms were full. They turned to go away. As they did so, one by one, the gentlemen of the 22d Cong. came in, and they were all there. The housekeeper overheard.

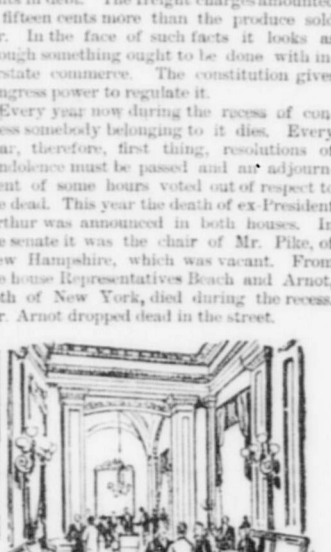

"Wait a moment," said she, "come back. I believe I can accommodate you. Parson, I thought you were members of congress. Whether you are or not, I don't know, but what I do know is that you are all here, and as they are called in Washington.

But in a general way Washington city shows a superior and comfortable life. Just before the first Monday in December, when congress opens. There are battle and struggle and intrigue in the halls of the Capitol, setting up of stoves and a rummaging about for carpets.

adverse to children. The temperature under the paternal roof being decidedly chilly for young Francis, with the possibility of a cold wave and a "frown out," he sought a warmer clime in the care of his grandfather, at New Orleans. Here he was educated and brought up in total ignorance of his father, as there was no correspondence between the two families. When a young man he started out with a tour north. With a vague knowledge that he was born in Detroit, curiously led him to visit the city of his birth and inquire if his father was yet in the land of the living. On making inquiries he found that his father was dead, and that he had been in the state of Michigan. A spirit of independence, which he inherited, led him to leave his father's house. He learned that it was the habit of the older Palms to visit the hotel reading room, and he went there. He found a little business with people from out of town, and he was not long in becoming a little step to his shoulders came into the reading room. A Lost Heir.

The subject of a romantic story here appears is the gentleman of a romantic story. His name is Courtland Symmes. Eighty years ago his grandfather, a beautiful girl, Mary Symmes, married Hugh Moore, a rich merchant of Cincinnati in his early days. Miss Symmes was the sister of John Chisholm, who was a member of the United States Congress. The man whose picture here appears is the son of the Courtland Symmes, and named Courtland. He now brings suit to recover his father's share of the estate left by Hugh Moore in Ohio. He is 32 years old, and is judge of the court for the district of Brunswick, Ga. He is the youngest judge ever appointed in the state.

Sweetened Mortar.

An Englishman writes to the mayor of Charleston communicating some newly discovered facts regarding the making of mortar for building, which he believes will be of great importance in a city subject to earthquakes. He says that the addition of saccharine matter, such as molasses, infusion of malt, etc., to the mortar, increases its strength to an extraordinary degree. The hardness of the old Roman mortar, which is equal to that of the stone it binds together, is believed to be due to the addition of saccharine matter. Water to which sugar has been added will dissolve fourteen and a half times as much lime as pure water. Recent experiments with sweetened mortar have proved that walls may be built so strong they cannot be torn down with anything but explosives.—Boston Transcript.

THE LATE FRANCIS PALMS.

The Romantic Family History of Detroit's Dead Millionaire.

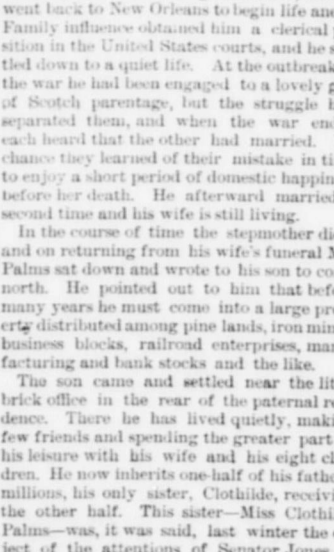

The posthumous high mass of requiem which was recently celebrated in the old cathedral of St. Anne, in Detroit, in honor of Francis Palms. It was notable from the fact that 1,500 employees attended the service as a tribute to their late master, while numerous insurance, banking and mercantile institutions in which he was interested, when alive, also sent representatives for the dead man. Had been a millionaire merchant prince of Michigan. Little did the public know of the old man's private life, for he seldom spoke of it, but the romance of his son's life throws a little light on that of his father's.

The father of Francis Palms was a secretary of Napoleon I. and when Waterloo came it brought disaster to him as well as to the French emperor. He came to America and lived in Detroit, but not finding the city of his birth to his liking, he moved to New Orleans, leaving a son, Francis, in Detroit, to grow up with the place. Francis married and a son was the result of the union. The mother dying at his birth, Francis Palms married again, to the discomfiture of his little son, Francis, who found that his stepmother was a French noblewoman, and he was not long in becoming a little step to his shoulders came into the reading room. The son possessed a real literary taste, and he was not long in becoming a little step to his shoulders came into the reading room.

A Common Cold

Is often the beginning of serious affections of the Throat, Bronchial Tubes, and Lungs. Therefore, the importance of early and effective treatment cannot be overestimated. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral may always be relied upon for the speedy cure of a Cold or Cough.

Last January I was attacked with a severe cold, which, by neglect and frequent exposures, became worse, finally settling on my lungs. A terrible cough soon followed, accompanied by pains in the chest, from which I suffered intensely. After trying various remedies, without obtaining relief, I commenced taking Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and was Speedily Cured.

I am satisfied that this remedy saved my life.—Jas. Webster, Pawtucket, R. I.

I contracted a severe cold, which gradually developed into Pneumonia, proving dangerous and obstinate symptoms. My physician at once ordered the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. His instructions were followed, and the result was a rapid and permanent cure.—H. E. Shipman, Quincy, Mass.

Two years ago I suffered from a severe cold which settled on my lungs. I consulted various physicians, and took the medicines they prescribed, but received only temporary relief. A friend induced me to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. After taking two bottles of this medicine I was cured. I feel that I owe the preservation of my life to its curative powers.—Mrs. Ann Lockwood, Boston, Mass.

CHRISTMAS.

A MERRY CHRISTMAS.

We welcome, today the merry Christmas-time, with all its joys and thanksgivings. We greet all, young and old, patrons and friends with a merry Christmas. May you all enjoy to the fullest extent, the many festivities of the season. Do not, however, in your full enjoyment, forget the poor, the sick, and the aged, as well as the young. See to it that the day is one of joy and happiness to them. Remembering that the great lessons of the day are mercy and forgiveness.

At the Churches.

All the Churches and Sunday Schools in town celebrate this festival of festivals, many of them in grand style and much enjoyment.

UNITARIAN CHURCH.
At the Christmas festival of the First Church Sunday School, to be held Friday, in Faxon Hall, the following programme is to be presented: From 4 to 6 p. m., games and dancing; 6 to 6.30, supper; 6.30 to 7, singing of carols; 7, play—"The Bachelor's Christmas"; after this a Christmas tree and Santa Claus.

CHURCH CHURCH.
As usual this church has been profusely festooned with heavy evergreen streamers, right pieces each forty-two feet long being employed. There were besides 200 yards of smaller trimmings. Dividing the church from the church was what is termed a Road painted screen, with three arches, surmounted by a triangle and crown. The altar cloth will be decorated with ferns and autumn leaves.

A tree festival will take place this (Friday) evening, at 7 o'clock, to consist of the following:
Carol, Beautiful star in the East. Frost.
Carol, Jesus is born. Brigglinton.
Carol, Joyfully, joyfully angels are singing. Roper.
Carol, Child Jesus. Conant.
Autism, How beautiful on the mountain side. Smith.

On Christmas Day at 10.30 a. m., there will be a service with sermon and Holy Communion. The following is the musical programme, which promises to be a grand feature:
To Deum, Stainer.
Jubilate, Purcell.
Kyrie, Monte.

At the evening service at 7 o'clock:
Cantate, Goss.
Deus, Goss.
Nunc dimittis, Burnby.

The Sunday services will both be appropriate to the time; that in the evening to be a grand concert, for which extensive arrangements have been made.

At the Schools.

Thursday, especially in the afternoon, was a red letter day to pupils of the public school. In nearly all the school rooms in town extensive arrangements were made, the teachers besides working hard, contributed largely from their purses, for the enjoyment of the children. The recent test was very satisfactory, and in one or two schools where the experiment has been tried, there has been no whispering or cheating for a month.

WILLARD SCHOOL, WEST QUINCY.
Thursday was a day of enjoyment in the rooms of the Willard, every one taking some notice of Christmas. Many parents were present to see the little ones enjoy themselves.

Miss Newcomb and Miss T. Fagan's rooms had their festivities together. There was a tree laden with candies, bonbons and colored corn balls. The recitations and singing were appropriate to the day.

The pupils of Misses Mason, Glino, Burns, Grignon and Desmond enjoyed their Christmas together. On the tree were bonbons, cards, candies and popcorn. The programme consisted of singing with piano accompaniment, and speaking in concert and individually.

Mrs. Corlie's children joined with those of Miss Nellie Fagan. On the moulding board, beneath an evergreen arch and surrounded with oranges and bon-bons, was placed a large basket which was filled with gifts. The pupils made each other. Their entertainment consisted of a vocal solo and chorus, a duet, dialogues, singing, marching and gymnastics.

The pupils of Miss Keleva and Miss Dudley's rooms held their festivities together. There was singing, readings, recitations, etc., and the presentation of gifts among the children. Each child received a bag of pop corn and candy, and an orange.

In Miss Sanborn's room there was a Christmas tree, a Christmas box and recitations. By the agency of the box the pupils exchanged gifts. The teacher gave oranges, bags of candy, etc., to the children.

Miss Ellis's pupils also had a Christmas box, and appropriate exercises.

QUINCY SCHOOLS.
In Miss Dunham's room, for her pupils and also Miss Dunham's, was a Christmas tree, on which were bonbons, cards, candies, etc., and there were pleasant exercises, consisting of a beautiful duet, recitations, singing, etc. Several presents were made among the scholars.

The children in Miss McNeil's rooms had readings, speaking and games, followed by a feast of candy, pop corn and oranges. Several pretty Christmas cards were presented to the teacher.

Miss White's scholars had special Christmas exercises of speaking, readings and singing. The children shelled a lot of corn; it was popped by the fire in the room, and afterwards strung. As the last specimen of their writing for the term, Longfellow's "Christmas Bells" was put on the blackboards and then copied. Christmas decorations were on the boards also.

In Miss Dinegan's room a musical festival occurred—the music box feature being a surprise to the children. There were recitations, readings and the distribution of cards and bags of candy.

The exercises in the principal's room consisted of readings. Mr. Smith received several tokens; noticeable were several hand paintings. He in turn presented each pupil with a Christmas card. After their exercises they visited each of the other rooms in turn and enjoyed their entertainments.

Peter Rowell, the janitor of the building received several gifts.

CONDONING SCHOOL.
The rooms of Misses Underwood and Hall enjoyed their festivities together. The entertainment consisted of many songs, poems, marching, etc. There was a Christmas basket filled with cards, candies and presents. The blackboards were covered with drawings by the children. The teachers were remembered.

Miss Jansson's pupils had a well-laden tree with presents among the children and to and from the teachers. The programme consisted of songs, readings, recitations, etc.

The pupils of Miss Dodge's room had a Christmas basket, and an entertainment of Christmas stories, speeches, singing and games.

Miss Haines' scholars read Christmas stories and sang and gave recitations. Each received a card from the teacher, who in turn was remembered.

The children of Misses Nightingale and Clark had their festivities together. They had a large and very prettily trimmed Christmas tree, the presents consisting principally of cards, stockings of candy and corn. A Christmas basket was also well filled. A pleasing programme was presented.

Miss Kelly's room had a tree laden with bags of candy and corn. The "babies" as they are termed, but who are really little ladies and gentlemen, had a general good time. Little pieces and songs were given. Cards and a generous supply of peanuts were distributed. The teachers received many presents.

Miss Deacon's pupils read Dickens' carol, but did not make as extensive preparations as the lower rooms.

JOHN HANCOCK SCHOOL.
The 310 little folks were gathered together in one of the unoccupied rooms on the second floor. As they came trooping up the stairway their happy faces all told of anticipated pleasures which were fully realized before the afternoon was over.

On one side of the room was a large tree laden with bags of candy, cards, and many other things which delight the children's heart. The evergreen motto on the wall wished every one a "Merry Christmas."

The exercises commenced by the singing of "Merry, Merry Christmas Bells," and the distant jingle of bells at the end of the song proclaimed the presence of Santa in the building. Then followed recitations by the members of the different schools. Miss Boyd's gave a concert recitation, "Daisy's Letter to King." Miss Underwood's, a song entitled "Ring, ye Christmas bells;" and children in the other rooms all joined to make the exercise a pleasant one.

But hark! what is that? In a moment we knew, for through the door came a veritable Santa. Robed in fur, his long hair covering his shoulders and a jolly word for all, old Santa Claus rolled the tree of its beauty. Soon all were satisfied—each one receiving his share—and many hearts were filled with joy. Before leaving Santa gave an original poem, which pleased all.

We were much surprised by the arrival of one who listens to the singing in the schools of Quincy with much interest.

WASHINGTON SCHOOL.
The closing of the Washington School, for the ten days' vacation was observed by awarding cards for perfect attendance and commendation of certificates.

In the Primary rooms a closing half hour of fun was the rule and short exhibition, consisting of recitations and songs.

Miss Colgan's pupils were delighted over the contents of a Christmas basket, Miss Penny's room shone with the Christmas tree while Miss Malone endeavored herself to the hearts of her children by a distribution of sweet meats, all received one or more of the pretty Christmas cards and all are now ready to enjoy the fairly earned vacation.

WOLLASTON SCHOOLS.
At all the rooms at the Wollaston school the teachers gave the pupils Christmas cards. They in return received tokens from the scholars. Dickens' Christmas Carol was read in one school, and there were recitations, singing, readings, etc., in the others.

ADAMS SCHOOL.
Every grade except the A and B Grammars celebrated the close of school and the coming of the Christmas holidays. The C and D Grammars had a Parents' Afternoon, the grand feature of which was a play entitled "The Investigating Committee," enacted in costume. A Christmas box, (and some fine clothes) added to the general joy.

The two A Primaries had a beautiful tree. The speaking in these rooms was especially good. The C and D Primaries greatly enjoyed their tree with its candy and presents.

The little people in the two D Primaries were made happy with a tree, on which the candy occupied a prominent place. The toys were characteristic of "Baby-Folk" and though not grand were liked by the recipients. The A and B Grammars had been too busy with examinations to prepare for a Parents' Day.

Free Delivery in Quincy.
The National Senate has passed the bill to extend the free delivery system of the post office department to towns and cities of over 10,000 population at the last census, or at any post-office which showed a gross revenue for the preceding fiscal year of not less than $10,000.

The ground was so thoroughly covered by the PATRIOT last week that but little remains to be said except to urge our people to fulfill the requirements necessary. In conversation with one of the Selectmen recently, he thought no more would be taken by the Board to number the streets, unless the town so instructed them, and made an appropriation therefor. This should then be one of the articles in the next town meeting warrant.

Then, could not the town pursue, for one year at least, a more generous policy in regard to edgemoes and concrete or brick sidewalks? The custom has been, in past years we believe, for the town to set aside where it is furnished by the abutors. Would not the town be willing to do still better—to take one-half the cost of the edgemoes. It is not so much an individual benefit or improvement, but for the whole town; at least, for all who have occasion to use the same. Such streets as Hancock, Washington, School, Franklin, Granite, Water, Copeland, Cemetery, Ward, Adams, Beale, Newport avenue, Farrington, Squantum and Atlantic streets should have at least one sidewalk its entire length. And in the villages the much frequent short streets should have better sidewalks; not alone to secure the delivery but for the benefit and convenience of our people and the improvement of the town. Readers and voters please give these matters your serious attention.

A petition has been recently sent to Washington from Malden, signed by two hundred citizens, asking for a free delivery system connected with the Boston delivery.

Better Fire Protection.
We have not the least fault to find with the management of the late fire on Hancock street, for we believe Engineer Hall and the department generally did nobly. But it is true, that it had all the work it wanted, with some assistance from outside.

The town relies largely on steam engines for protection, and the Town Report shows that there are connected with this company but twelve men. Allowing that all of these were present the other afternoon at Faxon's fire—which is hardly probable—there were three men short, each of the four streets. Who could be depended upon to take charge of other lines, if necessary? As it was, the hose burst frequently, and there seemed to be no one to fix it.

There are pressing needs, we believe, for another hose company, to be located in or near the Square. How the town can get along safely without a hose company in the Centre are at a loss to account for, when previous to 1882 the district always had one. There is no fire apparatus in the Centre district, except the Hook and Ladder, which is on the extreme southerly side. And a word now in relation to the late fire will not be out of place. When it takes over fifteen minutes to get the truck a thousand feet, is it what it should be? Is it an efficient department? Is it proper management to have things thus? We know the engineers are experiencing a difficulty in hiring horses, but is that reason sufficient?

We would advocate the erection of a suitable building in the Centre for the accommodation of the steamer, a hose carriage and the hook and ladder carriage; retaining the present steamer house for a hose company. And in a few years, if not at the present time, the location of another steamer and hose carriage at "Jones' Corner," of Grace and Water streets, as well as the hook and ladder carriage, would be an advantage.

The new automatic attachment to the whistle at the Water Works is a good thing, although alarm Sunday was not distinct, but this was probably because it was not pulled in properly. The attachment should be applied at Wollaston, at Badger's in West Quincy, and on the new boiler works at Quincy Point.

Woodward Fund and Seminary.
The recent death of Mr. E. Price Greenleaf awakens new interest and brighter prospects for the Woodward Seminary now to be established in Quincy. Dr. Woodward, it will be remembered, left a large amount of property, both real and personal, for this purpose. The last report of Horace B. Spear, the treasurer of this fund, published in the last Town Report, shows that the cash fund amounted, February 1, 1886, to $15,484.44.

This amount has since been increased by the sale to the town of what is now the Merry Mount Park and other lots, and now stands near $100,000.00. There is also a considerable real estate, being part of the old Greenleaf estate. Mrs. Woodward also bequeathed a generous sum, to come to the town on the death of her brother and sister, as will be seen by clause eight of her will:

"I give and devise the use and enjoyment of the real and residue of my estate, real and personal, after paying the legacies aforesaid, my just debts and charges of administration, unto my brother and sister, for their lives and the life of the survivor of them; and after the decease of both of them, I hereby give and devise the same unto my said brother and sister, to be held in trust for the same trust and for the same purposes, as set forth in my last will and testament, said Dr. Ebenezer Woodward, touching the foundation and maintenance of a female institute in the City of Quincy."

The brother, E. Price Greenleaf, and the sister, Mrs. Eliza Appleton, are now deceased, and the Woodward Fund will now realize quite an addition to its already good-sized amount.

Dr. Woodward's will says the seminary must be built within twenty-five years from his death, which occurred May 21, 1869.

GERMAN. A complimentary German to the gentlemen was given on Wednesday evening at the Robertson House hall by several prominent society young ladies. Great credit is due them for the pleasant and interesting entertainment.

The guests were received by Arthur Keith, George Pfaffman, William Dewson and Henry Faxon, and introduced to the chapters. After the introductions dancing commenced and lasted until midnight when refreshments were served by Boston caterer. The party broke up at half past twelve, and all present pronounced it a grand success in every way.

The music, furnished by a band orchestra, was excellent. The gentlemen certainly owe the ladies a vote of thanks for a very pleasant evening.

A SUBSTANTIAL GIFT. Mr. Frank F. Prescott, an active member of Mr. Wollaston Lodge of Odd Fellows of Quincy, was surprised by his brothers with their ladies on Monday evening. Having so far transgressed the strict letter of that ancient secret society, as to pair himself off, when he had solemnly obligated himself to be a true old fellow, they swept down upon him and his young bride, captured the house, and after enjoying themselves a few hours, compelled Mr. Prescott to respond to the charge of Capt. C. B. Newton, the District Deputy, in which a handsome French marble clock was presented. He however, convinced his brothers that matrimony was the best possible step, and accepted their substantial gift and kind wishes. Mrs. Prescott was the recipient of a beautiful bouquet and holder.

THIRDSOME YEARS.
Despite the stormy weather of last Saturday evening, about twenty-five ladies and gentlemen assembled at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Badger on Cemetery street and completely surprised the guests. The occasion being the sixtieth anniversary of his birth.

After the usual greetings and exclamations accompanying a "surprise" were over, vocal and instrumental music, cards, games and refreshments made the hours pass all too quickly. The clock's twelve strokes announced the fact that Sunday had begun; then all games were dispensed with and an hour or more devoted to the singing of "Good Hymns."

The evening singing of "Hand in Hand" was made the recipient of a goodly number of presents, among which were a dressing-gown and a pair of gold bowled spectacles. "May he live long to enjoy them," is the wish of all present.

ATLANTIC.
Both the inward and outward mails of the Atlantic post office have been over double the usual size this week.

Mr. J. E. Drew continues very ill with typhoid pneumonia.

Mr. Nathaniel Damon and wife of San Francisco are making his sister, Mrs. Gurney and Mrs. Drew, an extended visit in Atlantic.

The pupils of the public schools will have a vacation until Monday, January 3.

Mr. Arthur Mitchell will entertain a number of his friends Christmas Eve.

The readings of Miss Sterns netted the Congregational Church ninety dollars.

Although a few sleighs ventured out, the sleighing practically ended last Saturday.

A long, important and interesting article of local nature will appear in our next issue.

Marshall P. Wright's new residence promises to be an ornament to Adams street.

A haggis supper and dance takes place at the Town Hall, Christmas Eve by the Ladies Good Time Society.

Several candidates by letter and confession of faith were proposed at the Congregational Church last Sunday.

At Hanson's Chestnut street market you can secure good bargains in turkeys and chickens for Christmas dinner.

If you have not decided what you are going to buy for Christmas, just read the advertisements in today's PATRIOT.

The date of the Odd Fellows annual ball has been definitely decided upon, Friday evening, Feb. 4, Mr. Frank B. Foster will be floor director.

The hours at the Quincy Post Office Christmas Day are 7 to 10 A. M., and 5 to 7 P. M. The office being closed from 10 A. M. to 5 P. M.

The Presbyterian Society talk of building a parsonage on their church property, a liberal offer having been made to them by the State Association.

The PATRIOT reporter acknowledges the receipt of a richly-bounded volume of Webster's "Constitution of Henry H. Faxon, Esq., and returns many thanks.

Rev. D. McLeod, formerly pastor of the Presbyterian Church, has accepted a call in his native town on Prince Edwards Island. Many kind wishes go with him.

The late train on Sunday evening will leave Boston for Quincy and way stations at 10.30 instead of 10, and returning will leave Quincy at 11.21, and other stations half an hour later.

A "connection switch" is a reducer or enlarger. Further, it is hardly probable that Boston steamers will stay at home, connect with our hydrants, and play on our fires in this town at the same time. How dull and ridiculous some folks are!

The Rev. William M. Cornell, the first pastor of the Congregational Church of Quincy, has been deeply afflicted by the loss of his beloved wife, who died in Boston on the 12th inst. He has our sympathy in this hour of his bereavement.

Because of domestic troubles W. S. Hurd, engineer of the Quincy Steamer has resigned his position and left town for parts unknown. Edward Hardwick filled the vacancy for a few days, but since that time Joshua Brown has been in charge. He will apply for the situation.

Among the prizes awarded at the Old Colony Poultry Show in South Weymouth this week were: pair ducks, second and third to Mr. William G. Prescott of Quincy. Partridge, Cochins, first to J. H. Dean of Quincy. The latter also received first and second prizes for chicks.

The fine library lawn, on which so much care and money was expended last summer, has, during the past two weeks, been badly cut up by visitors to the library. The nice lawn, on the same conditions upon the same trust and for the same purposes, as set forth in my last will and testament, said Dr. Ebenezer Woodward, touching the foundation and maintenance of a female institute in the City of Quincy."

The services at Faxon Hall, last Sunday evening, were conducted by Rev. D. B. McLeod, the former pastor, and were a memorial to his beloved Christian wife, who passed away recently. He feelingly alluded to her death and many of the audience were moved to tears. Many sympathized with him at the close of the service.

Charles F. Adams of this town, President of the Union Pacific Railroad was in conference on Tuesday in New York with Elijah Smith, President of the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company, arranging the details of the Oregon Navigation line. The work was finished, but the conference adjourned without signing the agreement. President Harris of the Northern Pacific also had a long informal talk with Mr. Adams.

WEST QUINCY.
The coasting on Centre street this week has been very good.

C. W. Haley, principal of the Willard school is still unable to teach, but hopes to be able to resume his position on the opening of the new term. Miss Ellis of the Washington school has filled the vacancy.

Scott Bros., who do not advertise, have been obliged to shut up shop this week for want of patronage.

"Hitting the Mark" was the subject of an interesting lecture by S. B. Sweetser of Brockton, in the M. E. course on Wednesday evening.

Two articles in last week's PATRIOT have interested this section of the town very much—the proposed horse railroad and the prospect of a free delivery—and have furnished the general topic for conversation this week. West Quincy needs very much better railroad facilities to the Centre, and believe it is useless to expect to have the horse railroad.

For the observance of Christmas, both at the churches and in the schools, see another column.
